The Monterey Plainsman

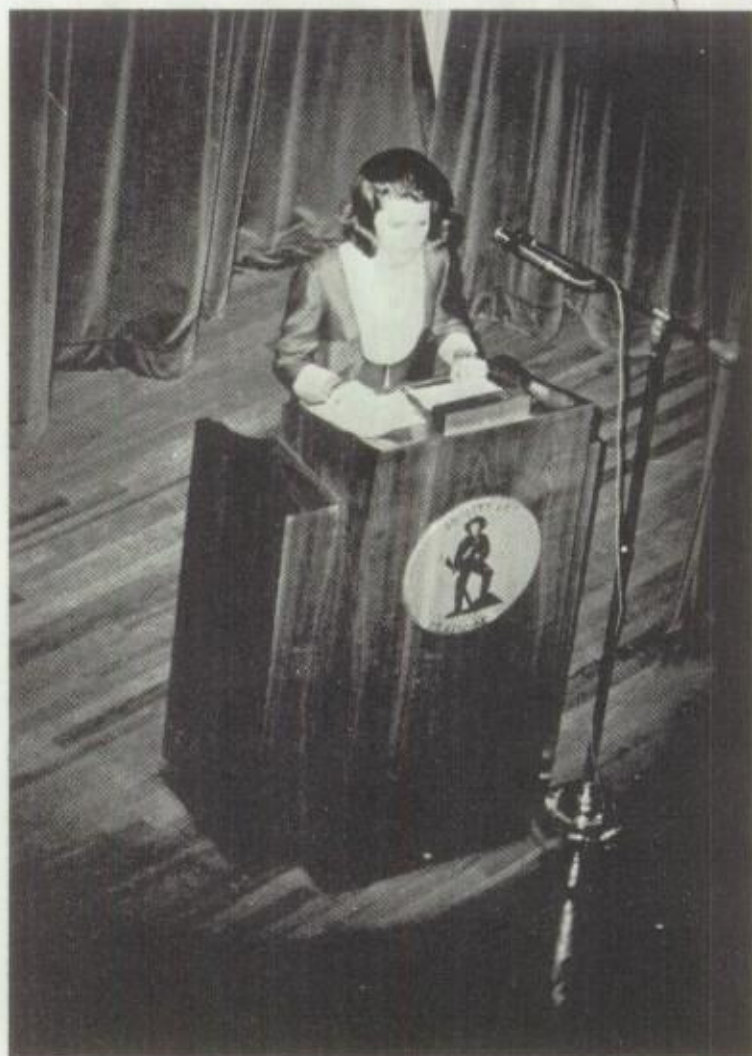

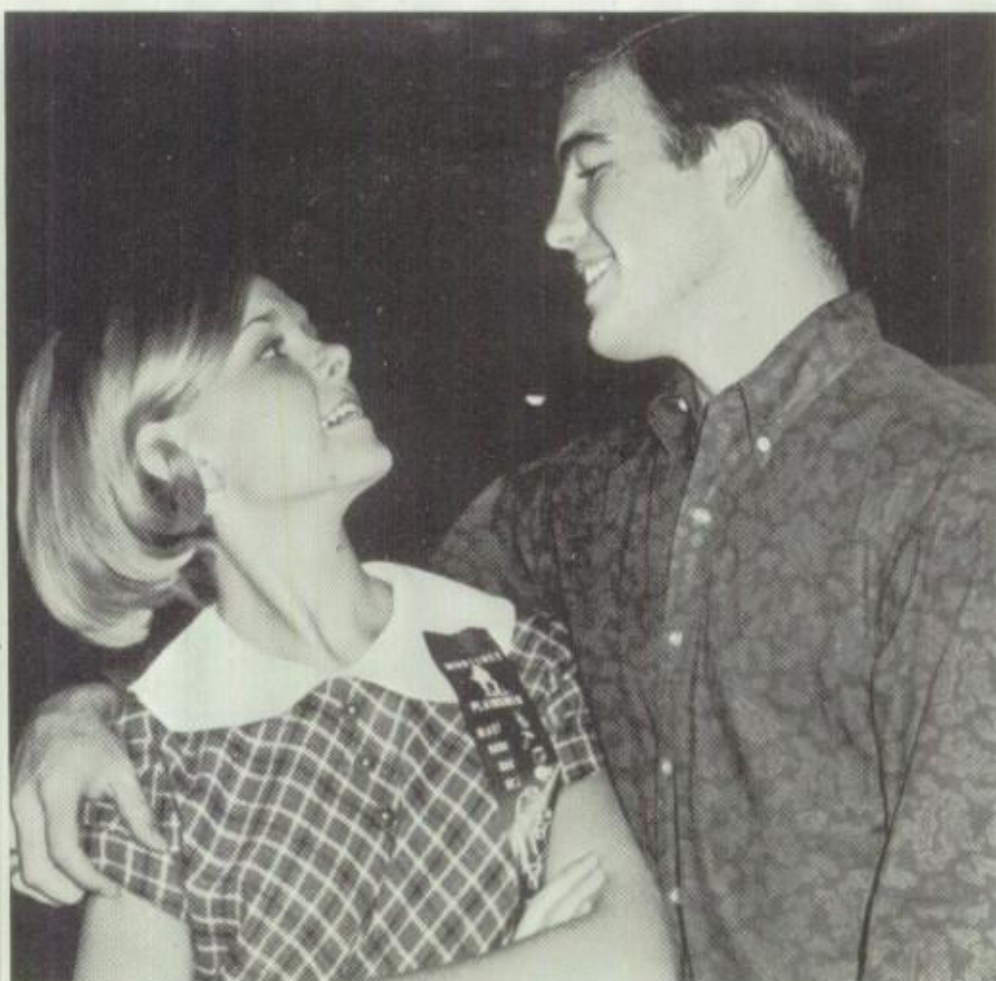

The beginning of school is always hectic. Tension builds and pressure creates confusion for brand new sophomores. Howdy Week arrived early in September this year and Plainsmen worked at getting acquainted. The highlight of the Howdy Assembly was Kim Gilbreath's speech, urging unity and enthusiasm. Her plea for real immortality for the Red and Blue brought a new year into focus. Saturday night arrived and pent-up energy was released at Old Cowtown, MHS. Special guests were sophomores and newcomers to the school. Everyone danced to the music of the Traveling Salesmen and ate and ate and ate. For the more daring there were pie-eating contests and watermelon-seed-spitting contests. For everybody there was plenty of old-fashioned fun. Results of marshall and deputy elections held early in the week were announced and suddenly, it was over. Cowtown, 1967 was history and newcomers were no longer strangers, but Plainsmen.

Western welcome greets newcomers

While Penny White greets Deputy Paul Bullock, it seems Liz Barnes and Zane Noble took Howdy Week too seriously.

Phfft! Plink! Spitting seeds is not as easy as it looks for Alan Almack.

Cowtown means one thing to one cowpoke and something else to another. A trusty pal gets a handout from Marshall Tommy White while Deputy Larry Wharton gets in practice for a "bang-up" time at the all-school party.

Giving substance to the traditional cry of "Go, go, go!" are seniors Cindy Rodgers, Lynn Evans and Donna Deering.

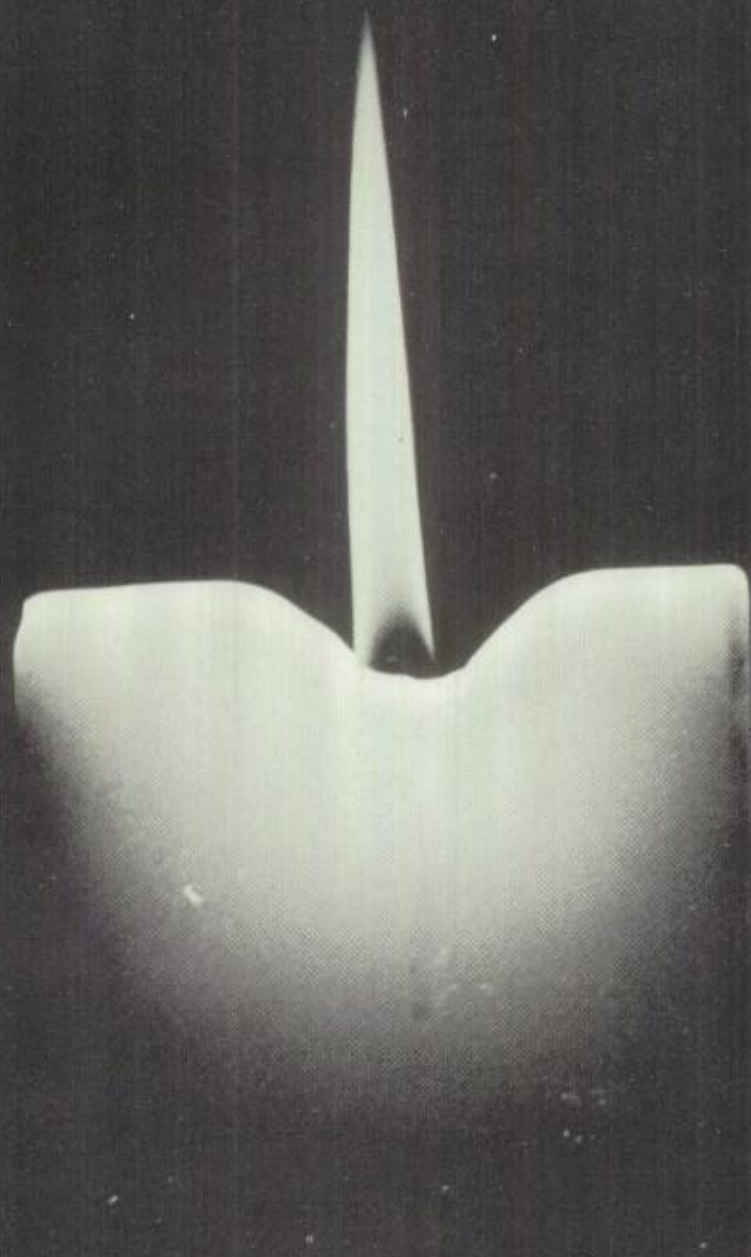

Big Raider tackle and former Plainsman, Dickie Grigg, outlines his formula for success.

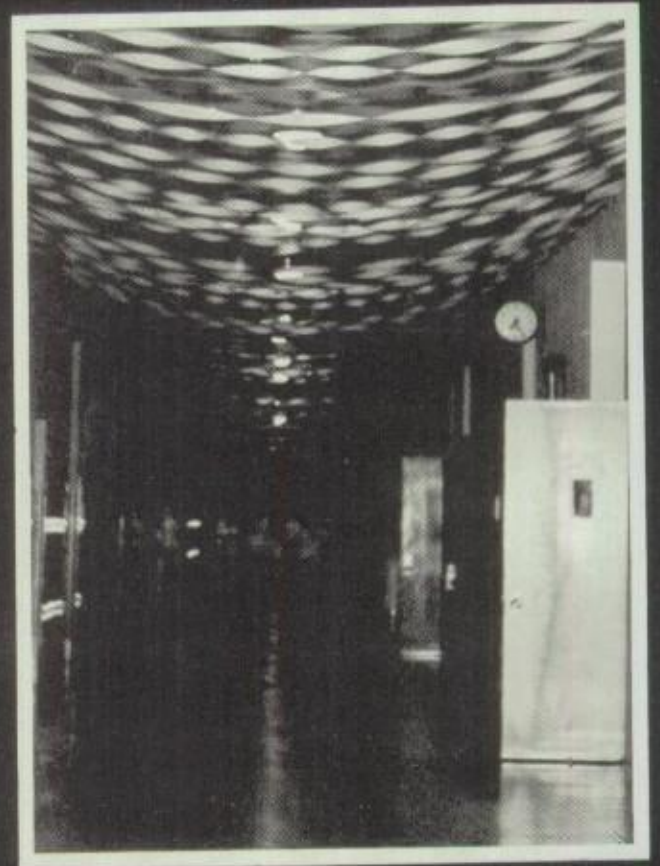

Even a sack lunch tastes good to Suzie Hardin, Patti Anderson and Candace Baker when the buses stop for supper on the way to Pampa.

Student body all 'go' as 'Men try for title

Pre-season polls had Monterey picked for seventh place in state football competition. There wasn't a Plainsman alive who believed it. Each one knew, somehow, that Monterey was number one in 1967-68. The pre-district games promised to be tough—and they were. However, not even a stinging loss to cross-town rival Coronado dimmed the spirit of 2,000 students who believed in the red and blue. Pep rallies got bigger and better and finally climaxed at one hour for the Spur Game. The season, though disappointing on the scoreboard, was tremendously successful in developing a common bond among Plainsmen.

It starts early in September—the rush, confusion, the burning desire to be better than all of them. Sophomores become intoxicated with Plainsmen spirit and inspire juniors and seniors to give a little more for the Red and Blue. This year all climaxed during Spur Week. When everyone filed back into class after the pep rally there wasn't a doubt in the heart of a single student that the Spurs were the permanent possession of the Monterey Plainsmen. The game was no surprise and at half-time Penny White was crowned Sports Queen with Cheryl Klotzman, Dana Sandifer, and Pat Chapman as her attendants. Anything after this one week was anticlimax. Spur Week set the pace.

'Men crown Queen Penny White

Costumed as Santa Claus, Kurt Tidmore puts a gleam in the eyes of this little boy at the Ella Iles Christmas party.

Suddenly, during the last dull days of fall, it's Christmas . . . and exciting. The halls are decorated with tinsel and red and green crepe paper . . . the tree is decorated and the countdown begins. There is a conflict between those last minute assignments and the anxious wait for vacation. The last few days in 1967 were filled with the canned food drive, the door decoration contest, the assembly put on by drama and choir students, a party with refreshments and toys and, of course, the favorite Santa Claus for the children at Ella Iles and finally that last bell and almost two weeks of freedom.

'Men prepare for Yuletide break

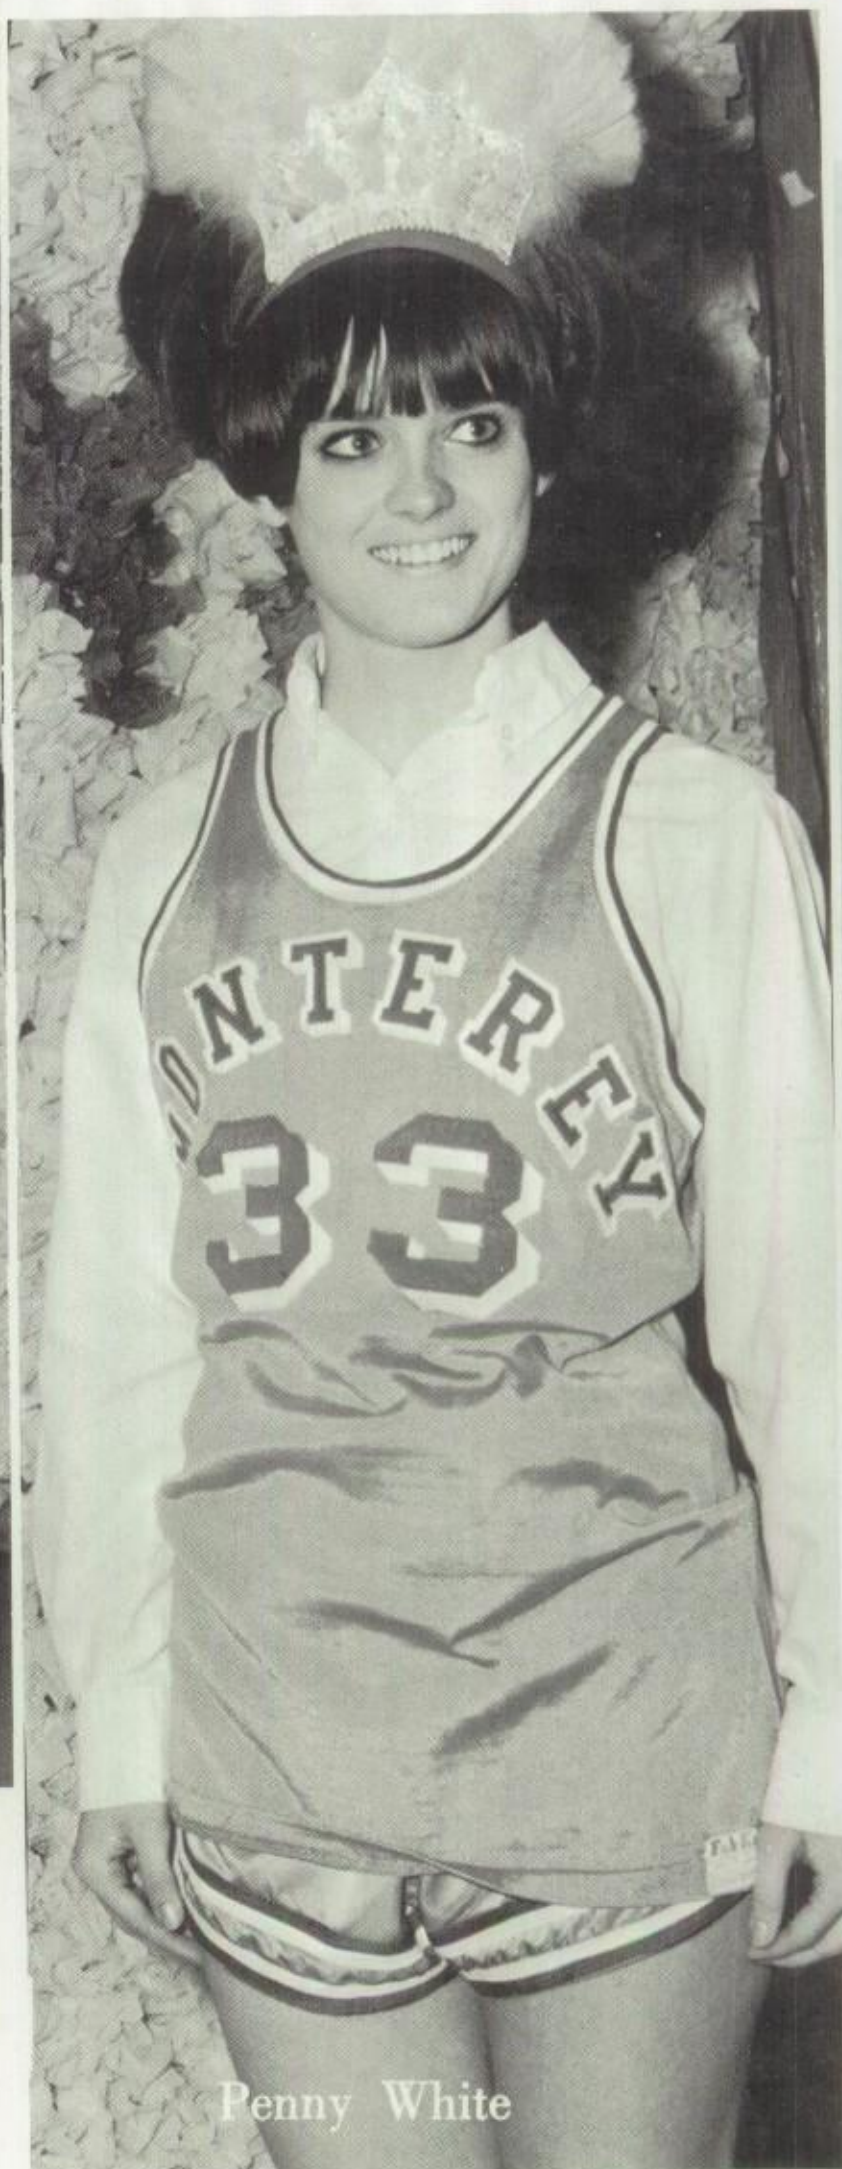

Deciding on a more festive appearance for the patio, seniors Roger Cunningham, Rusty Bailey and Peggy Beesinger give this tree a boost.

Masqueraders celebrate Mardi Gras

Penny White

Costumed and ready for dancing to the music of the Strictly Soul Band, 400 Plainsmen arrived at Mardi Gras on March 16. The cafeteria with its decorations of bright crepe paper and glittered masks set the pace for an exciting party. Every one voted and midway through the dance the royalty was presented. Jimmy Gressett and Penny White reigned as King and Queen. Dukes and Duchesses from each class were Steve Davis and Pat Chapman, seniors, Larry Wharton and Jeanie Jenkins, juniors, and Brad Hall and Bridget Burkholder, sophomores.

Mr. Monterey
Tebby Thames

The highest honor at MHS is the title of Mr. or Miss Monterey. Each year in January the student body makes nominations for this honor and the faculty elects them. This year Tebby Thames and Penny White were named Mr. and Miss Monterey.

Tebby, senior class president, merited this honor through his cooperation and hard work in every school activity. A leader and an athlete, Tebby still found time to be a friend to countless Plainsmen.

Miss Monterey
Penny White

As head cheerleader, Penny White is the embodiment of the winsman spirit. Without her, pep rallies are just assemblies and games are just contests between the athletes. Her friendly smile and her red and blue heart have earned her the honor of Miss Monterey.

Returning to their final year, seniors converge with the familiar faces of past years. But the voices of certain people are heard above all others, not only as leaders, but as examples of friendliness and enthusiasm. Through pep-rallies, assemblies, and other activities, seniors have come to know the voices of Penny White and Tommy White and have chosen them as favorites.

Juniors select class favorites

By the time a student reaches junior status, the blur of the sophomore year has somewhat cleared and they take steps into new fields. Leaving more impressive and lasting footprints Jean Jenkins, Larry Wharton and Cherri Weaver were selected Junior Favorites.

Suddenly submerged in the confusing world of high school, sophomores often find the huge sea of new faces both strange and even a little frightening. However, as the year moves, activities help to identify people as leaders, workers and favorites. Known for their spirited Plainsmen attitude, Bridget Burkholder and Paul Bullock were elected as sophomore favorites.

Y-Teens box up charm to give needy children

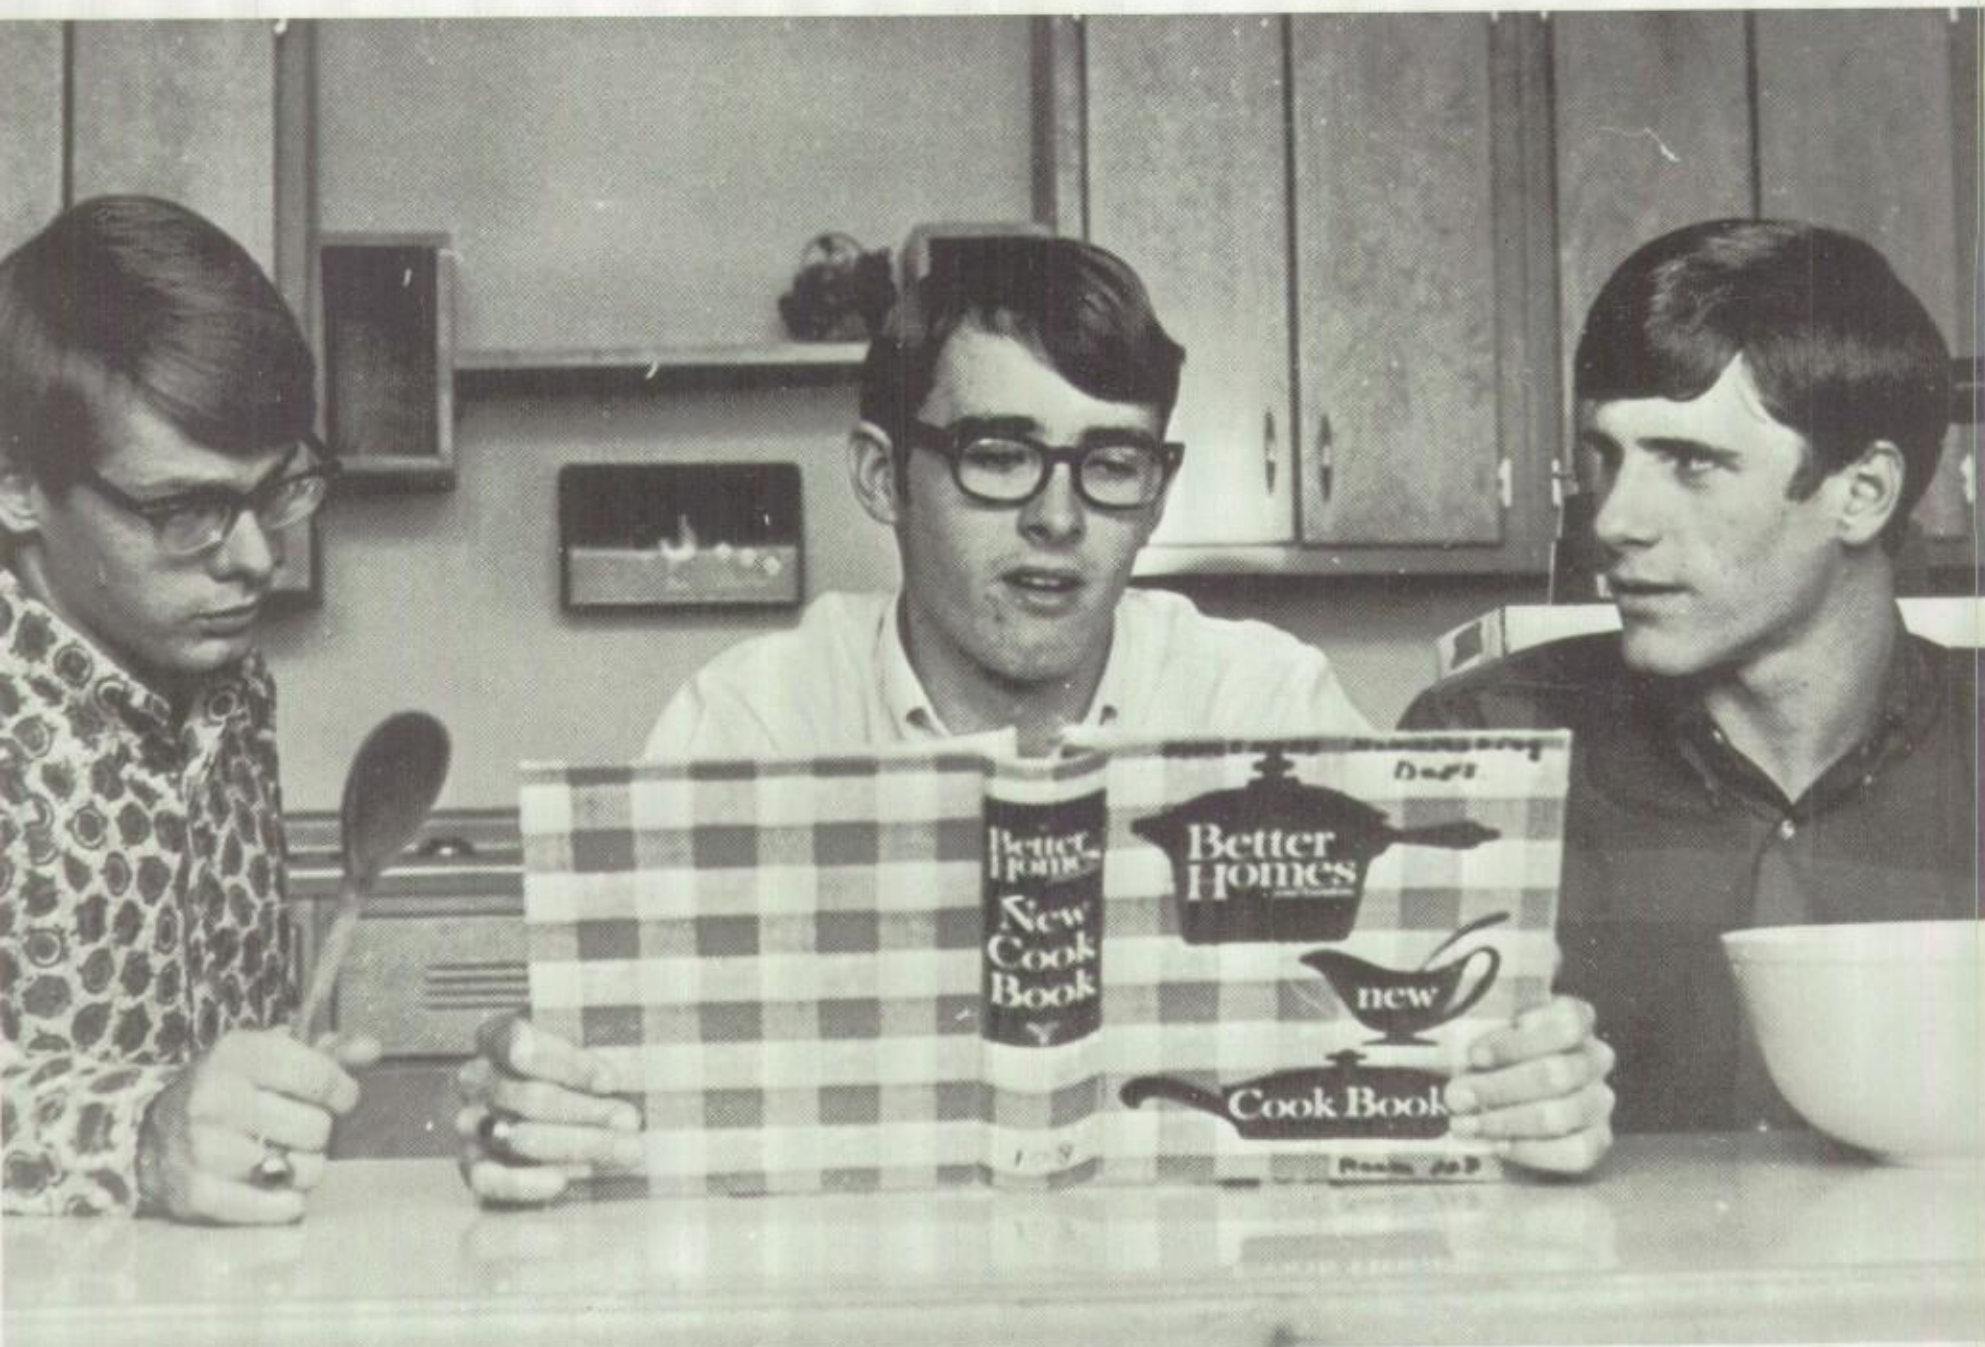

Designed to broaden girls lives and serve the needy of Lubbock, Y-Teens presented a program of various social activities and service projects. Each year every girl assembles a grooming box filled with combs, soap and other necessities. These are decorated and presented to the underprivileged children of Lubbock at Christmas time. Sponsored by Mrs. Jeanelle Culp and led by President Christy Holmes, Y-Teens participated in other activities including a Groad party, a formal initiation and a World Fellowship Tea where Lubbock's Y-Teens met and exchanged ideas. Y-Teens also sponsored the annual Twirp Week activities.

Grateful little eyes reveal their thanks as Patti Sullivan presents one of the grooming boxes made by a Y-Teen member.

Glowing with anticipation, Donna Lemaster wonders what the year has in store for her as an officer in Y-Teens.

"Let's just fix a sandwich," say FHA members Dale Curry, Mike Heath and Mike Dorsey when they fail to find a decent recipe.

It's in the bag," says Jennifer Schneider as she helps Sherry yall and Pam Owens sort rummage for the FHA rummage sale.

Constructing a West Texas snowman. FHA members prepare for the holiday season.

As a model at the annual FHA style show, Sherida Billings finds a smile as important as the dress.

Men scoff at phrase 'it's a woman's world'

Up until 1968, FHA had been a woman's world; however, this year four boys found their way into the membership. The girls eagerly included them in regular FHA activities such as the Come-As-You-Are Get Acquainted party held in September for the sophomores. Other activities included the Tasting Tea, the Rummage Sale, the Valentines-for-Heroes project and, of course, National FHA Week which included group attendance at church and ended with a Saturday night social. The purpose of FHA is to develop the whole girl, and it took slight adjusting to incorporate the development of the whole boy right into the purpose.

Realizing unity to be a key factor to the success of a club, FHA'ers get acquainted so that they might achieve that purpose.

Working as an orderly at Methodist Hospital, Andy Seaver, club vice-president, demonstrates the muscle stimulator on Brooks Barr during a Pre-Med Club field trip.

Resting in memories of Pre-Med Club events, seniors Barbara Upshaw and Laura Belden arrange pictures for the club scrapbook.

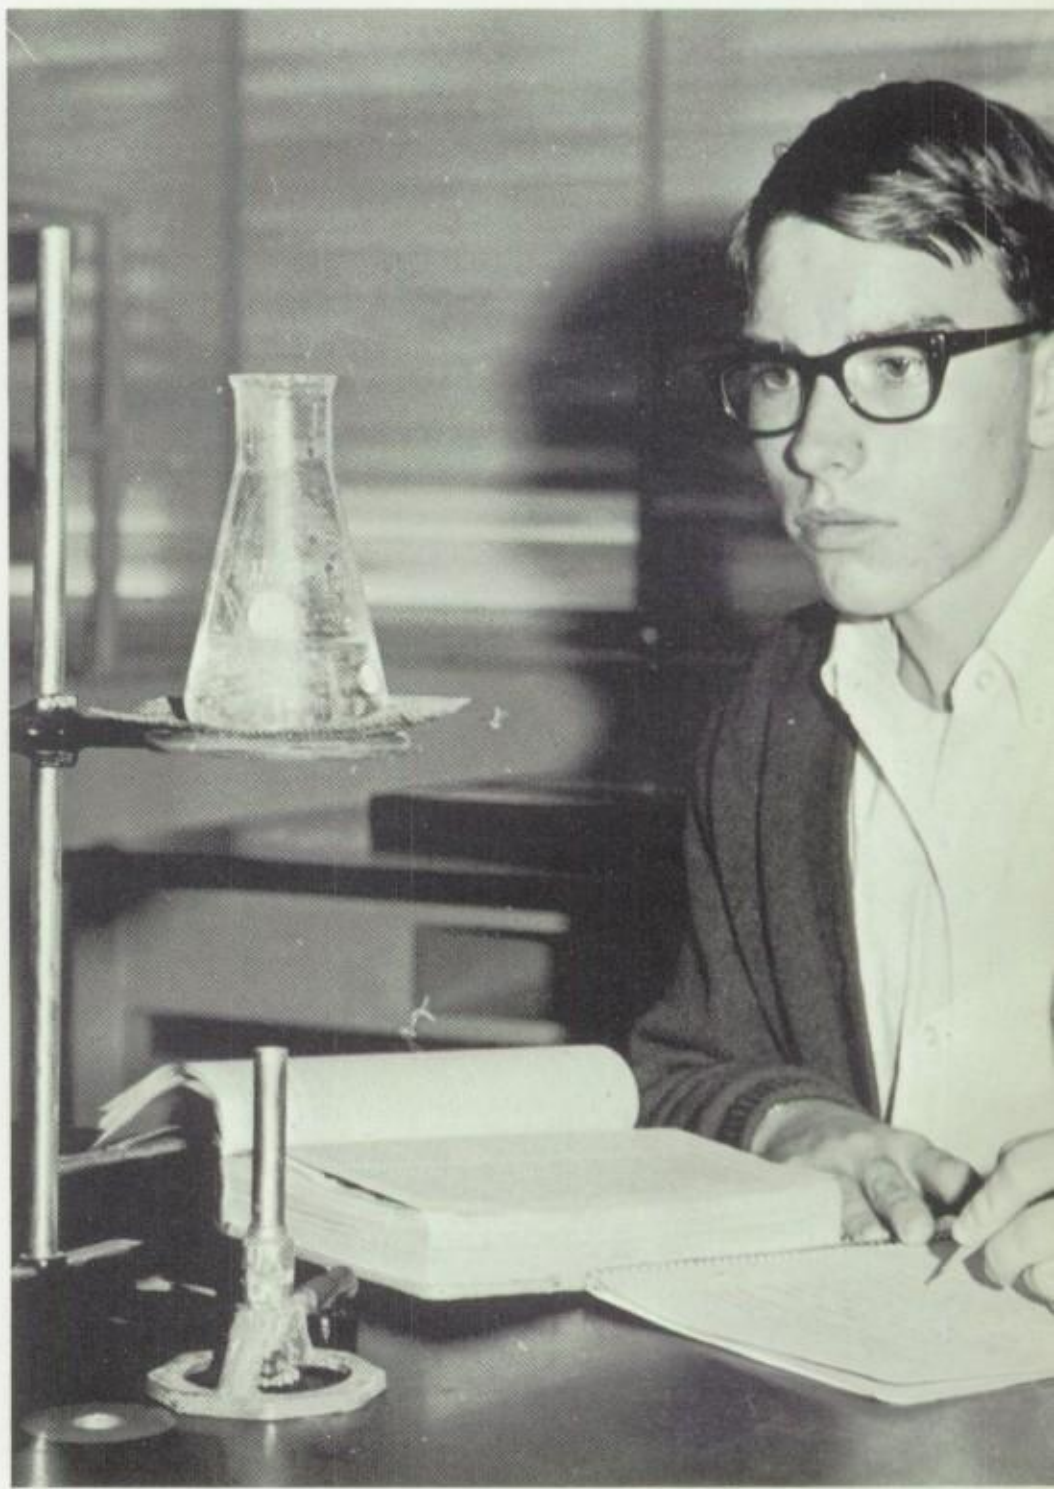

Even faculty members come under the watchful eye of Mrs. June Ducker, school nurse and sponsor of FNA.

Medics make incisions into heart of science

MHS Medicine men injected action into their '68 club year with speakers, parties and field trips. Combining activities with other high school chapters of FNA, future nurses initiated visits to the Reese Hospital and the Lubbock City-County Health Unit. The Pre-Med club kept a busy schedule of programs acquainting its members with the medical profession and its many branches. Attending state conventions, future doctors and nurses gained valuable information about their prospective professions.

With an eye to the future, Andy Seaver studies his experiment.

Off on another of their unusual field trips, future nurses, Dinah Phillips, Brenda Daniels and Patte Cline discuss what this one will include and how it will aid them in their future careers.

Now and then even presidents like Lynn Christy, Gerald Brummett and Lanny Jones have to consult ROBERT'S RULES OF ORDER.

Contests, conferences compliment club clause

With an emphasis on Christian service, Hi-Y functions as a tri-chapter club at Monterey. Organized by classes, each chapter has its own separate function. All chapters cooperate in Pre-leg activities in the fall and in the Hi-Y Homeroom Basketball tournament in the spring. Each year selected delegates prepare sample bills and attend the Pre-leg convention in Austin.

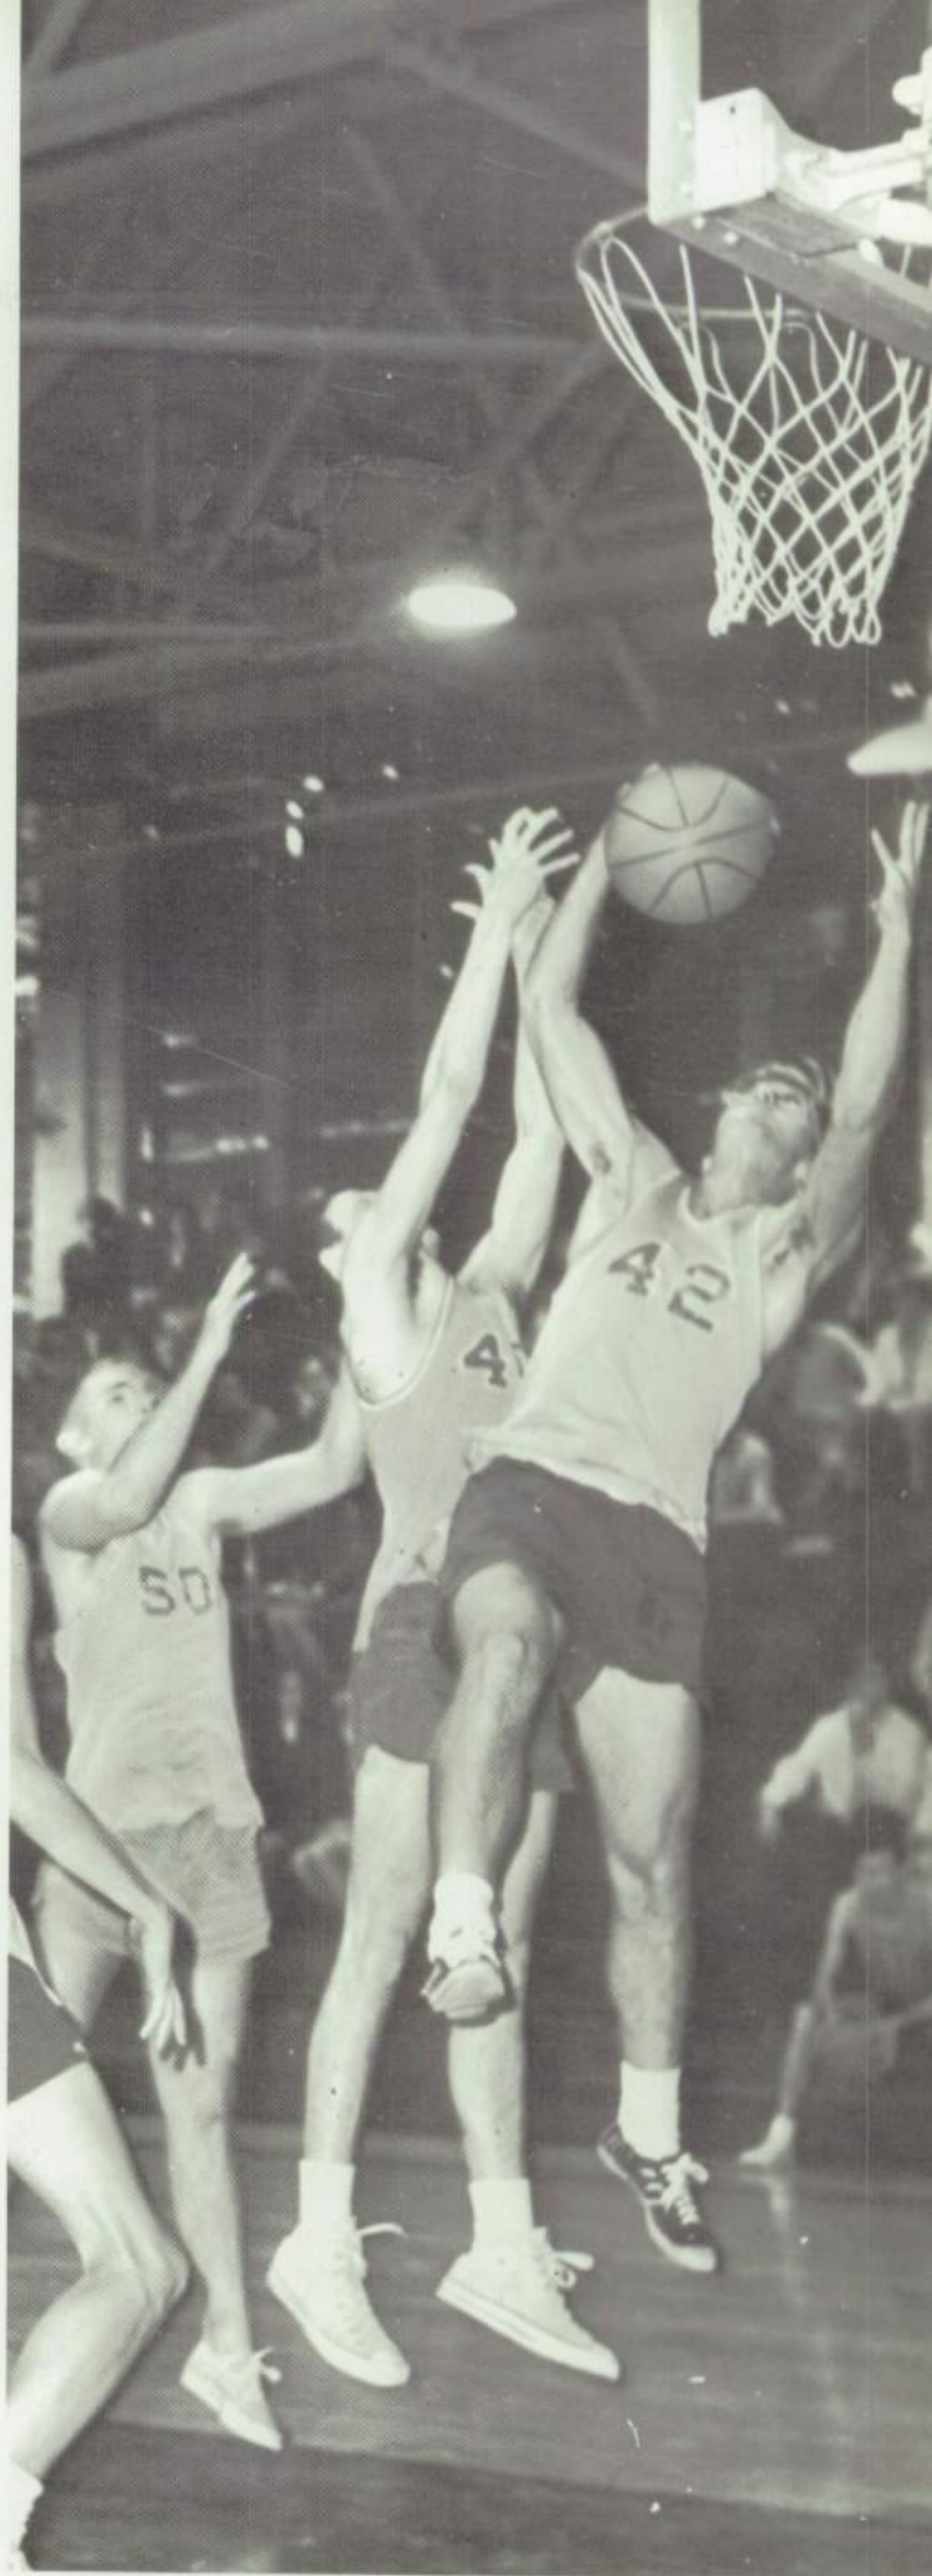

Taking out time to count the proceeds from the tournament, sponsors John Dudley, Robert Rawls and Carl Knight think of ways to spend it.

Planning their campaigns for the convention, Lanny Jones and Steve Davis print signs and name tags and write speeches.

Mimeographing bills to be presented during mock legislative sessions officers Mark Hughes and Steve Davis wonder how many will be passed.

It takes only a skip, hop and a jump for Melvin Billups to make a basket in the finals of the Hi-Y tournament.

Taking time out for refreshments is Mrs. Edna Sewell as FTA Secretary Carolyn Copenhaver plays hostess for a day during semester exams.

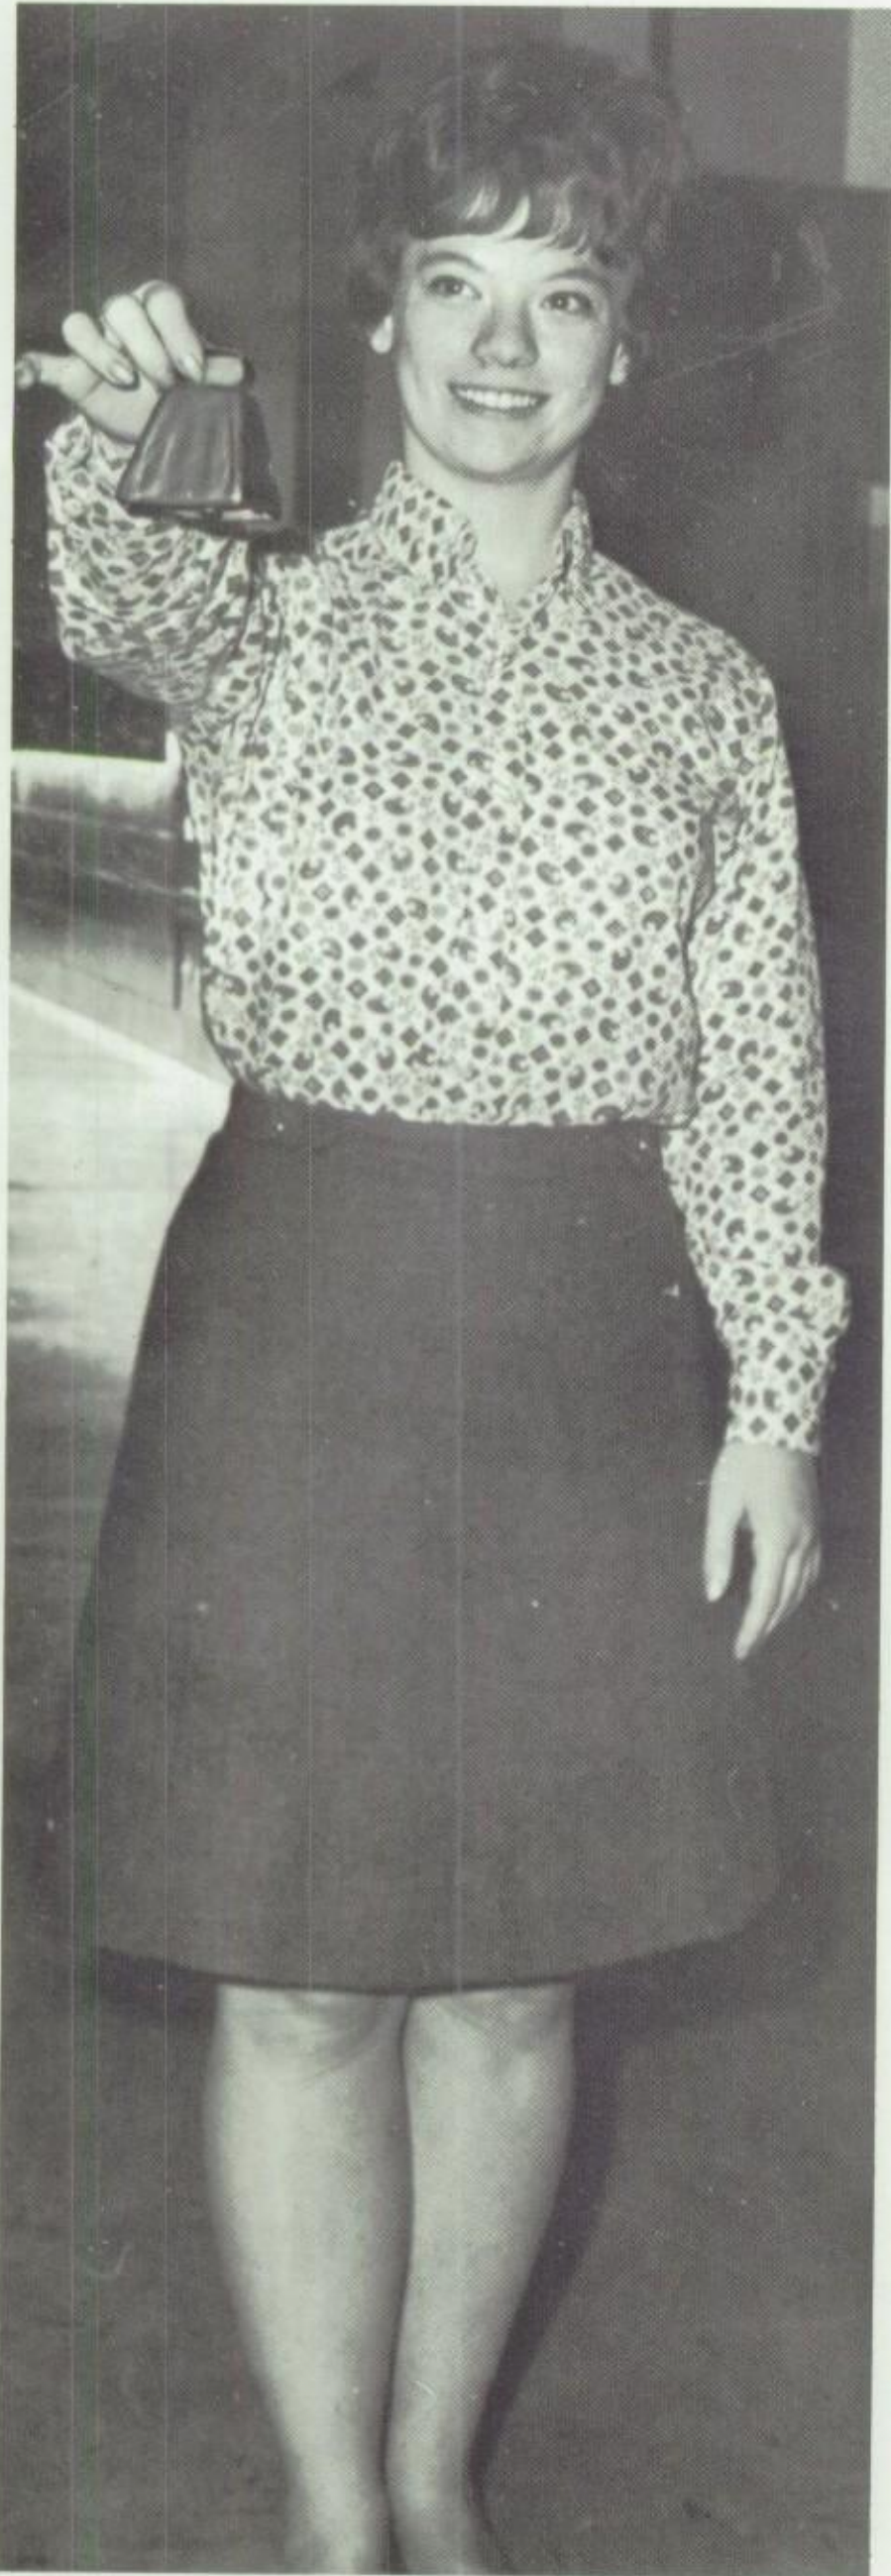

Assuming teaching duties in the lower grades for just one day has junior Shelly Bagwell in a state of utter confusion.

FTA projects provide early teacher training

Perhaps one of the most rewarding professions is that of the teacher. In Future Teachers of America, students prepare and learn early the "ups and downs" of teaching. Projects such as helping under-privileged children, grading papers and waiting faculty tables enabled FTA members to better acquaint themselves with the teaching profession. A Sweetheart Banquet with the crowning of Miss FTA, senior Lucille Larmer, highlighted the year's activities. Selection was based on contributions to the club. Culminating a year of service, members participated in the FTA State Convention in Dallas.

Getting into the swing of things by ringing for class attention is Miss FTA Lucille Larmer, senior.

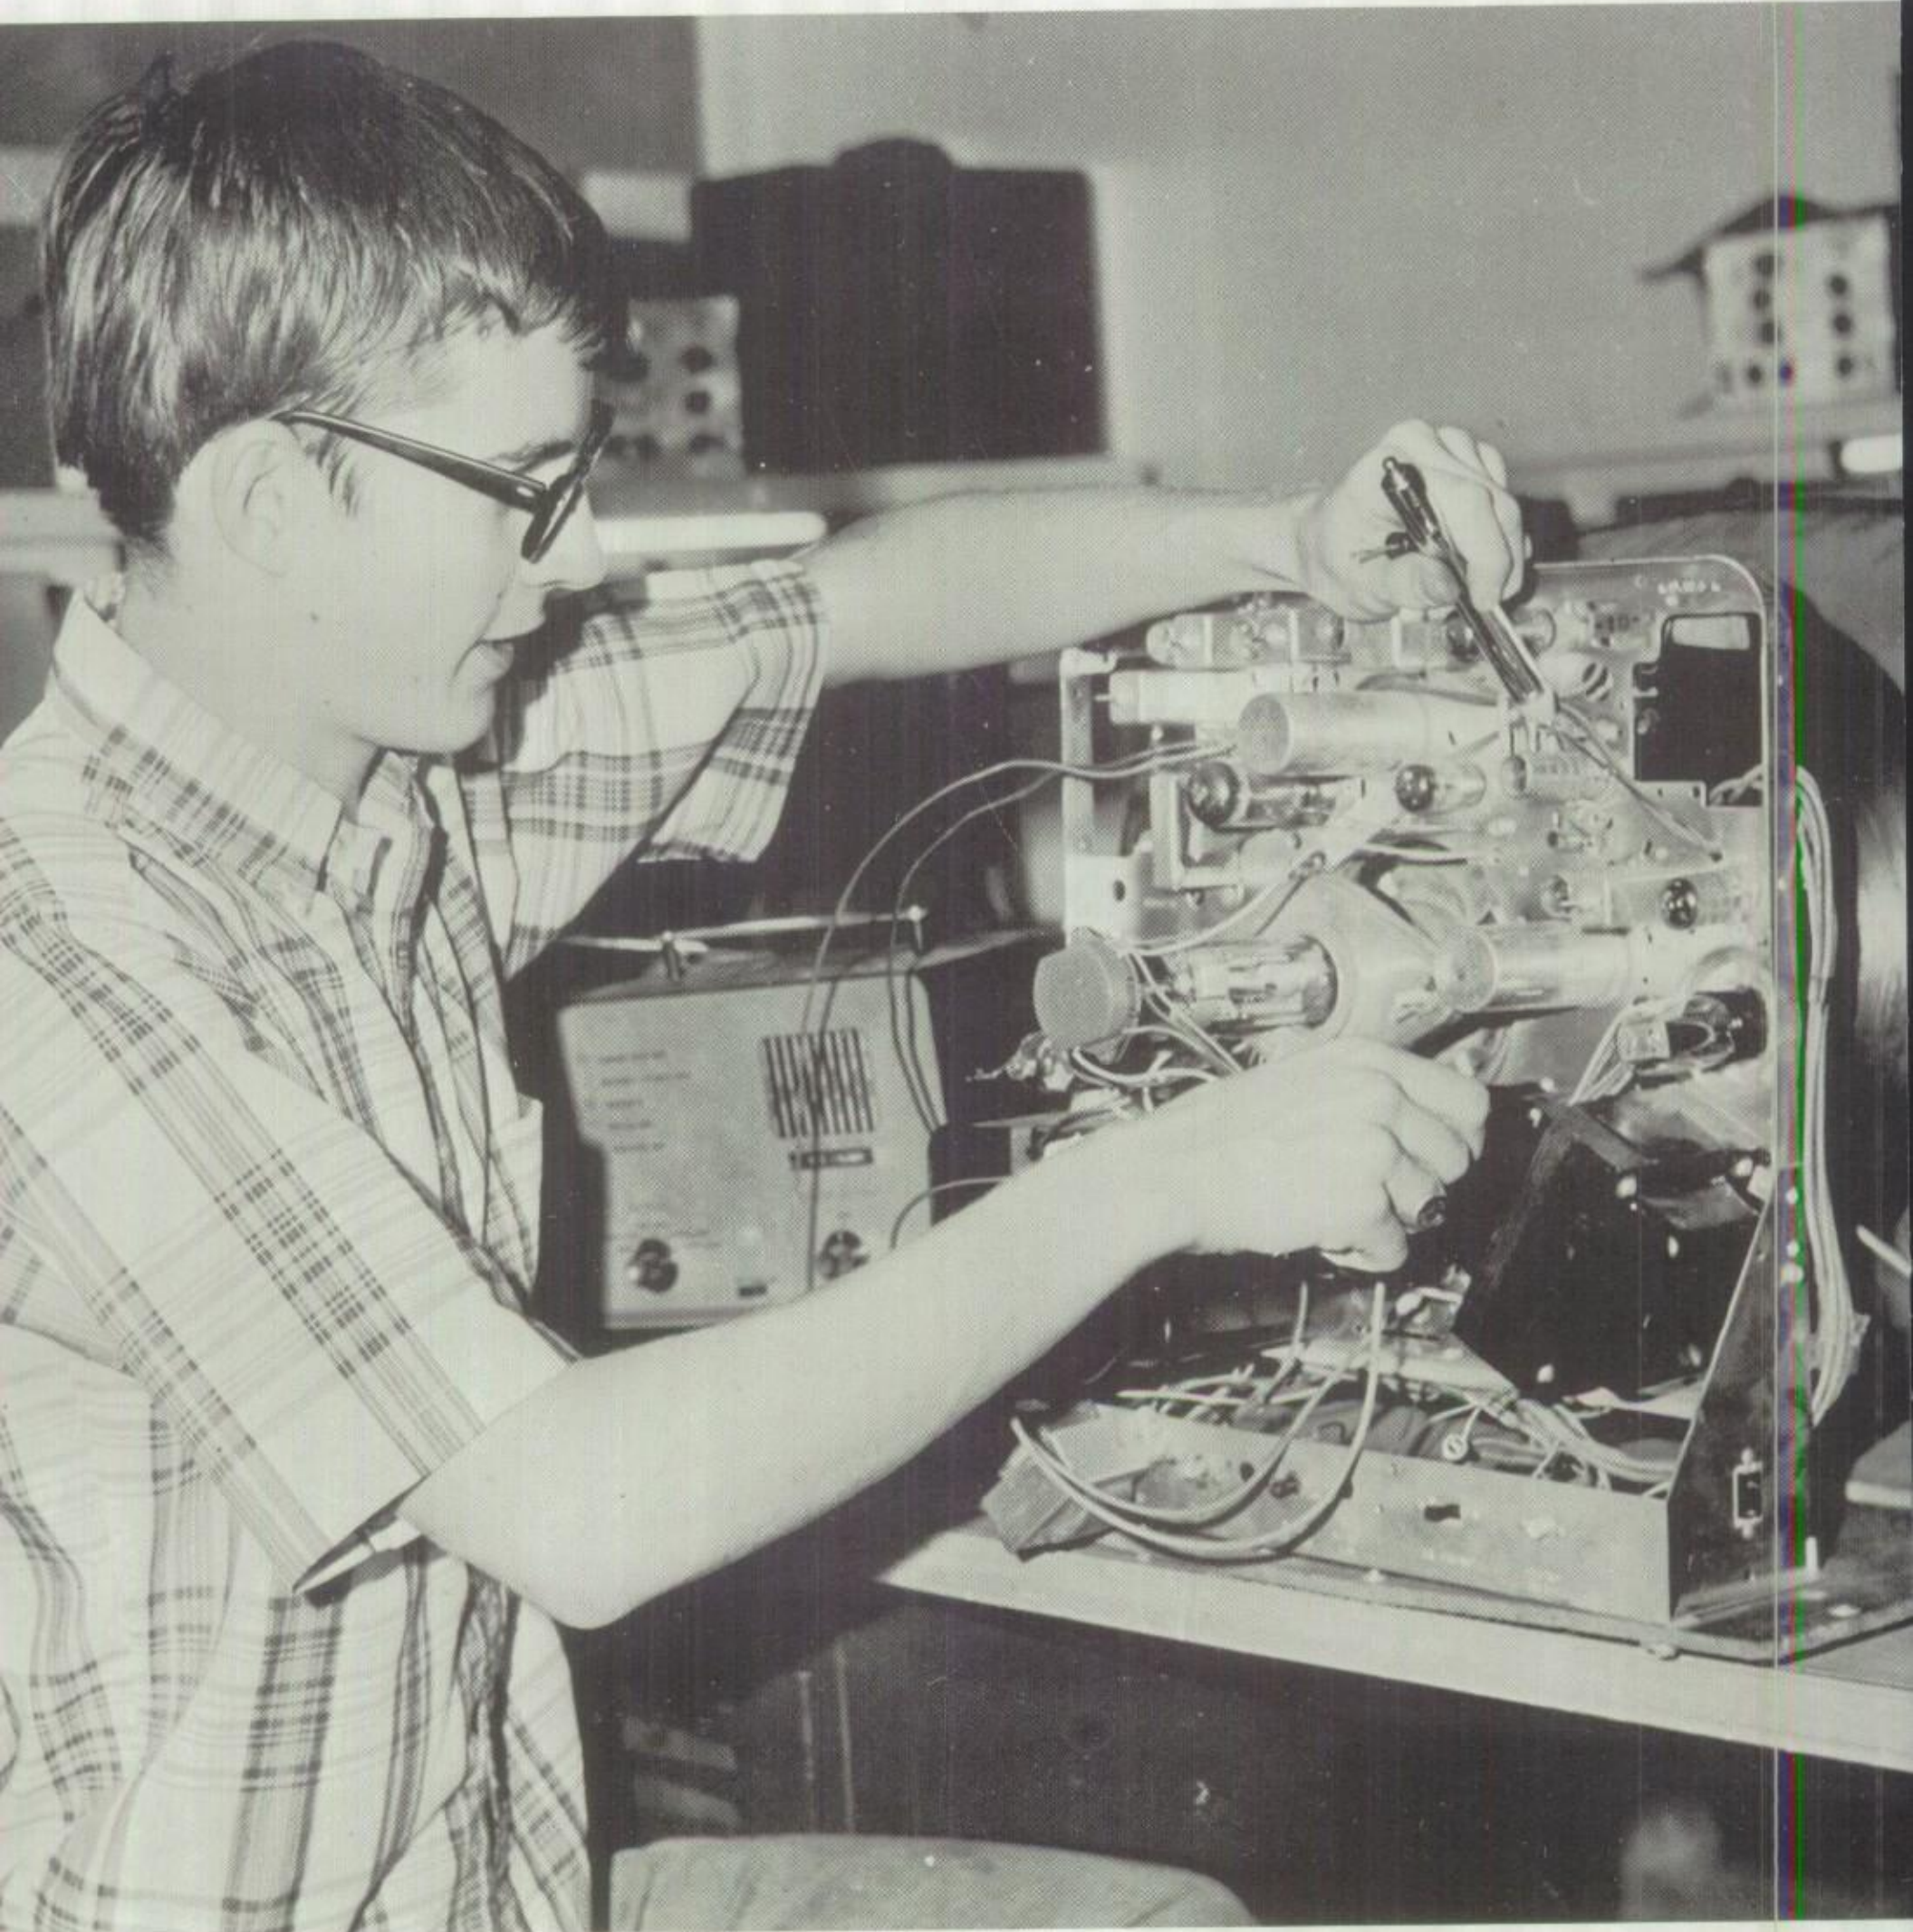

"Maybe they said next Thursday instead of today!" groans FTA president Denise Roberts as she anxiously awaits the bus to take her to the club's State Convention.

Chess, electronics make timely clubs

Sponsored by Mr. Charles Wilson, the Electronics Club began its second year at Monterey. The time consuming activity has sparked the interests of many boys to a possible future vocation. With the guidance of instructors and guest speakers, the boys have learned both old and new techniques to help them in their field.

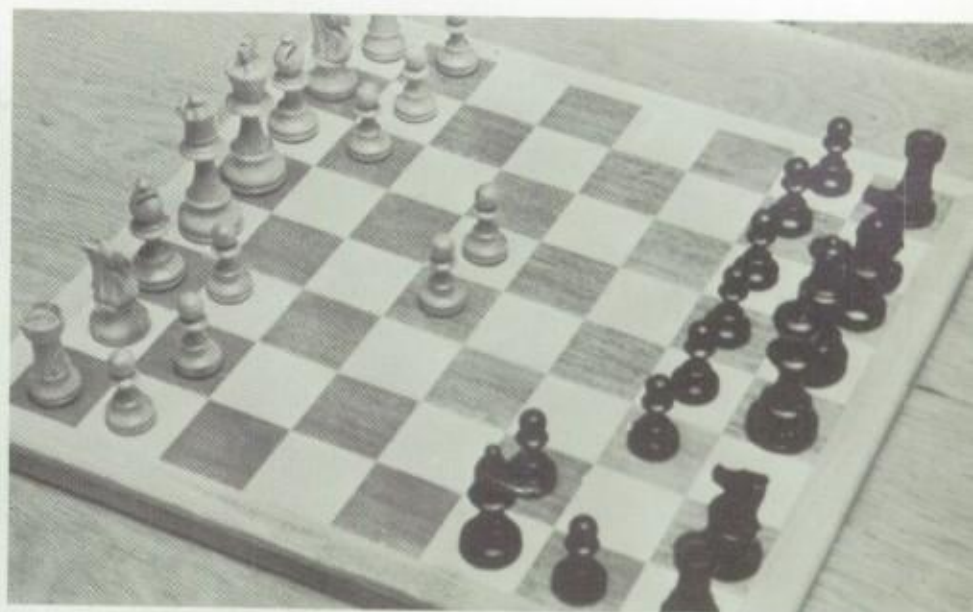

Different from the vocational Electronics Club is the recreational Chess Club, sponsored by Mr. Donald Ricky. Requiring plenty of time and quietness the club is supported by many boys. It is the perfect escape for a quiet, studious person from everyday confusion.

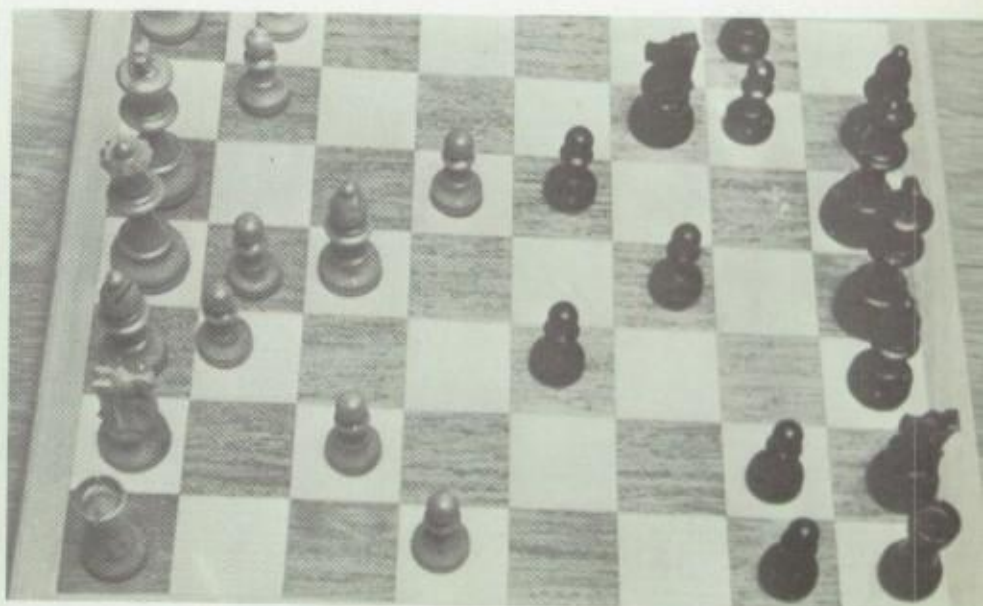

Testing his skill, senior Shawn Hailey tries his hand at repairing this television set.

Fearing a crucial end to the game, Pat looks on as Bill moves again.

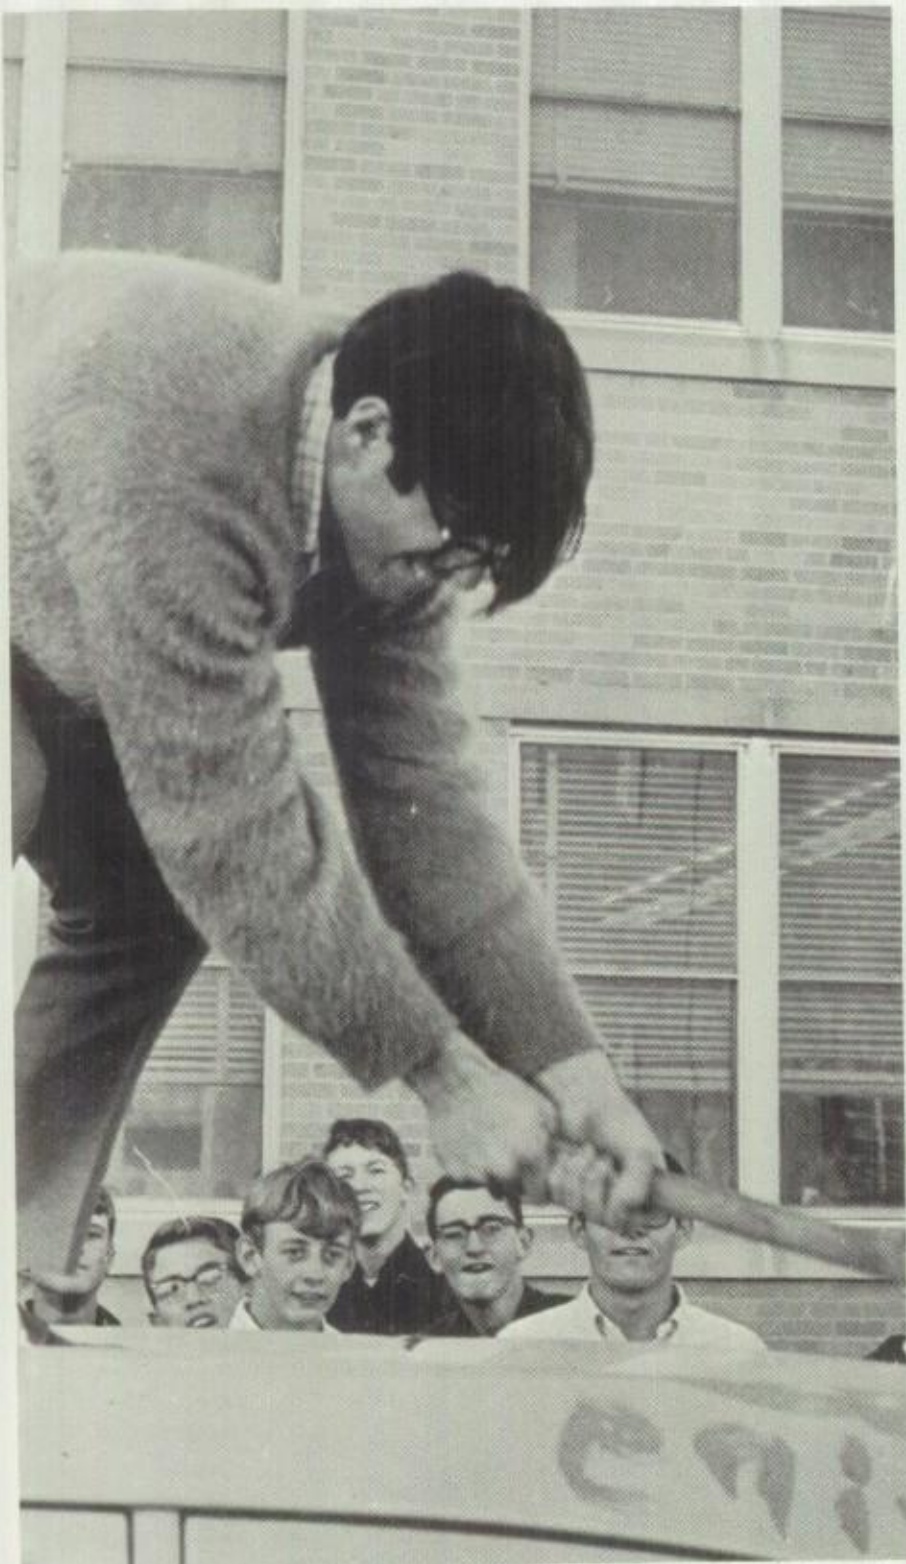

"He did it! Another checkmate!" says Pat while congratulating Bill on his fine victory.

Giving their little Latin friends a whirl on the circular swing, Luciano Perez and Larry Seals donate their time for the Spanish Club service project.

Crash! Bang! Boom! With all his heart and might, Claude Freeman pounds out his emotions at the Spanish Club car bash.

Choosing a game appropriate for a Chinese auction, Laura Belden and the Toy Box manager select Chinese checkers.

After all donations are gathered, Stefanie Solnick begins the task of sorting the prizes.

Foreign language clubs conduct car bash, sale

Promoting understanding and friendship between students and Spanish speaking nations, Los Buenos Vecinos presented speakers and entertainment for Spanish club members. A car bash supplemented school spirit and raised funds for the club. For a service project the LBV planned and gave a party at Guadalupe Center. Senior Barbara Upshaw served as club president.

Based on the culture of a nation across the Atlantic, Les Parisians, commonly known as the French club, presented life abroad through films, speakers and records. For a change in pace, club members viewed a film in French. An initiation party was held so that new members could become acquainted with the club and its officers. Climaxing the year's activities, a Chinese auction was held. A scholarship from the funds raised at the auction was presented to a senior student at the close of the year.

"No fair peeking," says Ann Bruffey as David Dea draws the lucky number at the French Club Chinese auction.

fully searching for that last penny, Tony Dunn reassures Simmons he has enough money for that cupcake.

Spotting the photographer as his next victim, Gary King sells a program to raise funds for the Latin Club.

Taking a break from their language studies, German club members Sharon Lindsey and Nan Coffman enjoy American hot dogs and cokes at Der Wienerschnitzel.

Having serious doubts about the whole thing, Biff Phillips suffers egg and shaving lotion at the SPQR initiation.

'Cleopatra', bake sales fill club treasuries

SPQR, the MHS Latin Club, linked the present with the past through programs and projects. Twice a month members assembled to hear speakers, see slides or discuss business. By selling football programs and showing the film Cleopatra, the club raised funds for scholarships given to two deserving seniors. A trip to the state convention in Austin highlighted club activities.

Organized to promote German, Der Wandervogel presented guest speakers and films. At a Christmas party members sampled German food to tie their studies in with the culture of Germany today. A bake sale was held to raise funds. Mrs. Josephine Jardine served as sponsor.

"Et one, Brute?" asks Cheryl Garrett, queen of Saturnalia, and Sharon Linker, slave, as they feed Sam Erwin.

Enjoying the confidence that comes from accomplishment, initiate Beverly Barrett receives her pen from NHS president, Brooks Barr, during ceremonies in the fall.

Mr. Wayne Dickey serves NHS as a congenial and capable sponsor.

Slave sale, car washes supplement NHS funds

Honoring students who excel in academic fields, encouraging the qualities of high standards and providing programs to broaden students' educational opportunities are the purposes of the National Honor Society. New members meeting the high standards of character, scholarship, leadership and service were initiated during the fall and spring semesters. Each year the club presents scholarships to two outstanding senior members. Funds for the scholarships were raised through slave sales, program sales and car washes. NHS also sponsored a College Night, when Lubbock students had the opportunity to talk with college representatives. Mr. Wayne Dickey and Mrs. Nancy Crouch sponsored the club.

"Slave for a day" Connie Ray displays her qualifications to prospective buyer Mr. Bill Bigham at the slave sale.

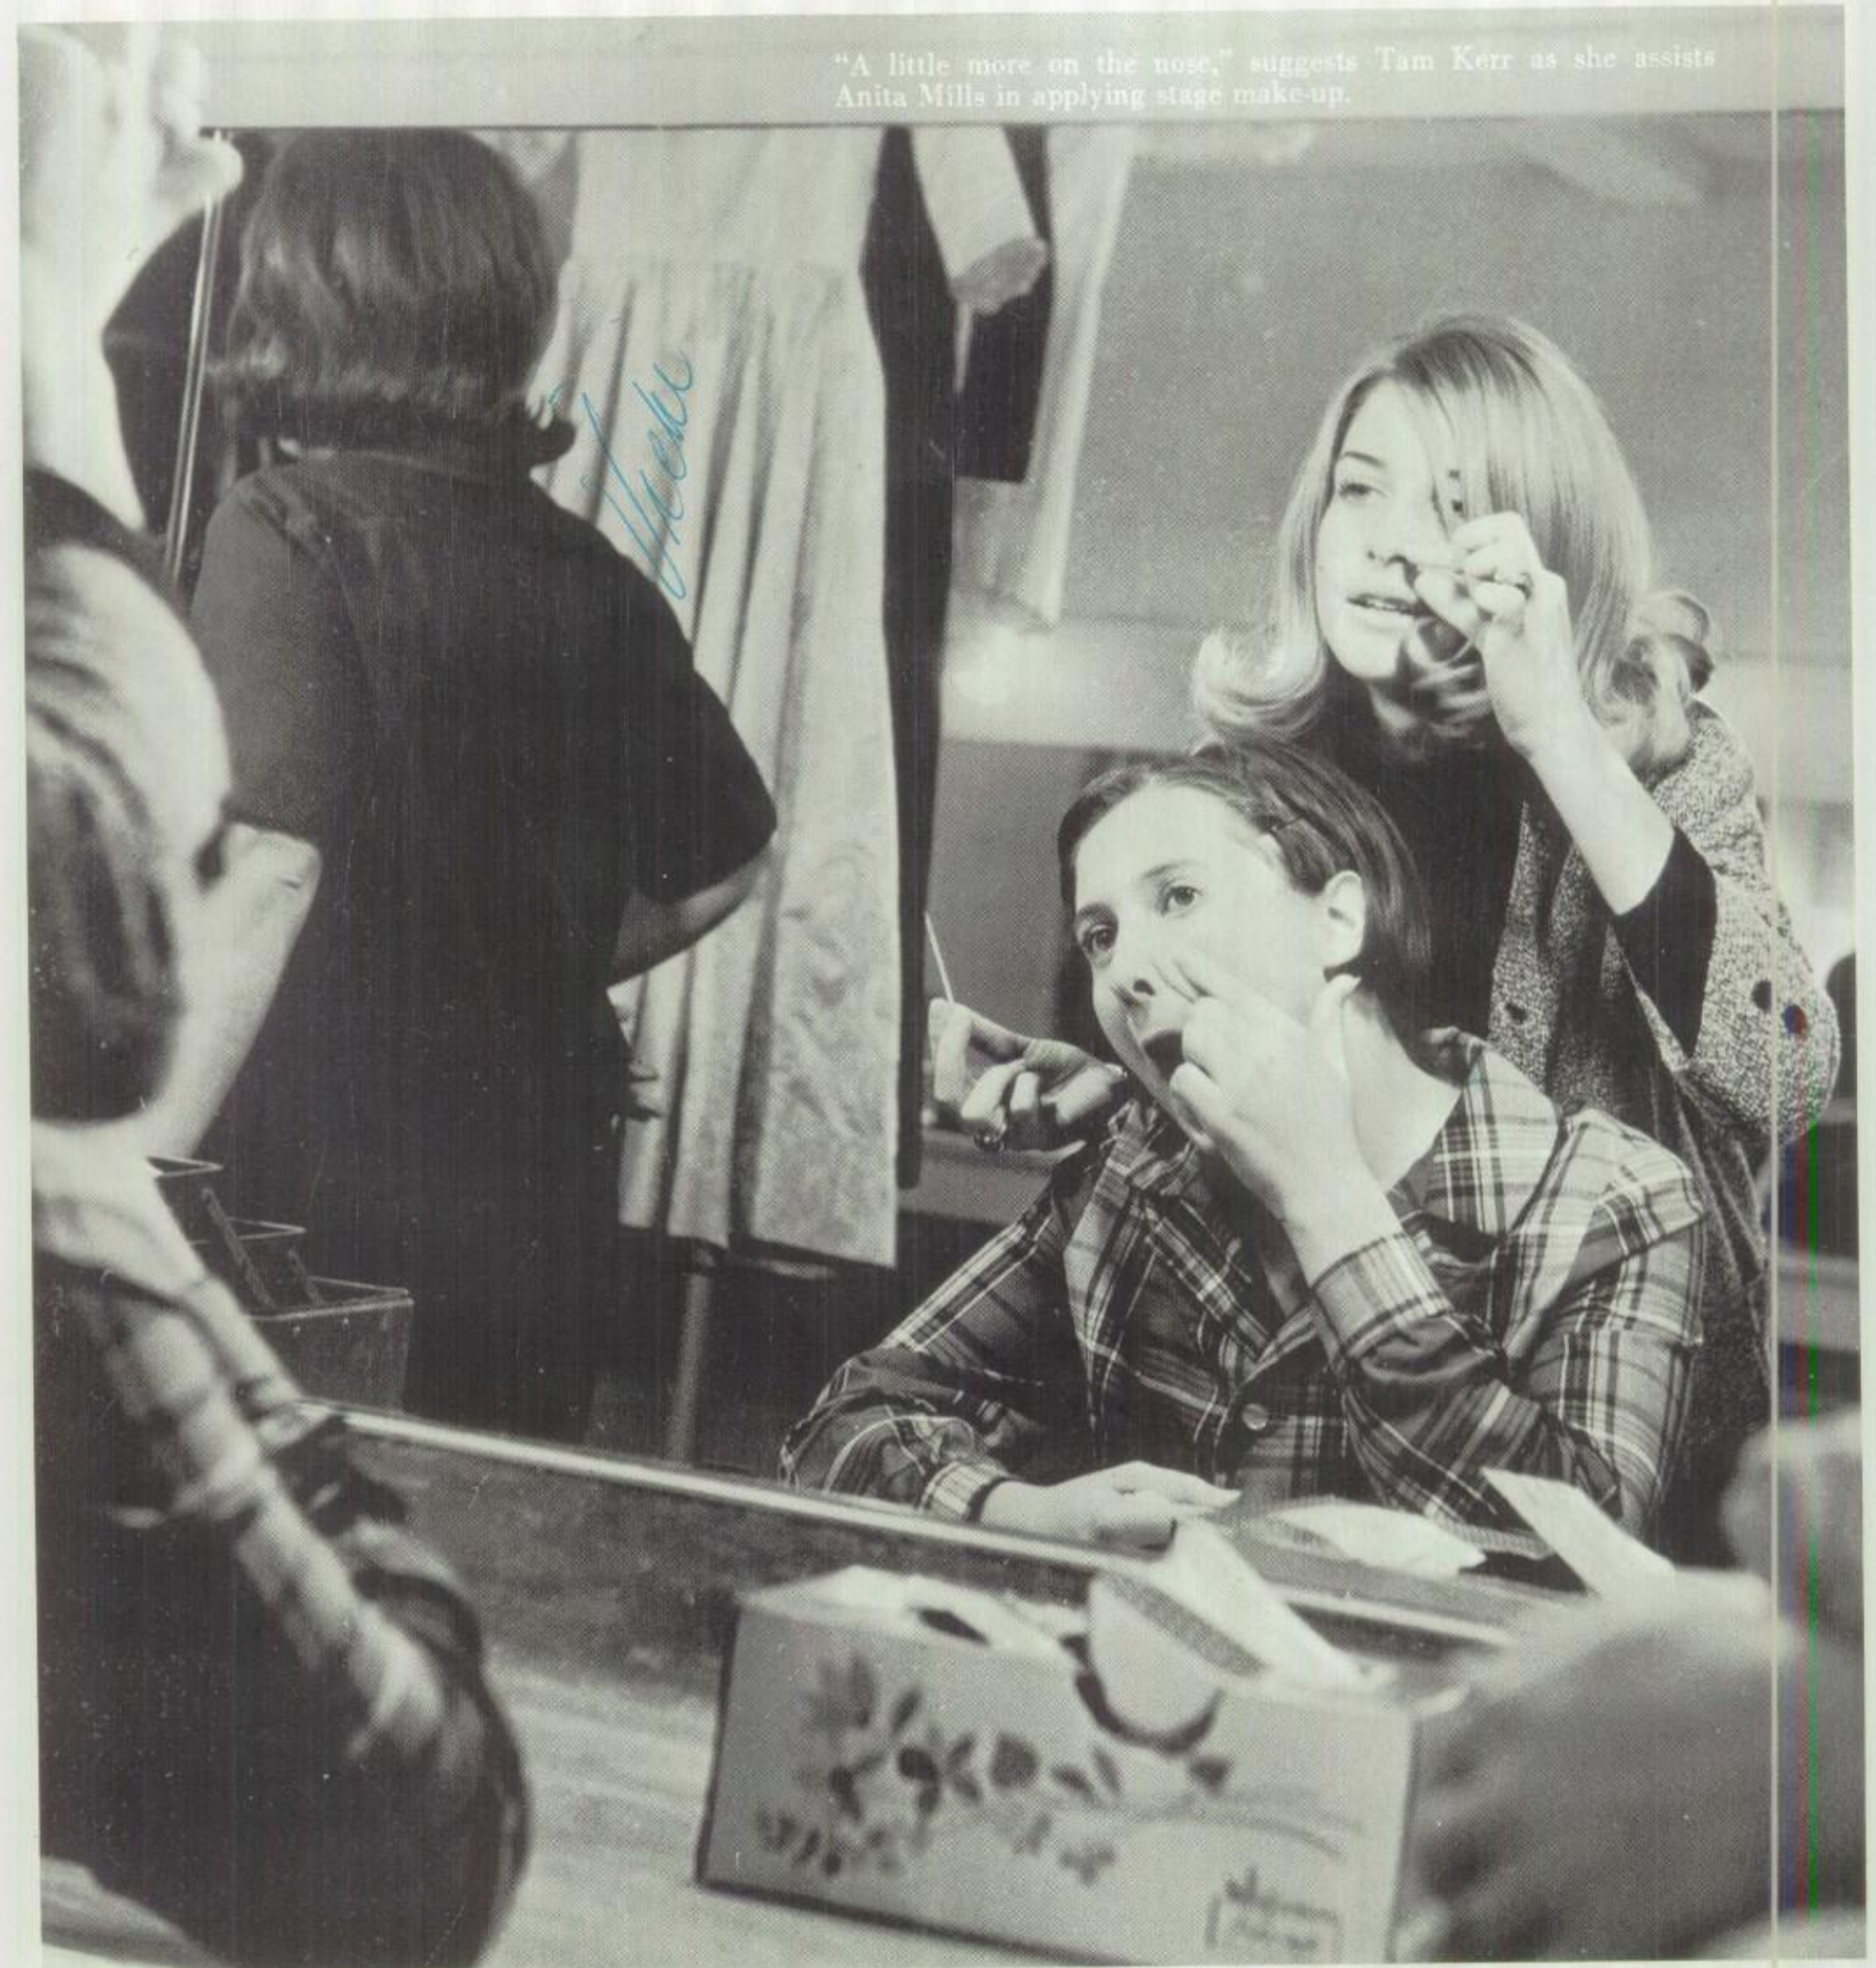

Burning that midnight oil, Jean Hargrave strives for that gold seal on her diploma.

Backstage action insures onstage hit

In MHS plays productions classes this year, it was not all play for actors and actresses. From the preparation of the props, which included painting sets, repairing costumes and correcting lighting problems, to setting the stage, every member of the cast had a job. National Thespians was a society of these entertainers with the common aim of advancing and improving behind the scene action and onstage acting for future success in their play productions for MHS. In between theatrical presentations such as the Christmas assembly and the Senior Play, other activities of the organization included an initiation, a contest play and an awards banquet. Mr. D. M. Howell, sponsor, directed club activities.

"A little more on the nose," suggests Tam Kerr as she assists Anita Mills in applying stage make-up.

Diligently working, Sherida Billingsley and Gary Halbert help construct the set for Rapunzel.

Checking to see if everyone on stage can be heard, Charlotte Hopper waits for backstage instructions.

Playing charades at the National Thespians' initiation held in December, Vicki Taylor tries to guess the skit presented by initiates Larry Horst, Gary Hudspeth, Sharon Rafferty and Nancy Cerey.

"Don't count your chickens before they hatch," thinks Larry Decker as he gathers eggs and inspects his young chickens.

To prevent eye damage to his sheep, Steve Hunt clips away its hair while Steve Lindley steadies the animal.

Aggies raise, sell, eat rare academic benefits

Through daily studies in class and actual experience at the Lubbock Ag Farm, Future Farmers of America learned the techniques of farming and raising livestock. FFA members sold "the fruits of their labors"—eggs, chickens and sausage—to raise funds for a sweetheart banquet. After participating in area and regional contests, a quiz team on club procedures won second place in state competition. At the South Plains Fair and the Dallas State Fair, FFA members entered the livestock shows and were awarded ribbons. Mr. Chris Kountz and Mr. Thomas R. Neely, sponsors, instructed the boys on correct agriculture skills.

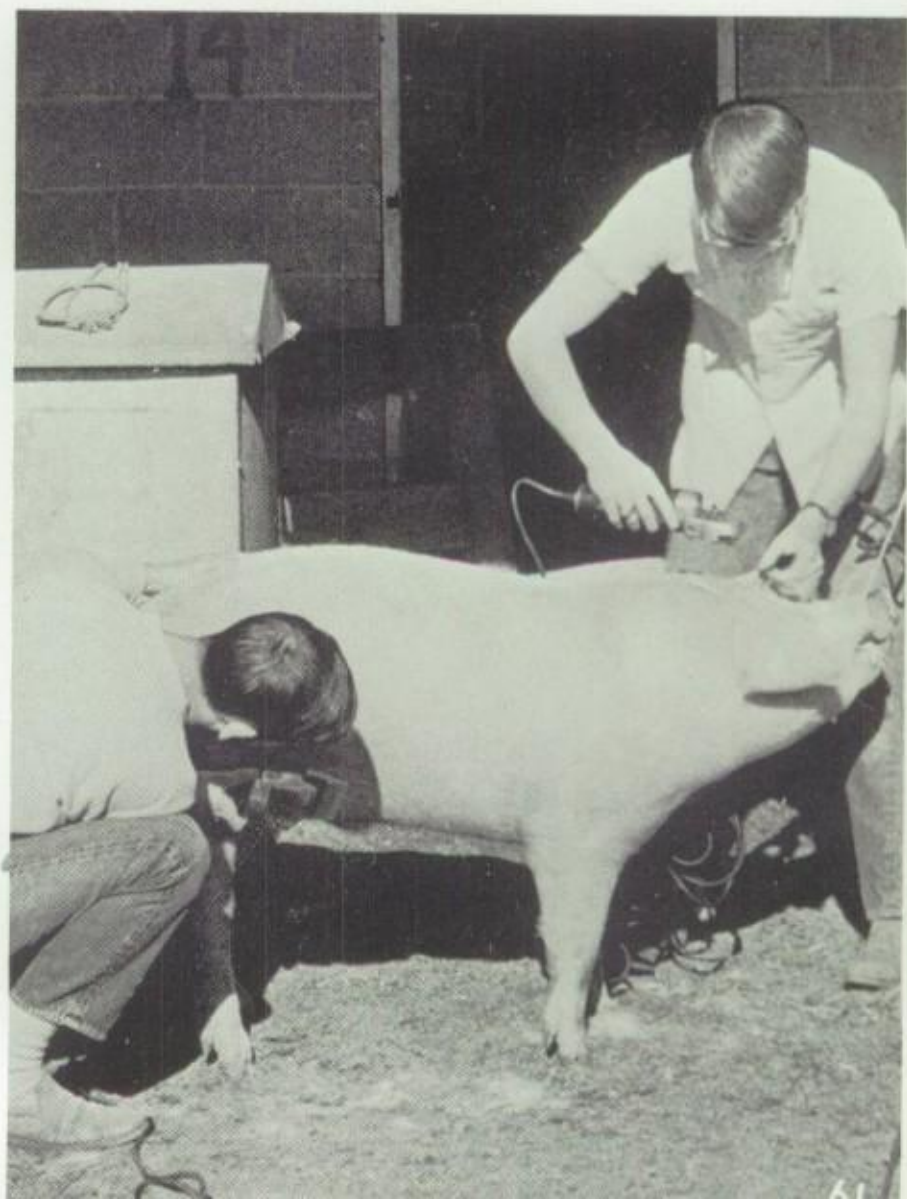

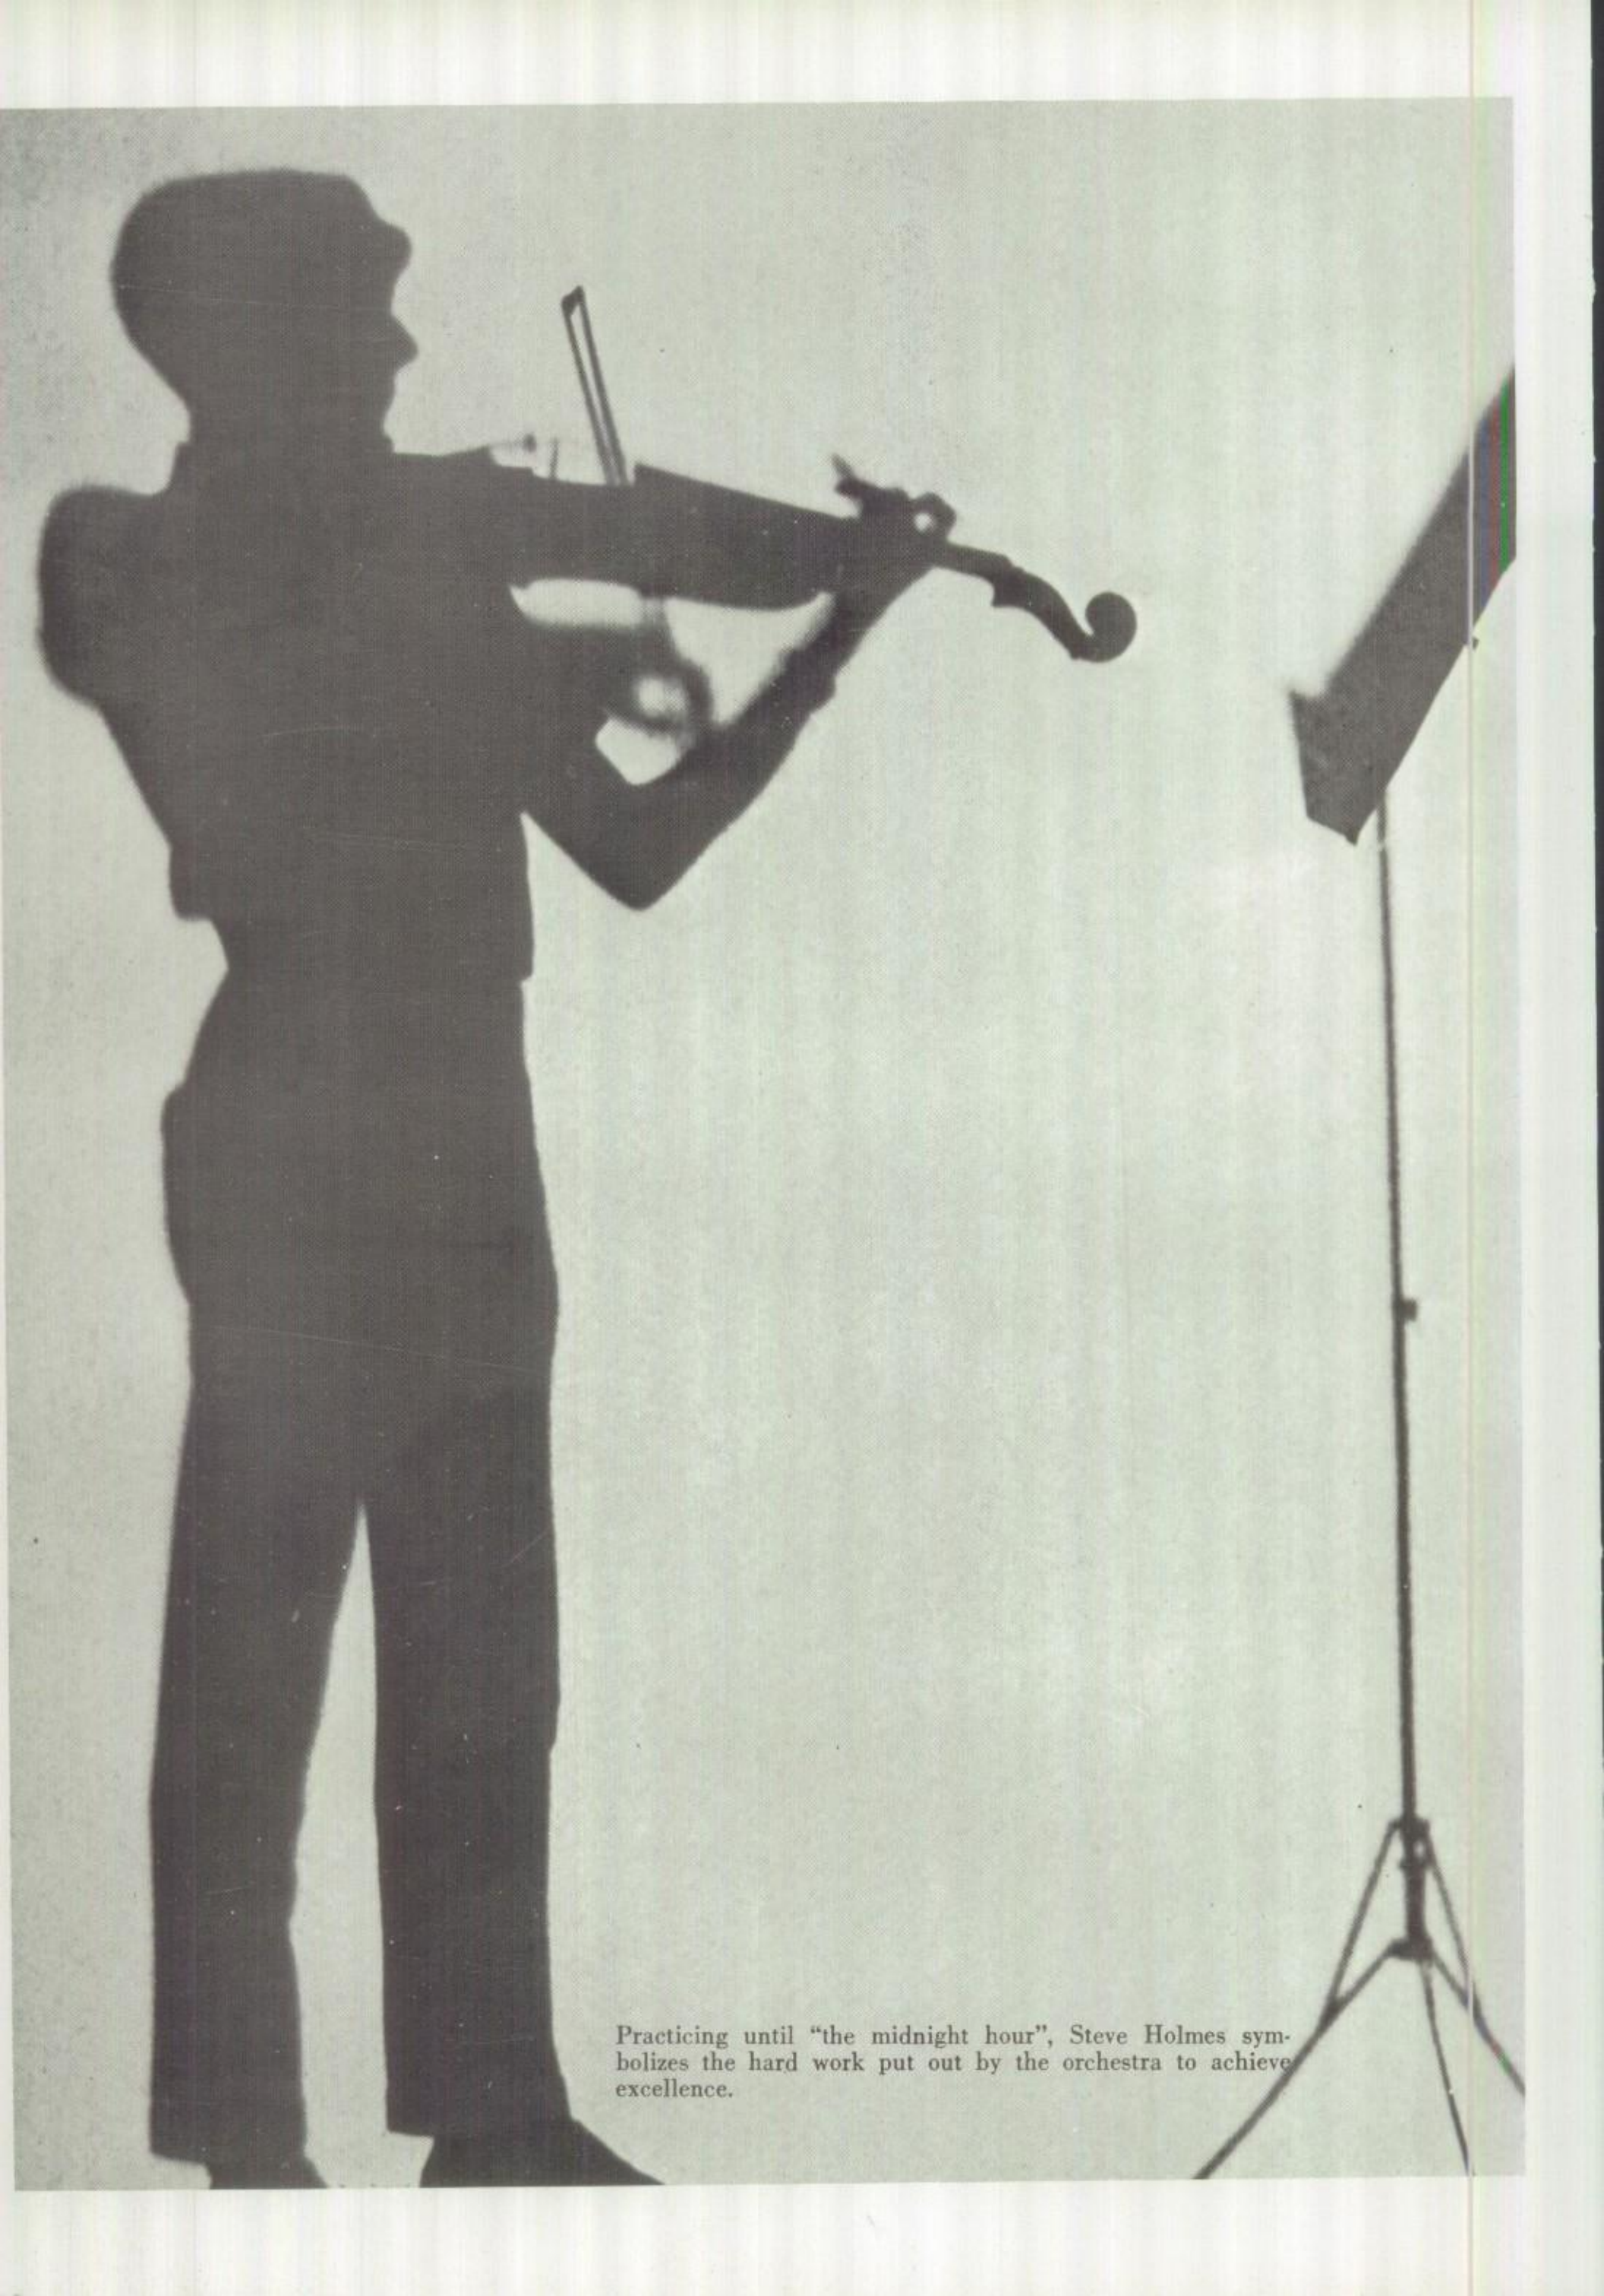

Realizing the responsibility of a daily chore, senior Don Tubbs pours grain into hog bends at the Lubbock Ag Farm.

Preparing his sheep for final judging, Grant Gardner catches it to be sheared and groomed.

Improving a hog's appearance for exhibit, Tommy Cooke and Robert Page groom their animal.

Practicing until "the midnight hour", Steve Holmes symbolizes the hard work put out by the orchestra to achieve excellence.

Auditioning Andy Seaver, Suzy Minor selects club members to perform at the Musicians' Guild meeting.

Enjoying the simple strains of folk music, Musicians Guild members concentrate on the rhythm.

Forgetting the pressures of school, Margaret McBrayer, Debbie Henderson, Larry Crenshaw and Nan Coffman enjoy pizzas at a party sponsored by the Musicians' Guild.

Performers encourage use of musical talents

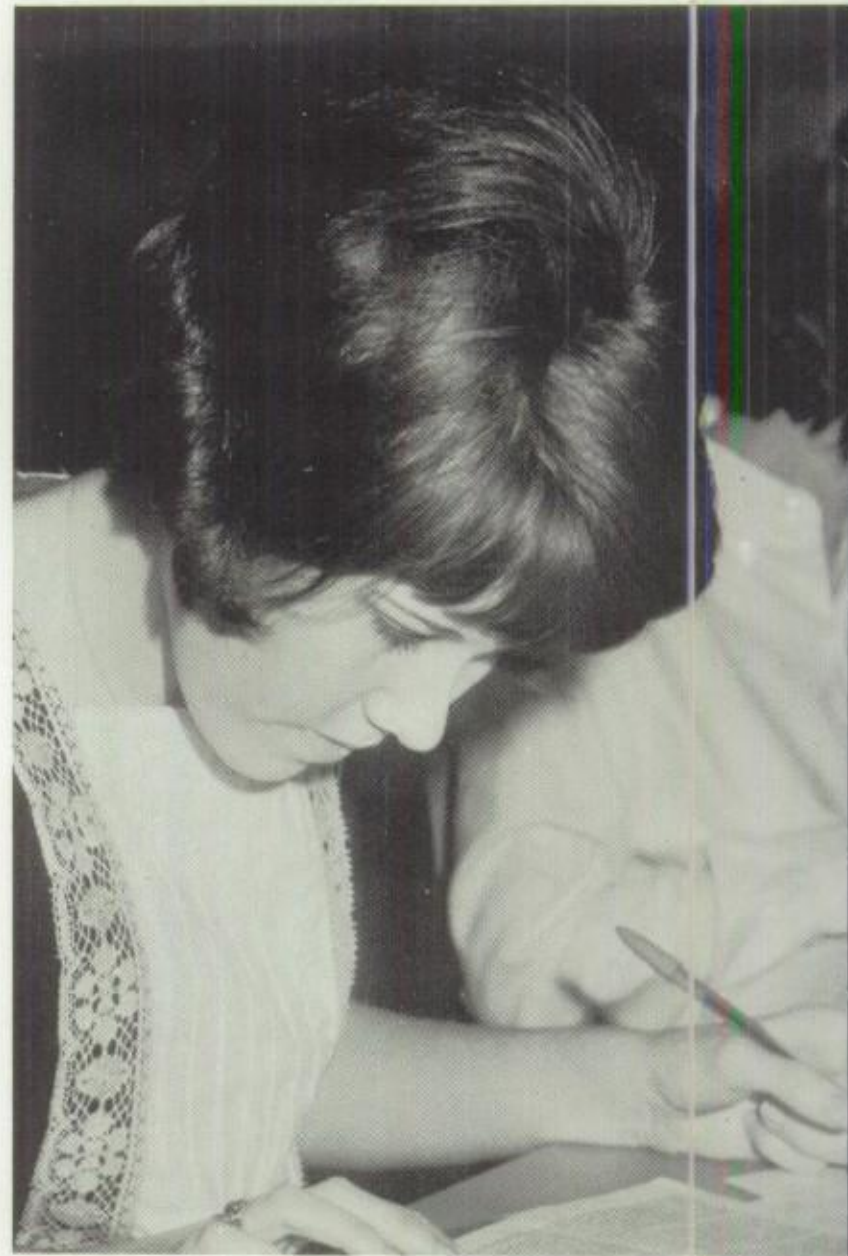

Through guest entertainers, the Musicians' Guild acquainted its members with an assortment of musical styles. Programs included singers, string quartets and the Tech stage band. At the close of the year outstanding club members were sponsored to attend band or orchestra camps to be held in the summer. President Larry Crenshaw and Program Chairman Gerald Purdy led the club in its activities.

As the study of law and patriotism goes hand in hand, it seems quite appropriate that debate club member Brian Walker should raise and lower the school flag.

Knowing that research is necessary if one is to be a success in any type of speech contest, Jan Jackson works on her extemp work.

Pre-Law club officers meet Reed Quilliam, one of the many speakers who aided them in their investigation of their chosen field.

Tournaments pay off for speech students

With all of the time spent in rehearsals, an onlooker might wonder what the performers receive in return. Whether in forensics or oral interpretation or whatever the section in NFL, tournaments and contests compensate total hours practiced. Contributing much to the school, the community and the nation these clubs enable future articulate citizens to analyze the complicated issues of the day, organize their thoughts on those issues and express themselves clearly when faced with the question, "What do you think about . . .?"

Another organization involved in the study of communication is the Pre-Law club. The club heard speakers from the legal field at their meetings.

Drawing slips stating the topic is only the beginning of much work necessary for a team to make the grade in a speech tournament.

Perhaps Robert Carlton is wondering, as he and Denise Roberts read, if practice really will make the selection perfect for the oral interpretation contest.

Morning Watch members found that prayer added a personal warmth to the friendships made during the year.

"I am only kidding," chuckles President Gary Hudspeth as he pretends to drop a block on the construction of Social Chairman Ann Moore, Vicki Taylor and Retreat Chairman Debbie Dale at the Morning Watch Kid Party.

One of the many duties of Mrs. Betty Martin, librarian, is sponsoring the Library Club.

Library, morning watch provide 'thought food'

It's all there—adventure, instruction, romance. The only problem is how to find it? That was the purpose of library assistants. These people dedicated themselves to the world of books and for this reason they joined the Pansy Harris Library Club for needed instruction. These library assistants acquired knowledge through the club so that they might aid researchers in their hunts. This year Leigh Caskey, club vice-president, held the position of district treasurer.

Rather than searching in books, Morning Watch pursued the intangible truths of a spiritual nature. By furnishing devotional periods for the students of MHS, the purpose of Morning Watch was achieved. The Easter assembly and other projects such as the Christmas party for the day nursery, a Sweetheart banquet in February and a retreat to Ceta Canyon in the spring made up the club program.

All but covered in their work, library assistants Jane Cocanougher, Gwen Whitaker, Yolinda Calfin, Leigh Caskey, Sherry Diegel, Gay Johnston, Becky Powell, Fran Flake and Marilyn Mote pick up the world of knowledge around them.

Poetry in motion, Janie Coker, perfects her form.

Taking special care in placing her impressionistic creation, senior Susie Hall displays her painting which will be sold at the Art Club sale.

Varied club programs fit avocational needs

From the basic steps of jazz to the wild gyrations of the bugaloo, Modern Dance Club members learned the fundamentals of the art of the dance. Throughout the year local performers executed their rhythmic series of movements for club programs. Janie Coker and Margaret Whitely served the club as president.

Interested history hams were given a chance to get together through the newly-organized Jr. Historian club. Sponsored by Mr. Richard Umstot, this unique organization studied history, explored world affairs and kept up with current events.

Art club members, while not interested in the state of the political world, were most interested in the state of the artistic world. Some of their activities included a trip to the Art Mart and a sale of creative work of members.

Serving the Junior Historian Club as officers, Secretary Kitty Harris, President Chip Monk, Vice-president Ricky Baker and Reporter Becky Ellison discuss world affairs.

With concentration on her dance routine, Margaret Whitely does basic exercises for toning and coordination.

Coveted Cantores title requires dedication

Being a member of the Monterey Cantores includes much more than the prestige of having membership in the only concert choir at MHS. After admission by audition into the a capella choir, comes the long hours of practice, the tedious review of monotonous scales to perfect voice range, and the tension before a performance. The only rewards gained by the juniors and seniors who make up the Cantores are the feeling of satisfaction of a job well done, and the feeling of satisfaction at an audience well-pleased. The Cantores present two assemblies to the MHS student body, along with several seasonal concerts and performances for civic groups. Under the direction of James Ramsey a large number of choir members were chosen for membership in the all-region and all-state choirs.

Choir director James Ramsey leads the choir through a difficult number as the Cantores prepare for contest.

Auxiliary choirs provide proving ground

Providing a break from classroom routine, the MHS choirs serve as a training ground for more advanced choral work. The Sophomore choir, the Mariachis and the Junior-Senior Girls' choir participate in the annual choir contests in Canyon. The Sophomore Girls' choir, the Mariachis and the Men's choir spend hours in practice in hope of being accepted by the Cantores. Mr. James Ramsey coordinates the choir program.

Bandsmen earn funds for El Paso bus trip

Spending the last days of summer working to earn enough money for a bus trip to El Paso; marching for hours when no one else was at school; enjoying the fun of a pre-pep rally session; all these are the things that make the '67-'68 MHS band successful. Under the direction of Mr. Rex Shelton, band members spend hours learning and practicing new formations and routines. The band received a "2" rating at contest in Canyon. Contest numbers were Barnum and Bailey's "Favorite," "On the Square," "Fever," "On Parade March" and "1812 Overture."

Real agony is often reflected in the face of Rex Shelton, band director, as he polishes a performance.

Sophomore band plays minor role

Always conscious that they are taking second place in the department, sophomore band members look toward next year. Fifty-five members strong, the B-band spends its time developing the skills and finesse which will be needed for the next two years when they will no longer play a minor role.

The sophomores participated in several football games at half-time and in local parades. The B-band competed in the annual University Interscholastic League contests and received a "3" in marching competition.

'68 Orchestra begins new trend in music

Students and faculty at Monterey High School were introduced to a totally new concept of high school orchestral music. The audiences received a pleasant surprise when the orchestra began with, "I Want to Hold Your Hand" rather than the classical music by Mozart or Beethoven. Hoping to appeal to every group of music lovers, the orchestra played numbers ranging from classical to pop. "It All Started with the Beatles", the theme of the annual orchestra assembly was evidence of the transition. Rather than holding fascination for a select group of admirers the orchestra held an appeal for the entire school. Under the direction of Mitchell Zablotny, the orchestra began a year which would best be described by the words of Principal B. J. Randles ... "great!"

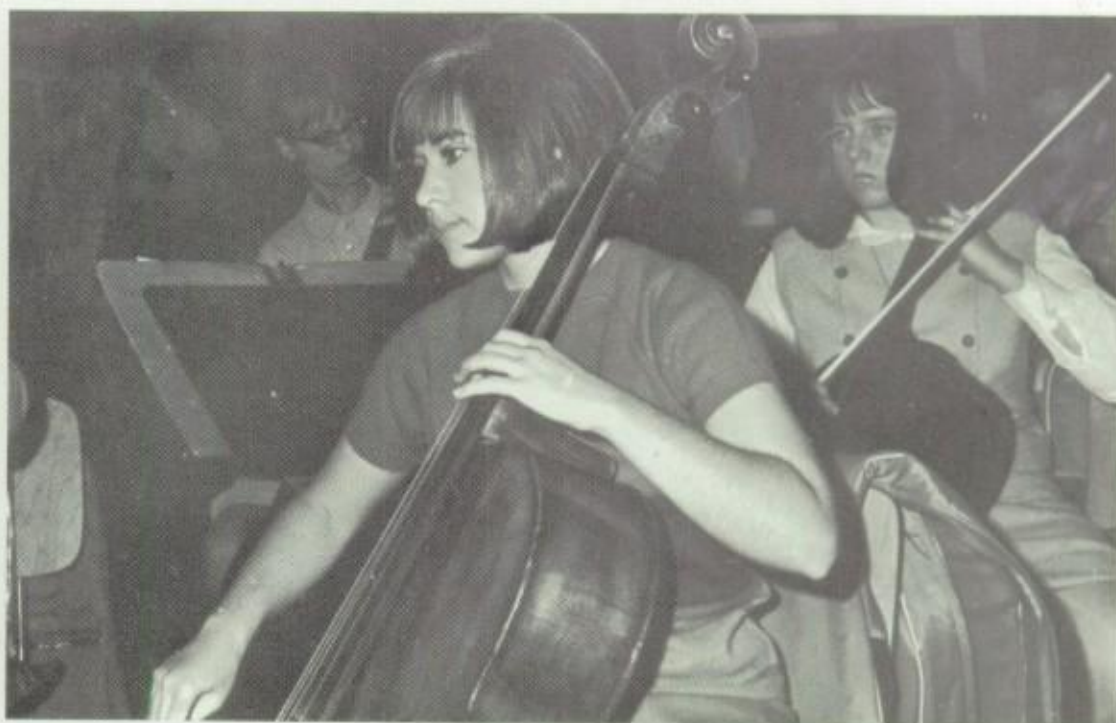

With an ear tuned for a sour note, Mitchell Zablotny, orchestra director, guides the orchestra through a number.

MIRROR records 'lucky 13th' year

An editor such as Amy Hammer sometimes finds it difficult to "grin and bear it."

Seeking to present the news impartially and to comment fairly on issues of the day, the MONTEREY MIRROR underwent a year of metamorphosis. Under the direction of Editor Amy Hammer, a staff of 26 people experimented with tabloid makeup, new name plate designs, and depth reporting to seek to keep abreast of new trends in American journalism. A unique first period class of 16 girls mastered not only the fundamentals of the profession, but managed to have a ton of fun besides. Karen Knight served as news editor, Marsha Jones as feature editor, and Jerry Teague spent a second year as sports editor. Copy was edited by Cathy Vernon, and Linda Ellis managed the darkroom. Students do all the writing, editing, lay-outs and photography. The paper is commercially printed by a local firm. A consistent winner in national competition, the MIRROR aimed for another All-American rating in the spring. Early in the fall, the paper won a UIL citation for an outstanding feature on wrestling.

Keeping abreast of the news from other schools, senior staff members scan exchange papers.

Three journalists, Linda Ellis, Jerry Teague and Mike Cartwright, admire a UIL citation for a MIRROR feature.

Being a perfectionist sometimes handicaps News Editor Karen Knight when she works with sophomore reporters.

Ad sales soar with saleswomen like Debbie Lindsey, Linda Hill, Patti Robinson and Carolyn Fralin.

Even an ordinary day can become an ordeal for a busy feature editor such as Marsha Jones.

Posting the corrected copy of the latest MONTEREY MIRROR, copyreader Cathy Vernon bears a satisfied smile.

'68 Book paints Plainsman portrait

On September 1, the 1968 Chaparral was nothing more than 336 blank pages bound with a very blank, colorless cover. It took 40 people exactly six months to fill those pages with words and pictures and design a cover. Some of them took pictures, some planned pages, some wrote words. They all worked under the direction of Editor Kelly Tower and her assistant, Susan Preston. All of the work was done by students in the department except for the actual printing. The cover was designed by Suzie Hall, a Monterey art student. Seventy-five per cent of the staff of the 1968 Chaparral was inexperienced. Many of the major staff positions were filled by people who had no experience at all in the Publications department. In years past the Chaparral has won top ratings from national press services, but the only reward the staff seeks year after year is enthusiastic approval from the student body.

Bookkeepers Brenda Waters and Nancy Willis look over an exchange newspaper with Monterey Ex, Mary Alice Dyer.

Wishing that ideas were as tangible as this giant bulb, Editor Kelly Tower tries to inspire a lagging staff.

Looking toward a future in journalism after graduation, senior editors and staff members Beth Berry, Susan Preston, Pat Chapman, Jan Tillery, Penny White, Gwen Holloway, Cindy Hamilton and Peggy Sheffield survey a Tech yearbook.

Lack of communication is often cited as a major problem in American high schools. In an effort to overcome this problem, Monterey High School sponsors a strong Student Council organization. Each year class officers are elected in proportion to class enrollment. This year creative, enthusiastic Student Body officers Tommy White, Kim Gilbreath, Larry Wharton, Judy Schmidt and Penny White helped approximately 75 class officers act as effective liaison between students and administration.

Plainsmen even score in non-district action

In their opening game, the highly rated Monterey Plainsmen were upset by the Coronado Mustangs 40-14. Plainsmen mistakes caused the team to lose the football seven times. Monterey hit the scoreboard early in the second period with a 36 yard scoring pass from Billups to May. The third quarter was dominated by the Mustangs and not until the final period were the Plainsmen able to score. An 81 yard drive was ended when Barnard went over from two yards out. Gamble added the PAT and that ended the scoring.

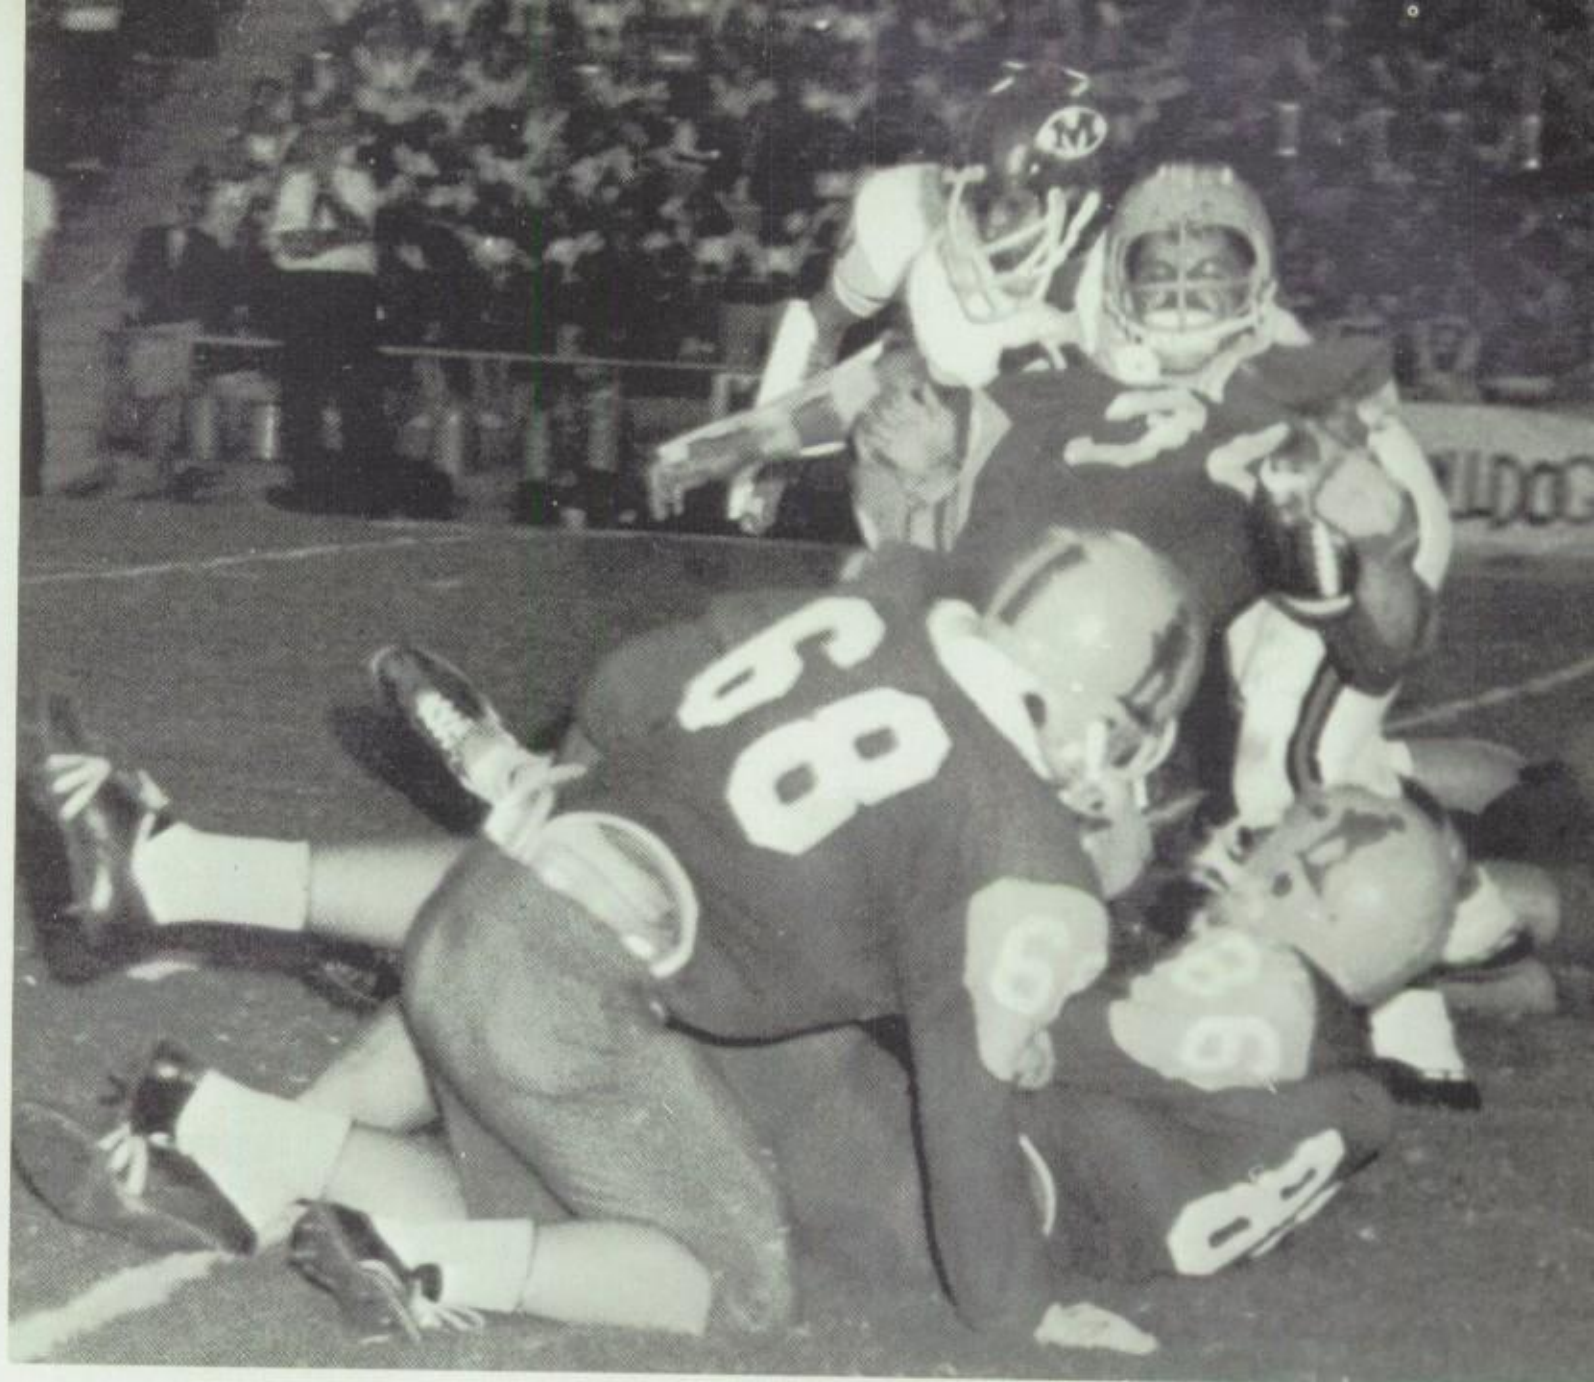

Monterey faced the fourth-ranked Permian Panthers in their second game and fell victim to both the Panthers and the clock. The Plainsmen trailed 14-0 at halftime but roared back only to fall 21-14 in the last 38 seconds. In the third period Monterey struck with a 52 yard touchdown pass from Billups to May. The Plainsmen's final seven points came on a 61 yard march that ended with a three yard run by Barnard. In the last 38 seconds Monterey took the ball on their own 14 after holding the Panthers on downs. They drove to the 37 before Billups fumbled and Permian recovered. The Panthers then ran out the clock and ended the game.

The Monterey Plainsmen sparked by the running and passing of sophomore Quarterback Bobby Lewis stormed over the undefeated Midland Bulldogs 20-7. The Plainsmen scored midway in the first period with a 19 yard touchdown pass from Lewis to Sumners. The point after failed. Second quarter play saw the Plainsmen drive 55 yards with Barnard scoring from 6 yards out. The try for two was stopped. Lewis scampered 71 yards around end for the final Plainsmen tally of the night.

The improving Monterey Plainsmen rolled over the El Paso Coronado T-Birds 39-14. Monterey opened the scoring with a 41 yard drive that was capped by a three yard pass from Lewis to Barnard. The second Plainsmen score came on Larry Huckabay's 48 yard run around end. First half scoring ended when Monterey gained possession of the ball on the Coronado 18 and Barnard went the final distance in two tries. The attempt for two was successful. Third quarter action saw the Plainsmen march 64 yards with Barnard going over from the one yard line for the score. Defensive tackle Vince Freeman intercepted a T-Bird pass and charged into the end zone 15 yards away ending the third period. The final Plainsmen tally came on a 85 yard drive with Barnard doing the honors.

Sweeping around end for short yardage, Tailback Chris Barnard outruns a Permian defender.

A wave of Coronado Mustangs converges on Quarterback Melvin Billups as he tries the middle of the line.

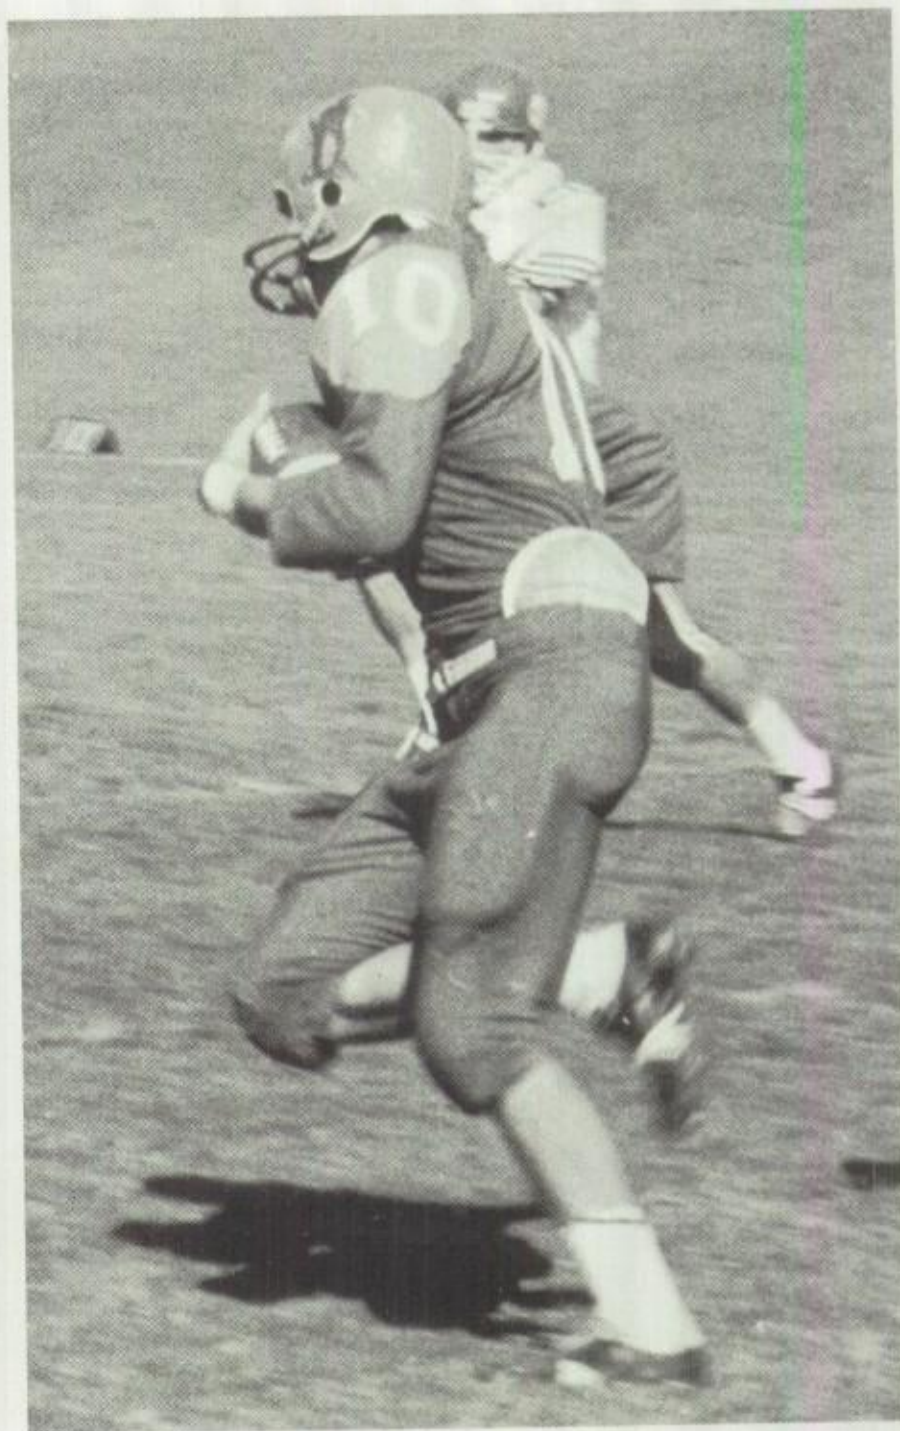

Making his first appearance as fullback, Roy Jennings finds it rough going as he is racked up at the line of scrimmage.

Bulldogs blank 'Men; MHS reaps Harvesters

Plainsmen failed to collect their third consecutive victory as the Plainview Bulldogs took home a 7-0 upset. The Plainsmen offense was unable to penetrate the Bulldog ten all afternoon despite the efforts of Chris Barnard who gained 196 yards on the ground, 26 shy of Monterey's total offense. Defensively, the Plainsmen squad made two goal line stands stopping the Bulldogs on the two and one yard lines and gathered in one Plainview fumble; however, the inconsistency of the Plainsmen offensive attack enabled the Bulldogs to break their year losing streak against the Plainsmen.

Monterey opened district competition with a 42-0 victory over the Pampa Harvesters. Monterey opened the scoring in the second quarter when they recovered a Pampa fumble at the 23 and drove in for the score with Barnard running in from two yards out for the TD. On the opening kickoff of the second half Monterey's Clark Samson returned the kick 85 yards for the score. The try for two was good. Monterey scored again in the third quarter with a 61 yard touchdown pass from Lewis to May. Gamble added the PAT.

In the fourth quarter Scott Cassel ran around end 60 yards for another Monterey tally. The point after attempt by Gamble was good. The final score of the night came when reserve corner Mikey Klatt intercepted a Pampa aerial and returned it to the Pampa five. Steve Mims scored on an off-tackle run to end the scoring.

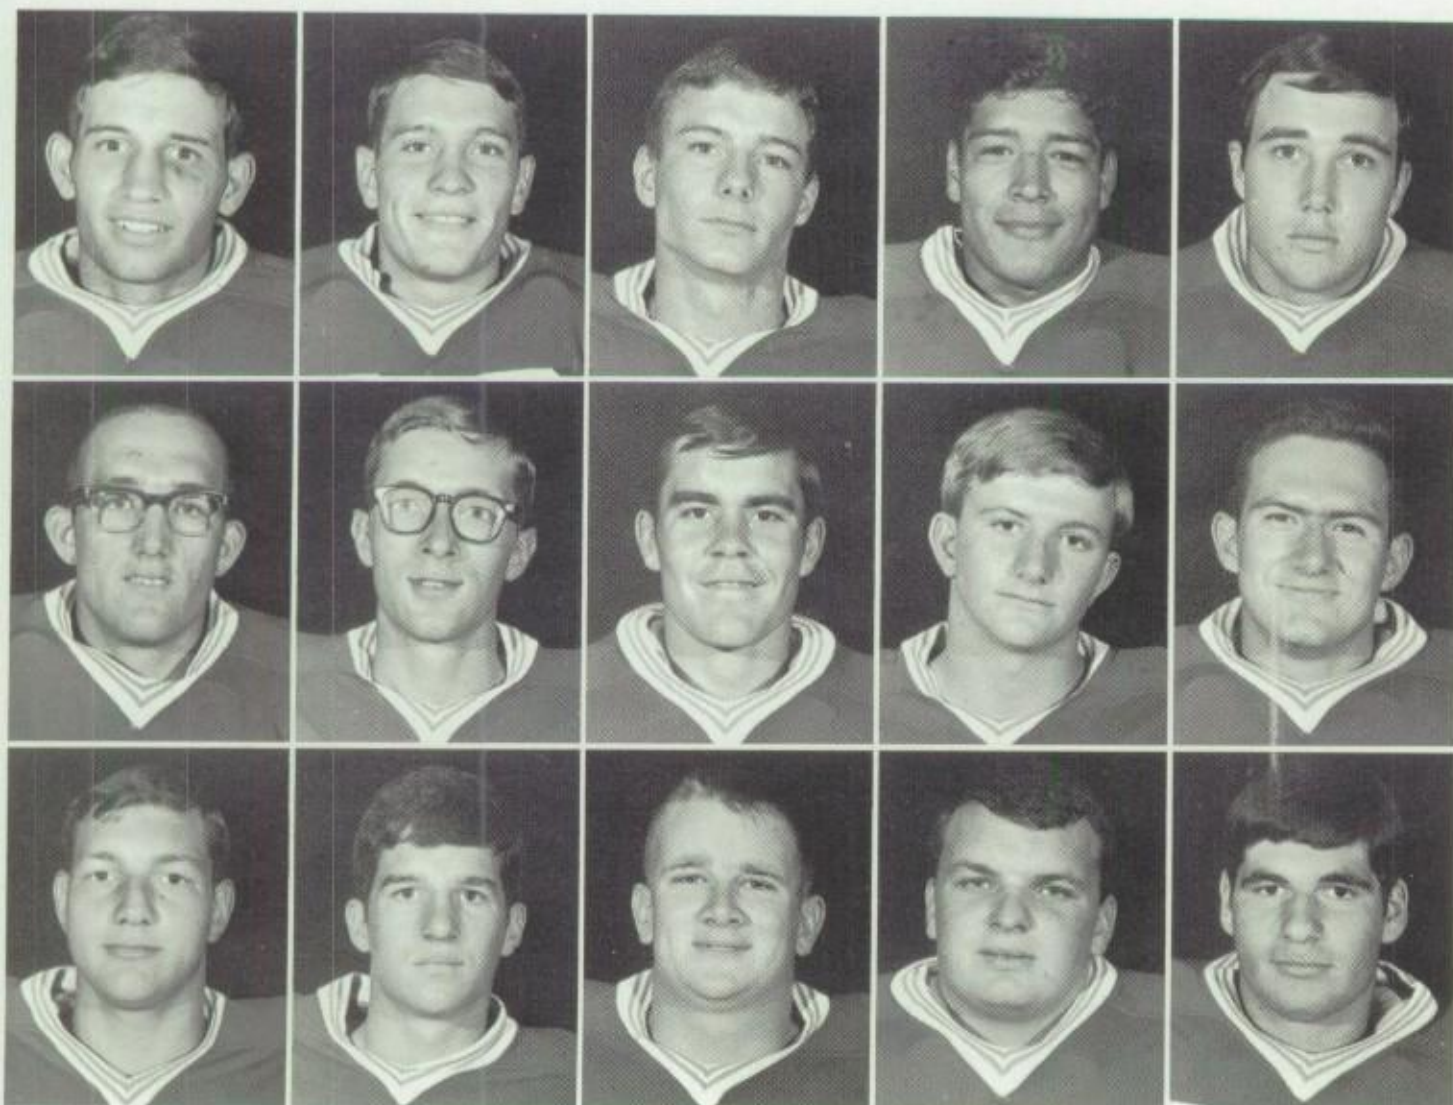

Cutting upfield for a long gain, Sophomore Quarterback Bobby Lewis, outruns the Plainview defense.

Diving for extra yardage Tailback Chris Barnard is dragged down by a Plainview Bulldog.

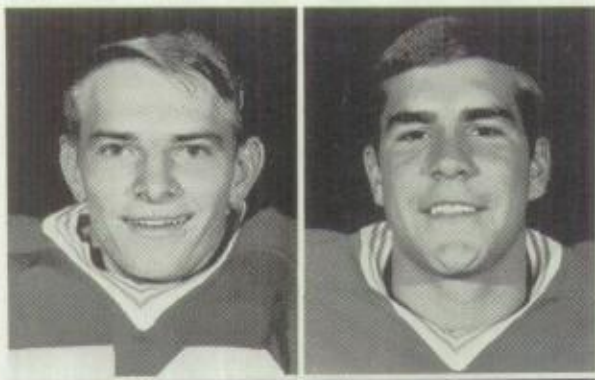

Monterey's offensive line opens a hole in the Plainview defense and Chris Barnard sprints for good yardage.

Plainsmen keep spurs, fall to AHS Sandies

Monterey blanked the Lubbock Westerners 13-0 to keep the Silver Spurs home for the second year in a row. The first half was a defensive battle and not until the third quarter were the Plainsmen able to score. Monterey marched 83 yards for the touchdown after receiving the second half kickoff. The big play of the drive was a 54 yard scoring pass from Bobby Lewis to Ronnie Sumners. The PAT was good. Monterey scored again in the fourth quarter when Mike Autrey recovered a Lubbock fumble on the 41. The offense drove in for the score with Chris Barnard going over from 9 yards out. The point after attempt was blocked. The win lifted the Plainsmen to a 4-3 season record.

Plainsmen hopes for the district crown vanished as the Amarillo Sandies crushed Monterey 42-6. Plainsmen miscues and the inconsistency of their offensive attack led to their 4th defeat of the season. Monterey's lone score of the night came on a 71 yard pass. The point after was blocked. The second half was dominated by the Sandstorms but Monterey managed to win the total stats battle.

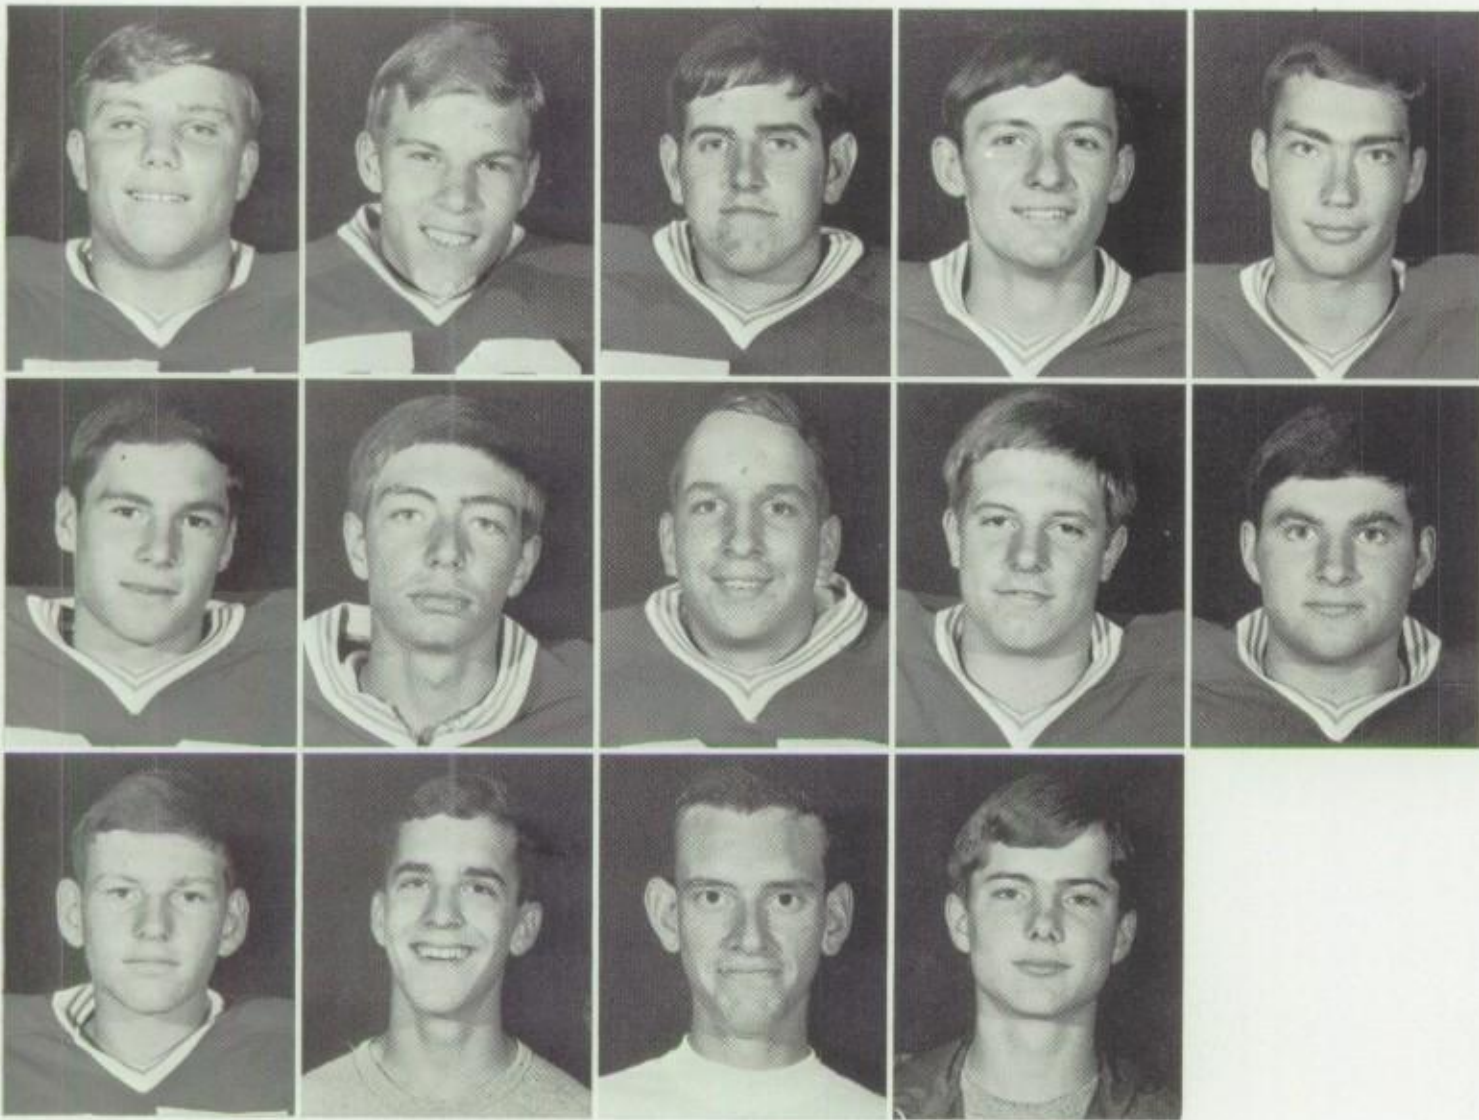

Stretching for a Bobby Lewis pass, End Les Shipley makes a desperate grab for the ball.

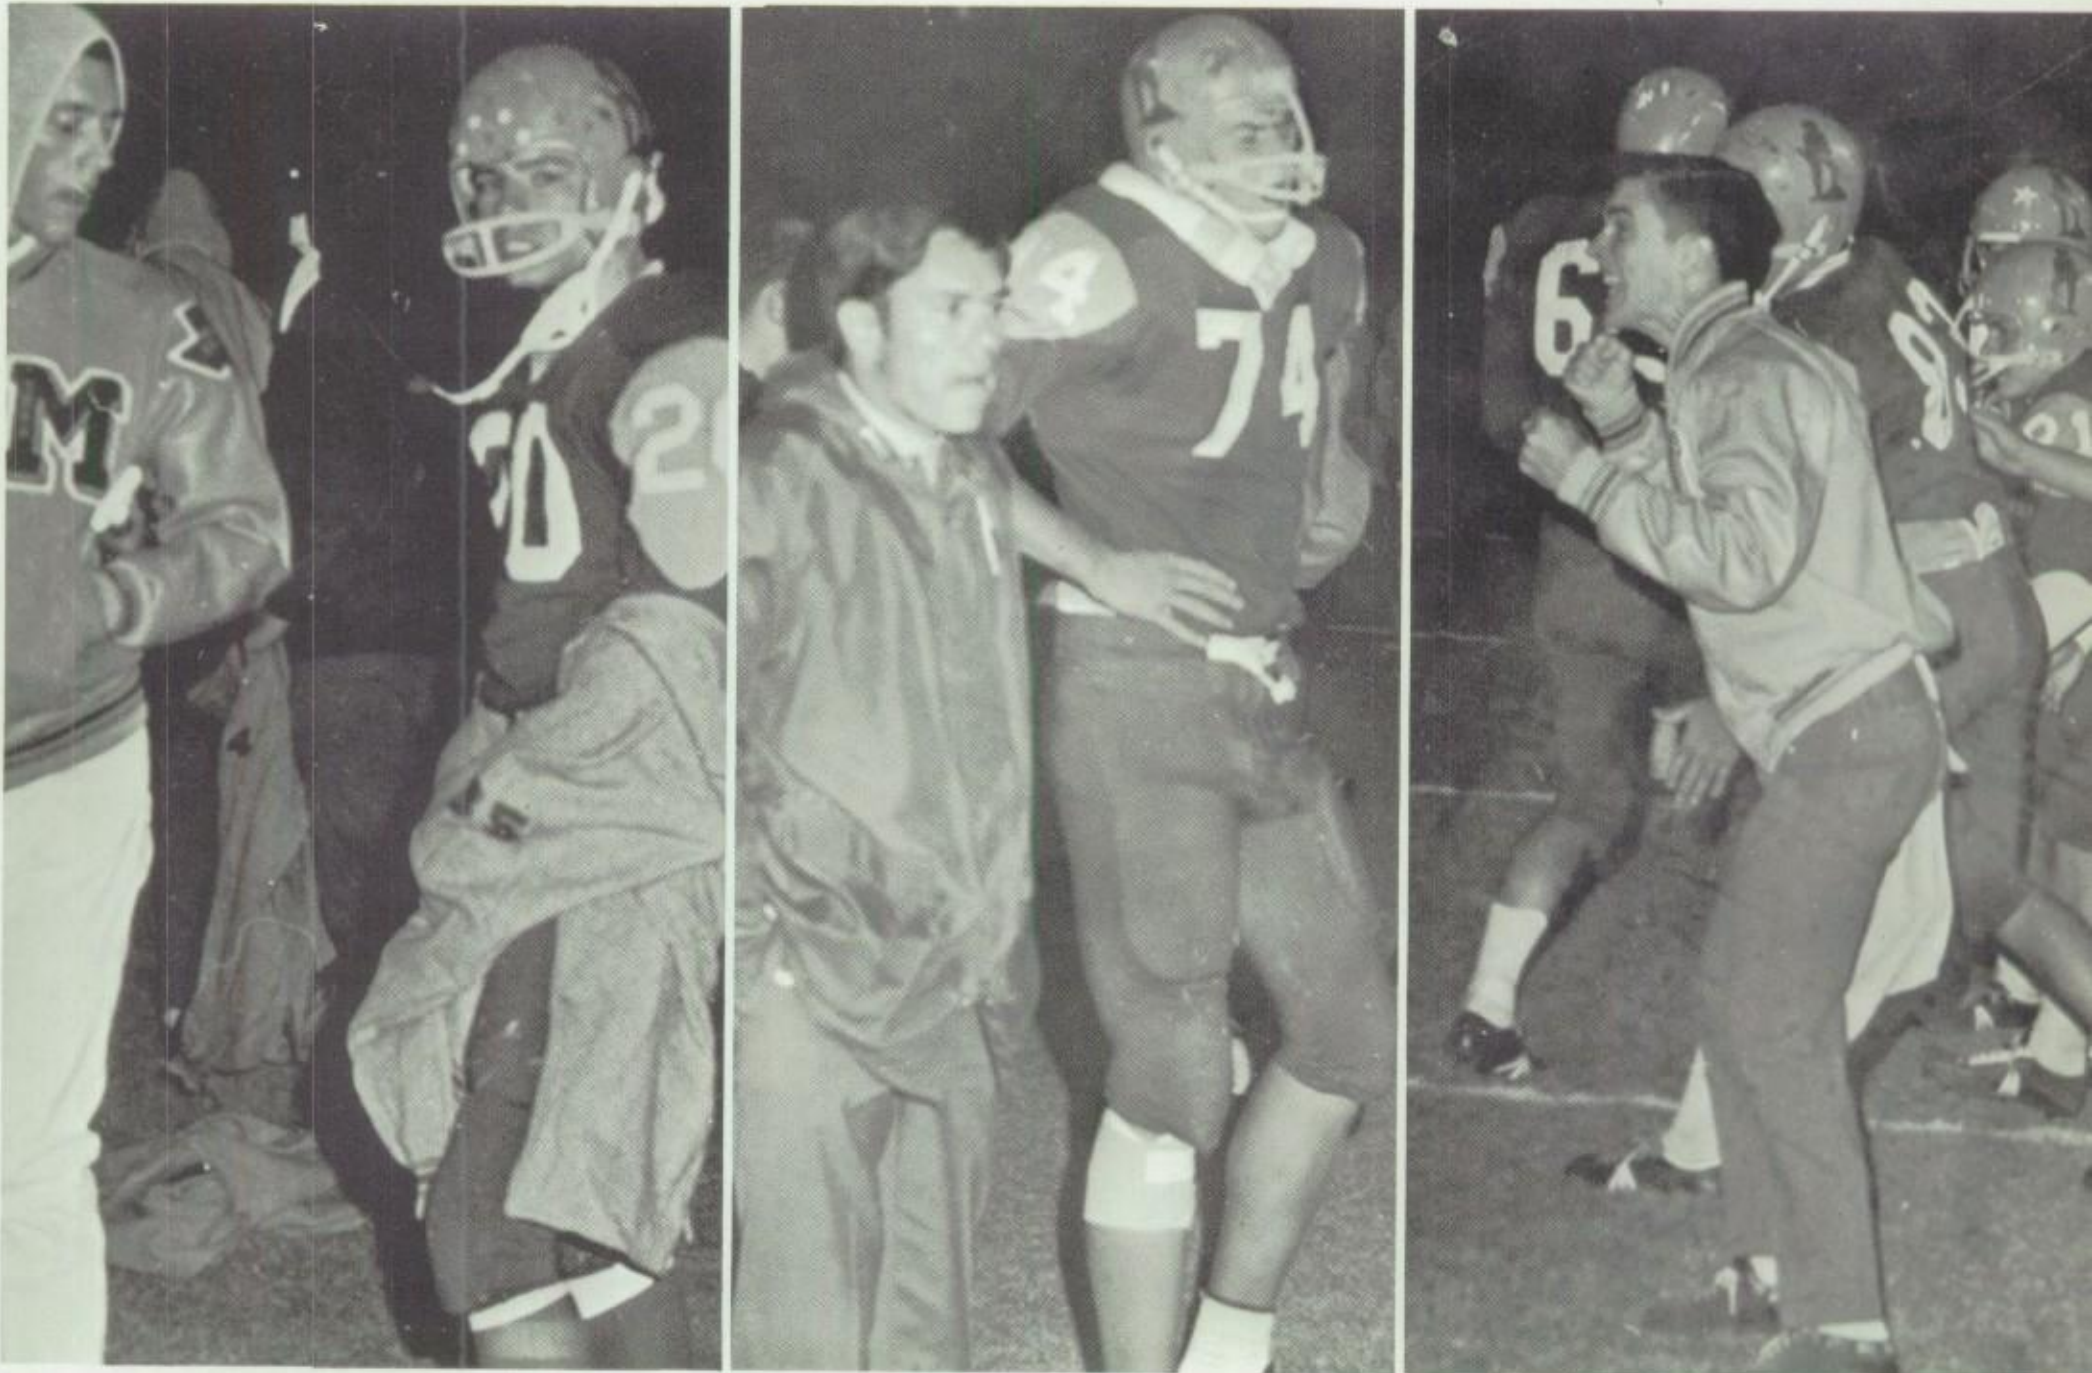

Bulldogs bite MHS 7-0; 'Men barbecue 'Horns

Monterey dropped to 4-5 season mark as the Borger Bulldogs racked up a 7-0 upset. The Plainsmen offense failed to move consistently for the second week in a row as Borger held them to 125 yards total offense. The loss dropped Monterey to a 1-2 North Zone standing which excluded them from contention in the district race.

The Plainsmen closed their season with a 19-0 victory over the Caprock Longhorns and managed to break even in the win-loss column for the year. Neither team scored in the first half, but late in the third quarter Melvin Billups broke loose for a 58 yard touchdown. Hood's kick for the PAT was good. The fourth period opened with Monterey marching 64 yards with Barnard sprinting the final nine. Hood's point after attempt was wide. MHS closed the scoring on a 90 yard drive that ended when Billups threw a 21 yard TD pass to Les Shipley.

Juniors, Sophs preview new football season

After a dismal 5-5 season Monterey gridders participated in spring training the last three weeks of February. The purpose was to determine which players would fill the vacated positions left by graduating seniors and to introduce Monterey football to future sophomores. Spring training ended with the annual Red-Blue game at Monterey Field. Coach Odom concluded the spring training program by saying, "We were fairly well pleased with this year's spring training except the bad weather hampered our practice to some extent."

Lancers close season third in district play

The Monterey Junior Varsity closed season play with a 6-4 record and finished third in district. In inter-city play the Lancers scored a 32-8 victory over Lubbock High and a 38-15 win against Coronado. The Lancers scored a total of 192 points and gave up 173 points.

Coaches Pat Blessing and Larry Damron stated that they were pleased with the overall play of the season.

Outstanding players on offense were Richard Scherer at tailback, Jack Darnell at wingback, and Rusty McIntuff at offensive end. Mark Martin, noseguard, led the defensive unit

Men win three straight to prepare for district

Monterey Plainsmen demonstrated their ability to play ball with the best in West Texas as they pulled off four straight victories in pre-district play. The Midland High Bulldogs were the first to taste defeat when they lost to the 'Men 86-60. Gary Wright and Rick Dyer led the scoring with 21 and 16 points, respectively.

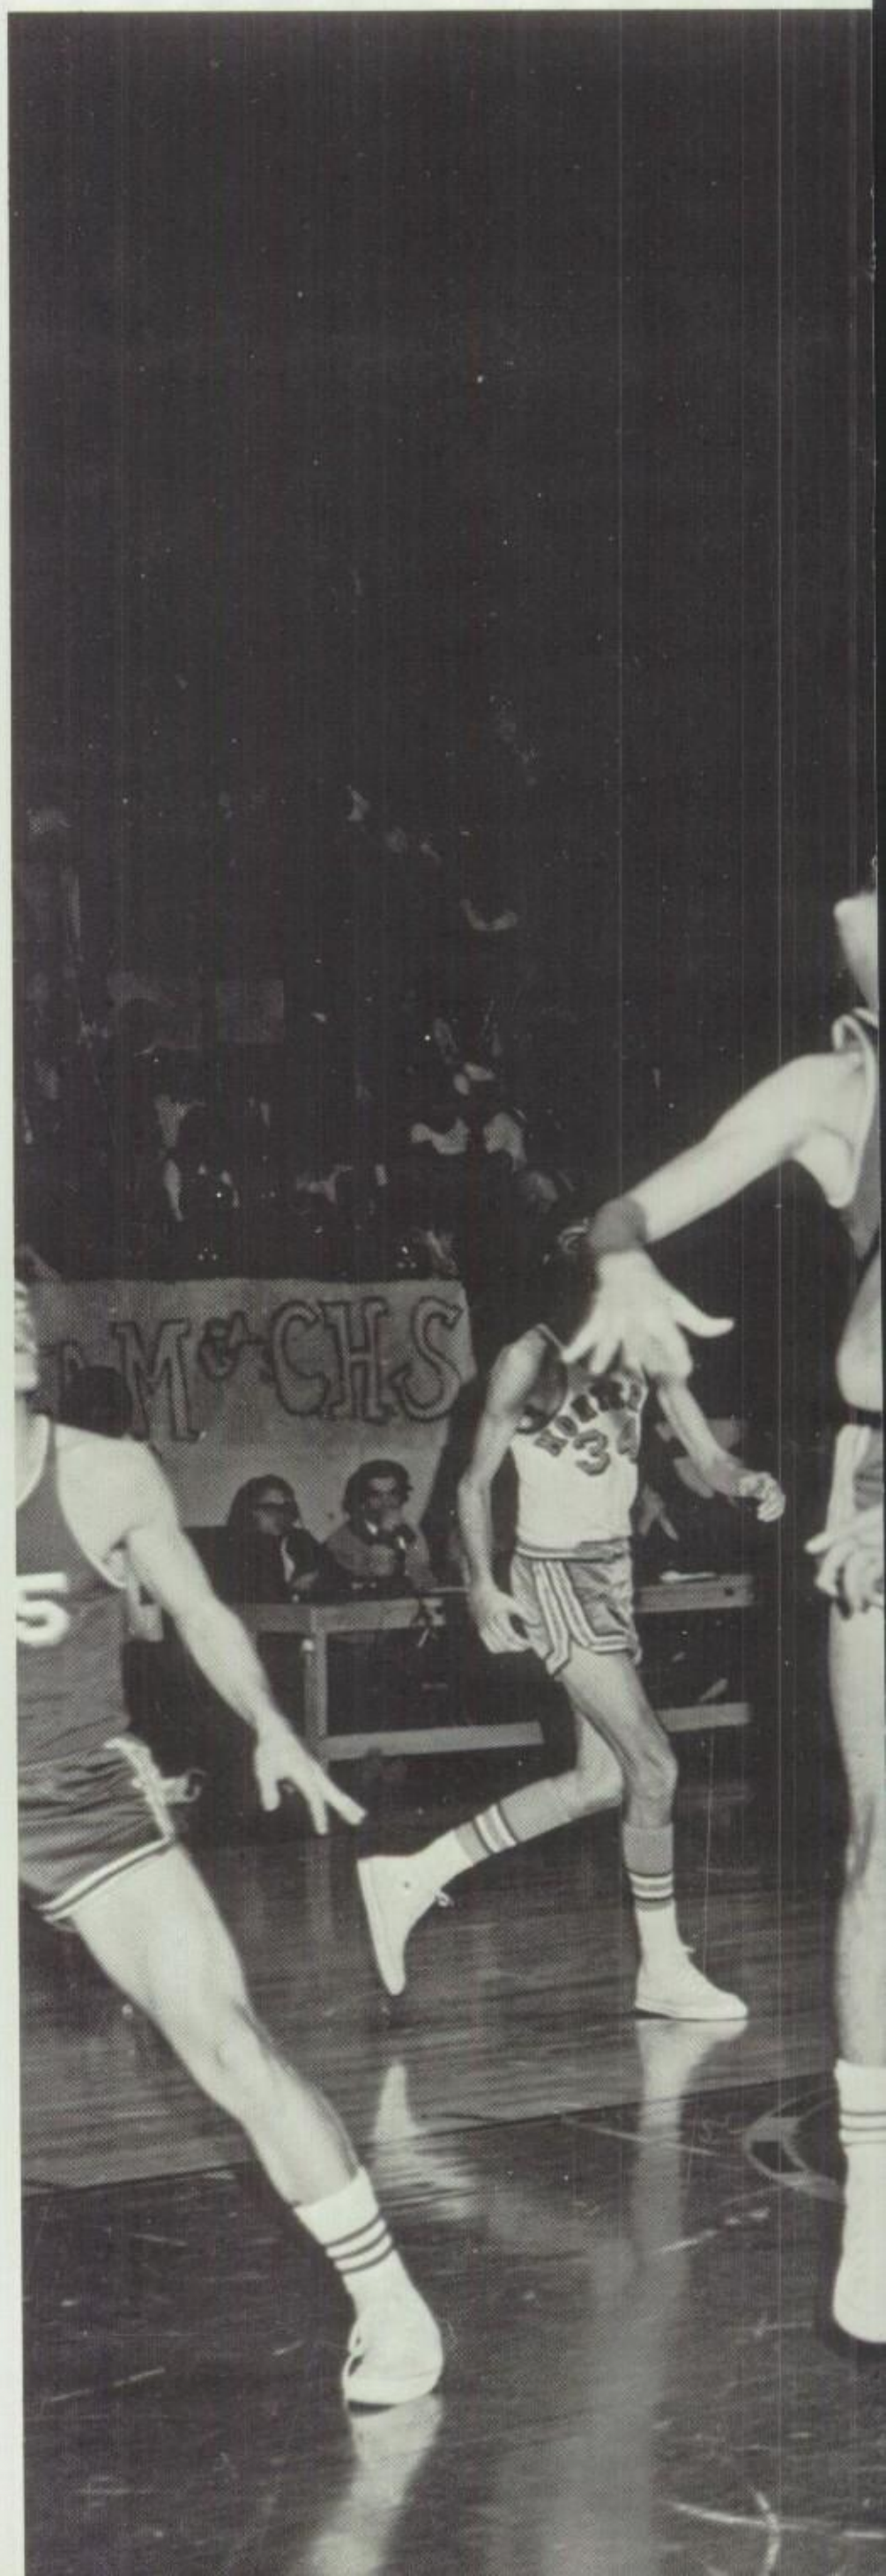

Next, the Plainsmen traveled to Midland where a last second shot by Jimmy Gressett gave Monterey a 60-58 victory. Rick Dyer was leading scorer with 19 and Spencer Marcum hit for 16. The third Plainsmen victim was Dunbar as the 'Men swept past the Panthers 84-54. Wright led the way with 24 points and was helped by Dyer's 19 and Gressett's 17.

In the pre-district finale, Plainsmen downed Odessa Permian 74-60. Dyer was once again the leading scorer with 23 and Gressett was second with 15.

'Men cop two firsts in tourney play

Monterey was entered in three tournaments this year and came away winning a second and two firsts. In the Plainview tourney, the Plainsmen got off to a good start by defeating McAdoo 79-69. The following day the 'Men squeaked past Abilene Cooper 54-52 as Jimmy Gressett hit another last second shot from the corner. Combining for 45 points, Rick Dyer and Spencer Marcum led the Plainsmen past L.D. Bell 61-48 and into the championship game. Using a full-court press, Midland Lee handed the 'Men their first defeat 51-50 and took the championship trophy, leaving Monterey in second place. In honor of his outstanding play, Dyer was elected to the all-tournament team.

The Plainsmen traveled to Abilene for the Key City Tournament where they were picked as pre-tournament favorites. Wanting to live up to its pre-tournament rating, Monterey defeated Fort Worth Eastern Hills 59-48. Dyer pumped in 21 and David Stanfield added 14.

Abilene High became the second victim of the tournament for the 'Men as Monterey won 71-59. Once again the leading scorer was Dyer with 23 followed by Gressett with 15. In the final game, Monterey found Abilene Cooper to be a little easier than in the first contest and took the championship by a score of 60-42. Representing the Plainsmen on the all-tournament team were Dyer and Spencer Marcum, who played excellent defense throughout the tournament.

During the Christmas holidays, the Plainsmen won their third straight Caprock crown. Gary Wright took honors in the first game by hitting a shot at the buzzer to give Monterey a 62-60 victory over Big Spring in two overtimes. Led by Marcum and Gressett, Monterey defeated district rival Plainview 58-43 and gained the right to play Coronado for the championship. Wright tossed in 20 points and the Plainsmen defeated the Mustangs 65-60. Dyer was once again the Monterey choice for the all-tournament team.

Fighting desperately for a rebound against two Plainview Bulldogs are Spencer Marcum and Barry Lee.

Plainsmen jumped into district with a convincing 74-49 win over Borger. Leading the way were Rick Dyer and Gary Wright with 24 and 16 points, respectively. In the second round Monterey handled Borger just as handily and came out on the winning side of a 74-57 score. Once again Dyer led the way with 33 points.

Pampa, led by Bo Lang, handed Monterey their second loss of the season, 71-64. Spencer Marcum chipped in 24 to no avail. In the second game it was Monterey's turn. Leading from start to finish, the 'Men came away with close 62-61 win. With tempers flaring near the end of the game a small free-for-all broke out which resulted in two free shots for each team. Monterey missed their free shots and Pampa closed the gap to one point. However, the Harvesters lost a chance for victory by losing the tip at midcourt. Leading scorer of the night was Gary Wright with 16.

Plainsmen overwhelm Amarillo schools

Paced by Gary Wright's 20 points, Monterey downed the Amarillo Sandies 61-54. In the second outing the 'Men had very little trouble and crushed the Sandies 80-54. Once again Wright led the way with 15 points and Spencer Marcum followed with 14 points.

Finding Palo Duro more than ready, the 'Men had a tough game, but finally came out on the top of a 64-61 score after a good fourth quarter. Rick Dyer netted 23 points and Marcum had 20. Against the Dons in the Palo Duro gym, the 'Men found things a little easier and won 79-72. Marcum was the big gun as he chipped in 30 points. Dyer came through with 24.

In Monterey's first outing against Caprock, David Stanfield poured in 19 points and led the 'Men to a 78-74 victory. The second time around Caprock got an early lead and started stalling the ball in the first quarter. Never able to regain the lead, Monterey was upset 47-39. Jimmy Gressett, who hit for 12 points, was the only Plainsman in double figures.

'Men win three, lose one in intercity competition

Playing crosstown rival Lubbock High, Monterey played one of their best games of the year and crushed LHS 73-38. Rick Dyer led the way with 21 points. Lubbock was seeking revenge in the second game and the 'Men barely escaped a spirited Westerner squad 46-45. Spencer Marcum paced the scoring with 19 points.

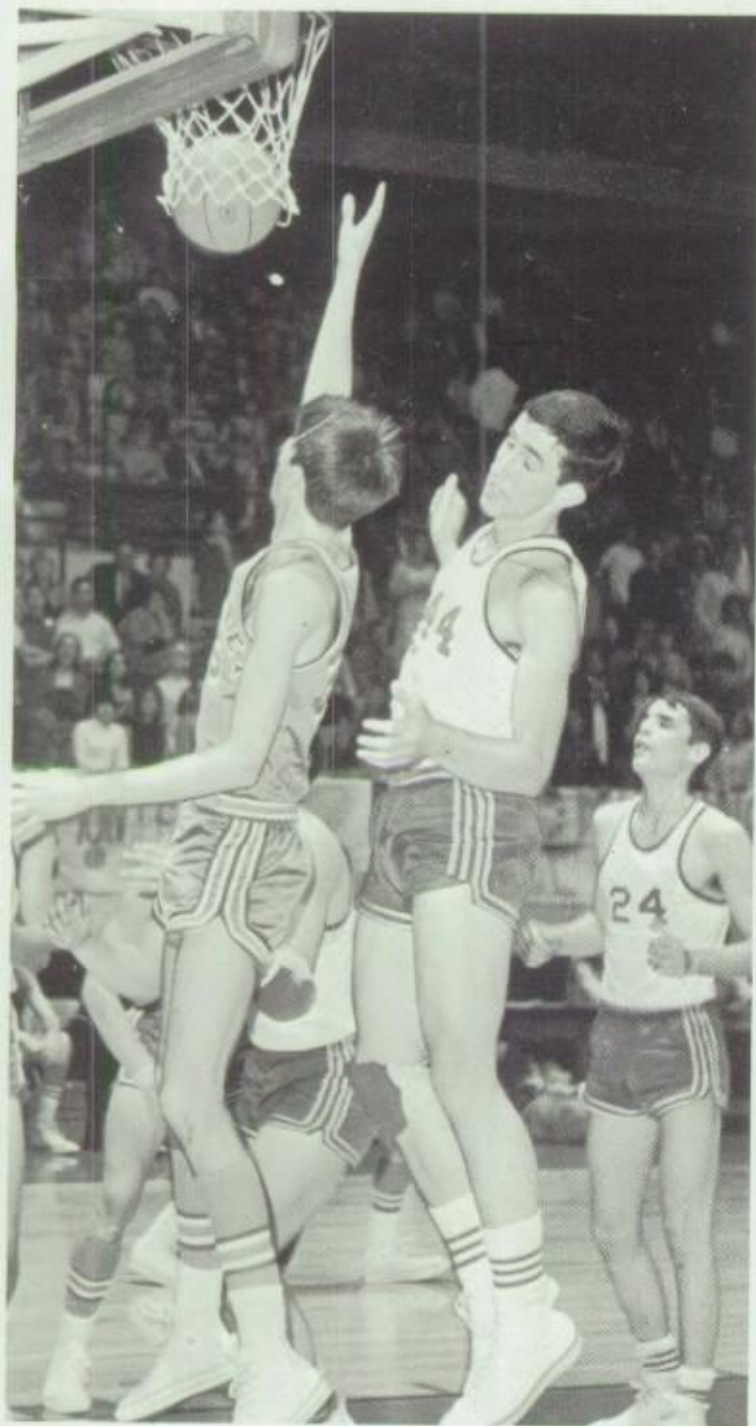

Monterey defeated Coronado 48-46 in their first outing. The second time around Coronado came through with a good second half and spoiled Monterey's district hopes with a 50-49 upset. Dyer led the scoring for Monterey with 16 points. Gressett had 14.

Lancers capture trophy in Snyder tournament

After a slow start, the Lancers finished the season with a 24-5 record. Traveling to Snyder for the B-Team tournament, the Lancers came home with the championship trophy. Marc O'Hair was the leading scorer for the Lancers and was backed up by John Conine. John Sparkman and Mike Davis gave the Lancers their board strength, with Don Moore offering good leadership and coming through with his share of scoring. John Day also recorded a lot of playing time. Coach Carl Knight, after his first year at Monterey, said he thought the Lancers had a lot of talent and would add strength to the varsity next year.

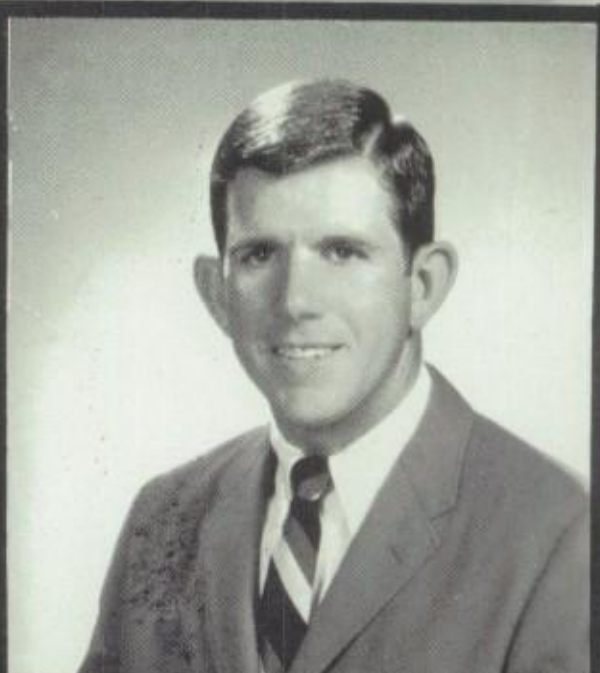

Going high for a short jump shot, John Sparkman adds two points to the "B" team score.

1967 district champions defend title

Faced with the task of taking their eighth district championship in nine years, Coach Bobby Moegle's Plainsmen returned in 1968 with only seven lettermen and a host of inexperienced underclassmen. This year's crew, the youngest and most inexperienced in Moegle's MHS career, could boast of only one returning starter, Mike Crutcher. Other 1967 lettermen are Chris Barnard, Bob Haley, Larry Huckabee, Barry Alburdis, David Nelson and Glen Palmer. Having won district championships in every year since 1960 except in 1966, the Plainsmen have not won less than 20 games a season in the eight years Moegle has been coaching. This team hopes to equal last year's 16-2 district record.

Scheduled for 32 games, Monterey made its 1968 debut on March 1 against Dunbar and wound up its season May 11 against another crosstown rival, Coronado.

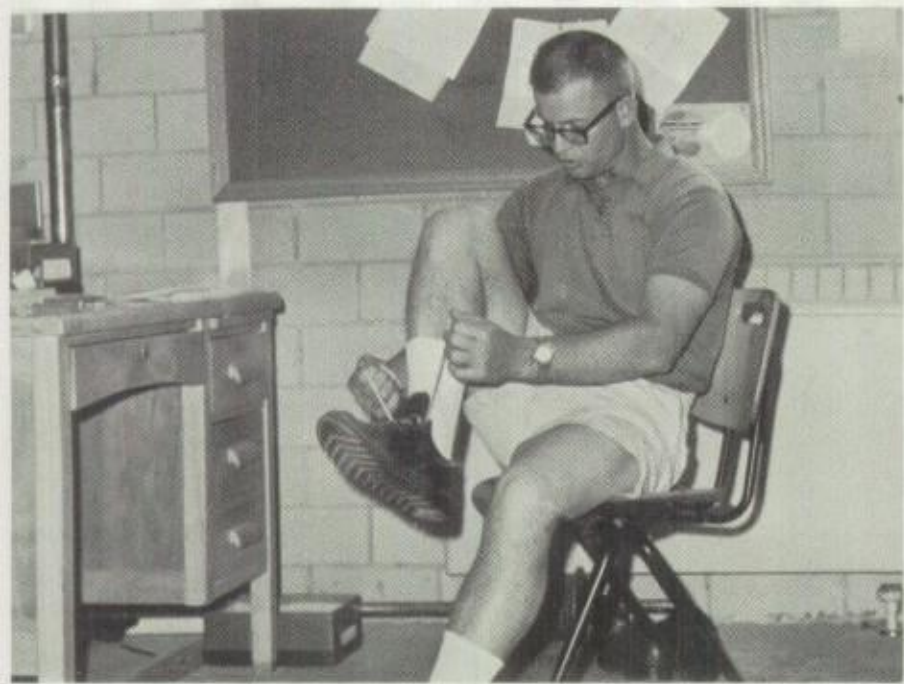

In a typical stance, Coach Bobby Moegle supervises spring training.

Thinclads face formidable opponents

Preparing for another day of track, Coach Pat Blessing ties his shoe before heading out to the field.

Completing his second year as head track mentor, Pat Blessing conditioned the Monterey thinclads through another season. Pole-vaulter Tebby Thames, fourth in state as a junior, returned this year to strike at the state title again. Ronnie Wheeler, Danny Webb, Donnie Anderson, Vince Freeman and Teddy Wiley, lettermen placing in the 1967 district meet, returned to garner points. Coach Blessing also called on Gerardo Rangel, Steve Barnes and Steve Dyer for help in the running events. Weightmen Al Assad, Gary King and Mike Davis threatened records in the field division.

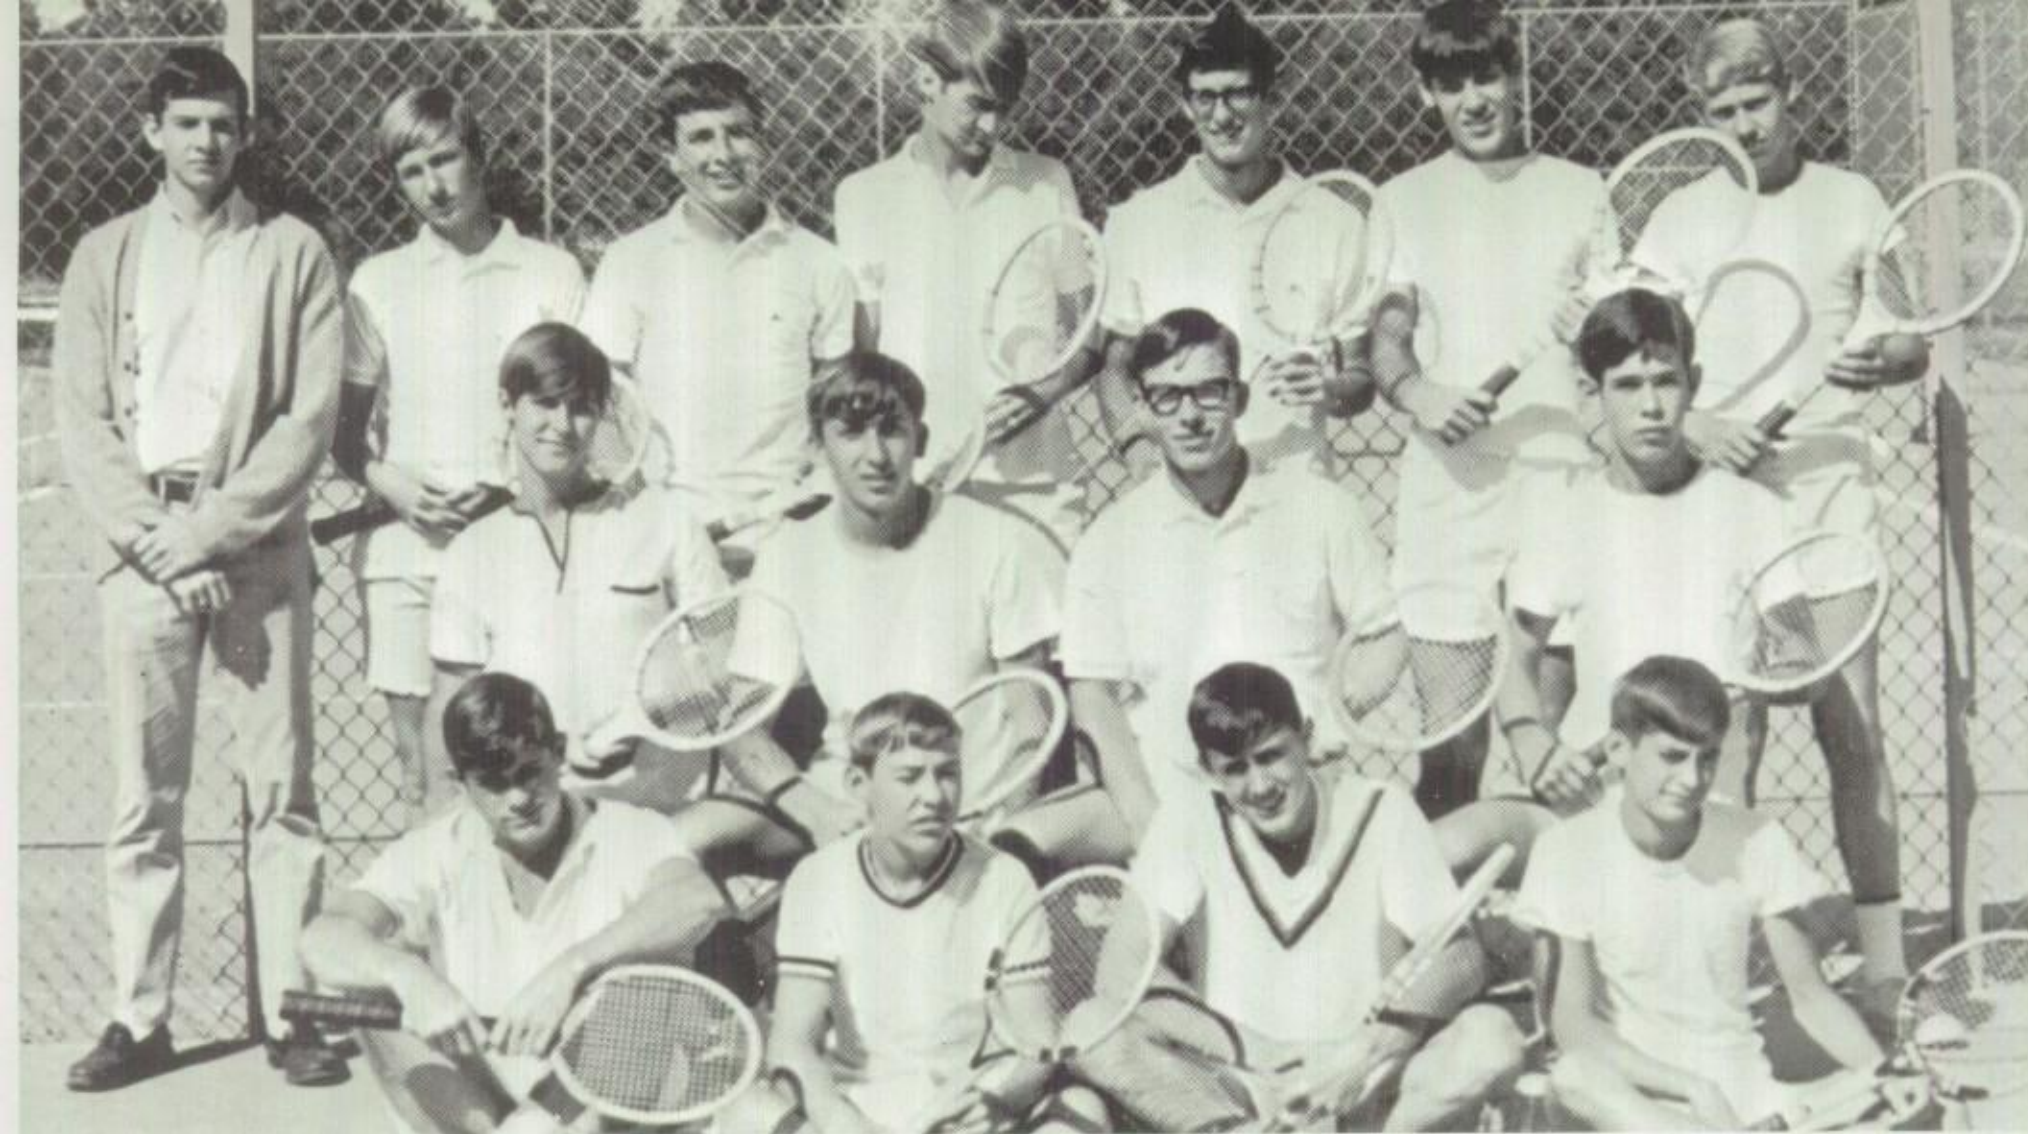

Despite a limited amount of experience, the Plainsmen overcame weakness through endless determination. Consisting of more sophomores than juniors and seniors combined, the team began burning the cinders soon after Thanksgiving.

Aiming for another state mark, Tebby Thames clears the crossbar. Tebby won 4th in state in 1967.

Tennis team aims for district crown

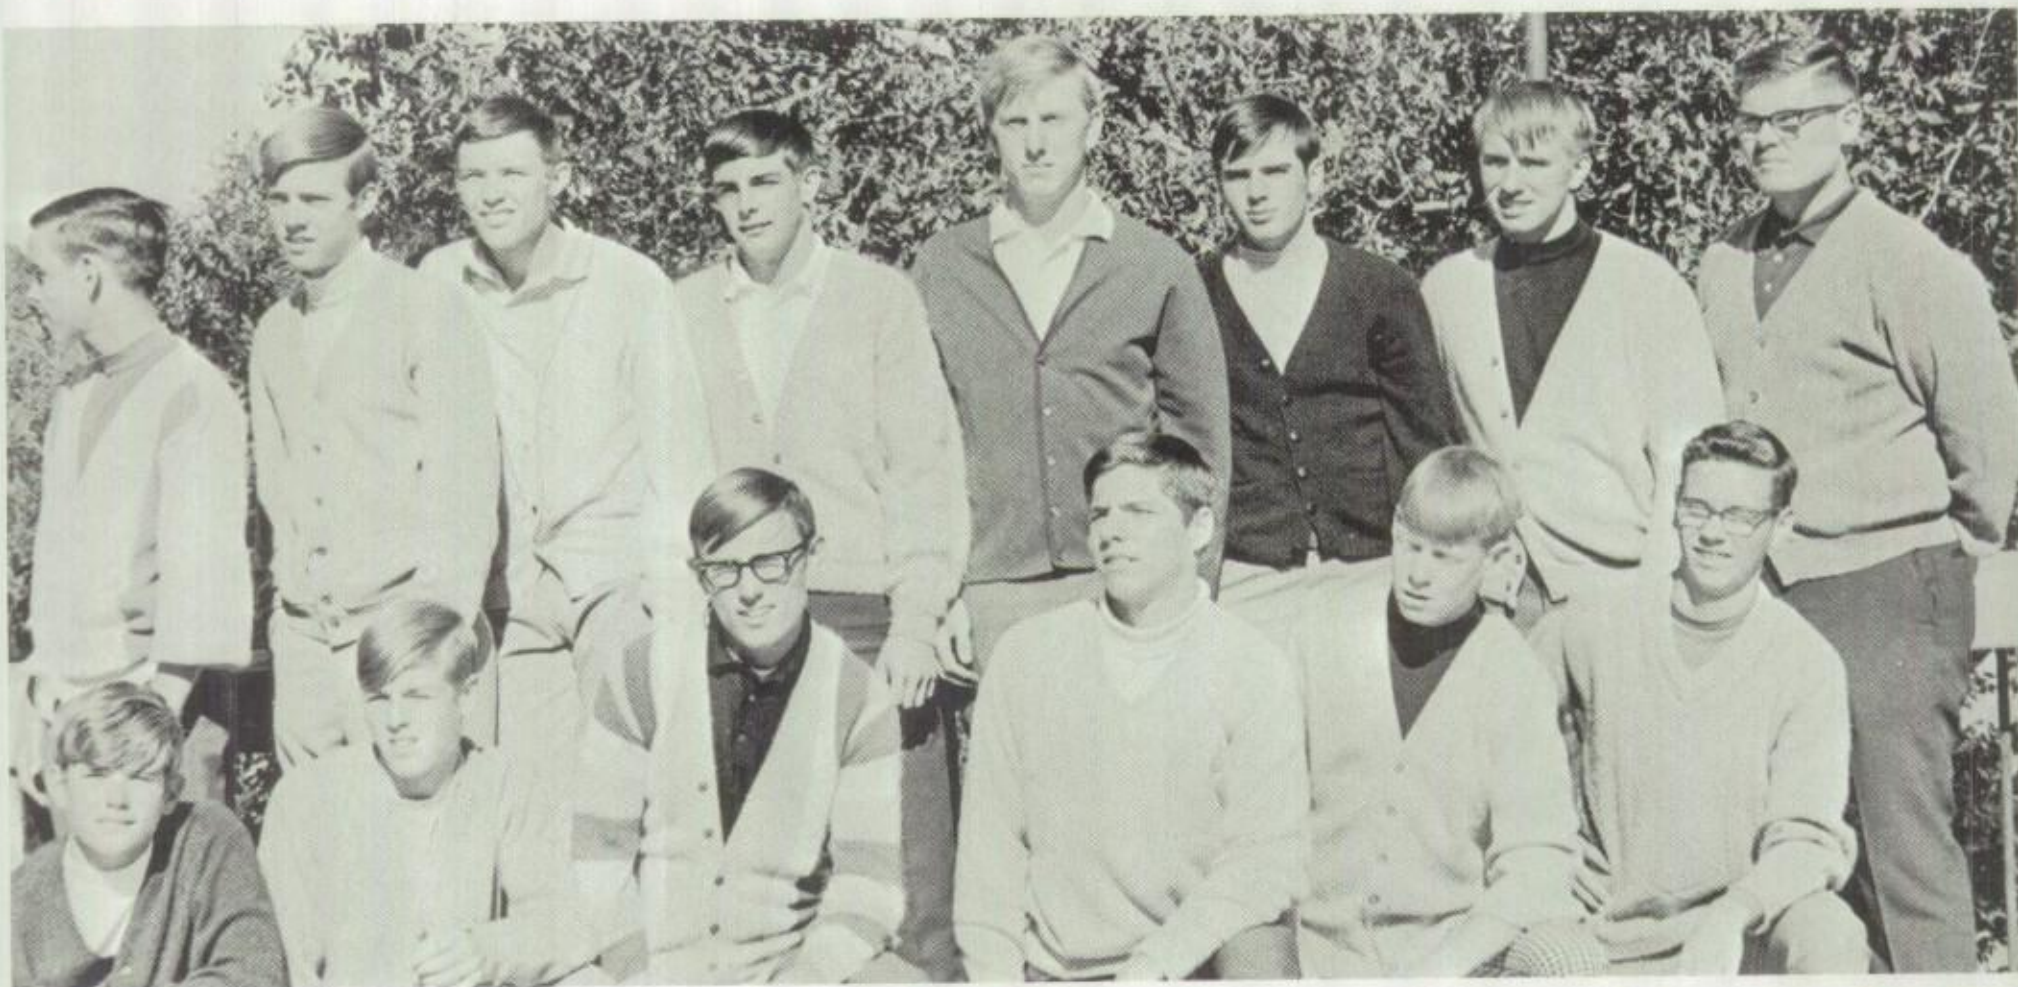

Completing his second year at Monterey, Coach Richard Umstot led his squad through a wild district scramble.

Tennis Captains Sam Erwin and Dixie Childers paced the netters representing Monterey this season. Two-year letterman Jack Thompson also helped charter the course for the Plainsmen through a season full of stout competition. One-year lettermen Cherie Carnrick and Marilyn Moore provided opponents some stiff competition. Coach Richard Umstot, completing his second year as MHS tennis coach, developed the necessary potential in his teams to overcome the woes of inexperience. The squad gained valuable experience under fire by participating in tournaments each weekend before District 3-AAAA started. The team did not suffer from inexperience since nine seniors and 15 juniors returned. Ten sophomores were also added to the roster this season.

Preparing for district play, senior Marc Wright executes a short putt as senior Teddy Kingsbery holds the flag.

Inexperience typifies 1967-'68 golf season

Inexperience was the key word describing the 1967-68 golf squad. Contending with a cast of four seniors, four junior, and six sophomores, the golf crew struggled to maintain Monterey's splendid record. The Plainsmen spirit led the troops into battle against 12 schools in their opening tournament, Feb. 20.

After a practice session at Meadowbrook, Coach Charles Brewer packs away his clubs until another day.

Thoughts of the oncoming season whirl through Senior Lee Moss's mind as he drives out of a sand trap.

Driving a long shot, Senior Stewart Carrico displays his winning form.

United groups smooth bumps in school system

Heading Lubbock schools, Mr. Nat Williams, superintendent, along with Assistant Superintendent, Dr. Ishmael Hill, serves the community by organizing an educational system. Assisting these two men in the planning of curriculum and legislation are the members of the School Board. These men give their time to improve the standards of Lubbock schools. The P-TA sponsors open house and meetings, which help to form better relationships between parents and teachers. The combined effort of these three groups make up an efficient, coordinated school system, which is a necessity for progressive education.

Planning for the coming school year, Mr. Robert Knight, personnel director, Linus Wright, business manager, and Jay Gordon, curriculum director, help run a smooth school system.

Superintendent Nat Williams and Assistant Superintendent Dr. Ishmael Hill find few leisure hours to themselves.

Thank you's like this are hard to come by, but when Activities Director C. W. Edwards comes through with a favor, he receives a bear hug from sophomore cheerleader Janis Richardson.

Administrators assume role of responsibility

The role of an administrator is one of great responsibility and challenge. Coordinating student activities and curriculum, Vice Principal Waylon R. Carroll, Assistant Principal Henry Zorns and Activities Director C. W. Edwards work to keep things in balance. The three combine their efforts to maintain a smooth-running school and well-disciplined student body. Their efforts have upheld a good student-administration relationship throughout the year.

Counselors intercede to smooth school life

Acting as intercessor between students and teachers, Monterey counselors seek to harmonize high school life. With such duties as arranging schedules, giving tests and acting as confidante to both student and teacher, counselors find themselves with a full-time job. Secretaries lend a helping hand by organizing material for the administration. Guiding ailing students to better health, Mrs. June Ducker acts as school nurse.

Telephone conversations make up a large part of the daily duties of Mrs. Cathrine Batson, sophomore counselor, as she converses with a parent.

Library gains new look, enhances study mood

The library opened its doors this year with a new head librarian, Mrs. Betty Martin. Bringing new ideas, Mrs. Martin enabled the library to continue fulfilling its duties. Acting as backbone for the Publications Department, journalism provides students with opportunities to obtain knowledge about the many facets of newspaper—reporting, editing, and layout. It also produces future yearbook workers and photographers. Journalism contributes career guidelines and presents current events in a new light. Opening the second semester with a new World Literature course, the English department offered students the study of books by famous writers from Spain, England, Italy, Germany, France, Mexico and the United States. Lectures and study groups aided the unusually large class in studying foreign and domestic literature. Novels and grammar usage complete the course of study for English classes.

Tangled tongues try teacher tempers

Facial expressions are a part of everyday life, but are especially evident on the face of a language student. The difficulty of mouthing new words is a puzzling experience, but with the help of such teachers as Mrs. Judy Barnes, it becomes an exciting one. With emphasis on the speaking facet of a language, the A-LM teaching method is an effective way of learning a foreign tongue. Extra projects and study in the language, help bring a bit of foreign culture to Monterey.

Speech plays big role in Monterey scenes

Communication by speech is an integral part of today's world. As distances shrink with wider and better communications, a knowledge of speech and its interpretation are essential. Monterey students are offered debate procedure and tactics. Places as well as people are important in Bible study explains Mrs. Lois Futch as she reveals the location of a historical event to her students.

History students face current world affairs

Current affairs and world problems occupied much of the course of study for the social studies department this year. In World Affairs and World Geography classes, students were given a chance to study future-shaping events and their location. Hand in hand with these courses, World and American History classes studied the happenings of the day along with the historical occurrences of long ago.

MHS Betty Crockers learn domestic skills

Cooking, sewing, child care and family life are some of the topics studied by students in the Home Economics Department. Practice is gained in managing a home, understanding people and preparing for the future. Most classes require a long range home project which may consist of interior decoration, candy-striping or baby-sitting. Competition is high in area and district contests and the South Plains Fair exhibits. A small scale house contributes a home atmosphere for the department.

Shop skills aid careers of industrial artisans

Plans for careers are not only formed, but also initiated as students train in industrial arts. Beginning by learning the use of machines, shop students progress to simple construction and at the end of the year a major project is done by each boy. This department, usually considered a "man's world," opened its doors to girls who took general drafting courses this year. Learning skills in architecture, construction and engineering aids all students in selecting their chosen vocations. A chance to display their work in competition comes to the artisans in the fall with area fairs and again in the spring with a statewide contest.

Math classes figure '68 as 'number year'

Three dimensional is the key phrase to the math puzzle this year. With new equipment depicting the conical shapes of a new plane in Analytic Geometry and modern methods being put to use in Elementary Analysis and Trigonometry, the world of math extends its endless boundaries each year. Special math and honors classes in algebra and geometry aid students in learning at their own speed. New techniques developed by research help teachers in explaining the sometimes difficult theories to students.

Spring fever hits senior Rudy Rangel early in February as his thoughts turn from algebra to graduation.

Business courses pave way for future jobs

Fast moving hands and quick thinking minds are essential for a career in the business world. Students are well prepared for future jobs in the commercial field through various courses offered at Monterey. Explosive sounds rock through halls of MHS

A musical explosion vibrated the halls of Monterey this year as the band, orchestra and choir provided "music to study by." At pep rallies, concerts and assemblies, the music department promoted Plainsmen spirit to new heights. "It All Started With the Beatles" was the theme of the orchestra concert, which drew enthusiastic response from the students. The choir presented "Preview" which featured such popular songs as "Windy" and "Never My Love." The band continued to boost school spirit at football games, playing such favorites as "Fever." Keeping pace with modern trends in music, each developed its own unique style of the popular music of today. Making the transition from Beethoven to the Beatles, the department adapted itself to the unpredictable moods of music.

"On your mark, get set, go!" These words ring in the ears of a sprinter as he dashes to reach the finish line first.

Preparations start early and continue through the day as the cafeteria personnel work hard to keep Monterey food up to par.

Custodians, cooks help 'keep the ball rolling'

Keeping a school of 170 classrooms in spic and span condition and maintaining the cafeteria, auditorium and halls makes an eight hour workday for custodians. Workers in the cafeteria are also at school before some students are awake planning menus, arranging budgets and preparing lunch for the student body. Adding to the festivity of holidays with special Christmas and Thanksgiving dinners, the cafeteria personnel work extra hours. Custodians insure a clean building all year round day and night by working through the school year and summer vacation. Year round, all day, support from the maintenance and cafeteria crews assure the upkeep of Monterey.

Making a clean sweep of the halls, the custodians help to keep the building in top condition for faculty and students.

Council

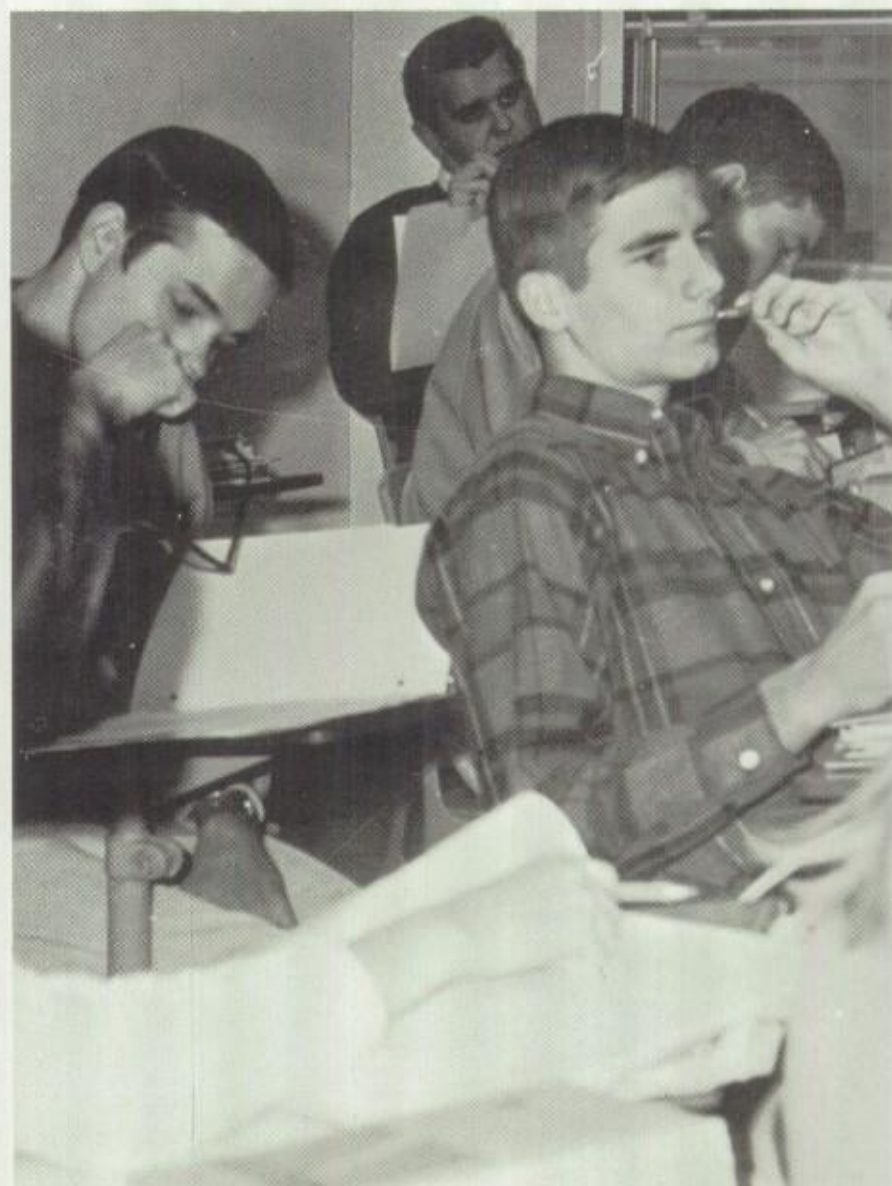

In the spring of '67 juniors Tebby Thames and Dana Jones emerged victors in a presidential and secretarial vie with Steve Davis and Christy Holmes. Dana Sandifer and Cheryl Klotzman were elected cheerleaders along with eighteen vice-presidents. Realization of the big responsibility of a senior class faced the chosen council. There were numerous undertakings that belonged only to the senior class. Senior carnival and senior assembly required hours upon hours of work as both were to include more Plainsmen. As the end began, senior council planned senior banquet and made Kid Day-Senior Day a time for seniors to just let go. Graduation greeted seniors with a chance to review the end to a memorable year credited to a hard-working and truly ingenious senior class council.

With the coming of that "Big Year" in the fall, senior minds are dominated with the desire to broadcast their upper-class status. This status is first achieved when graduation gowns are donned for annual pictures in the summer.

Senior rings symbolize superiority

Then the dream of graduation is brought into focus with senior invitation orders. But, the surest way to achieve status is the display of the ultimate symbol of superiority, the senior ring. September ring arrivals were made even more special this year with the addition of a new style in the men's ring. This ring has the same stone and embossing, but boasts a heavier size and wider gold incasement. Whether bestowed upon a favorite girl as the most special gift or treasured by the owner, the ring is the most precious addition to the senior year. It is the thing that every sophomore and junior dreams about owning and every senior would not trade for anything. After the class of 1968 has gone its different ways many of its high-lights will be forgotten. But a glance at the senior ring will bring back all the memories of three years at Monterey.

Seniors spark spirit stress spur support

The silver spurs—a sophomore dream, a junior hope but a senior necessity. This year seniors worked extra hard on spirit projects for Spur Week. A “lucky 13” cake was presented to the team at the pep rally by Susan Cathey and Pam Cass and the senior skit featured Zane Noble, Karen Fortenberry, Cindy Rodgers and Gary Williams. Several funerals were staged to terminate the Westerner threat to regain possession of the spurs. Each homeroom made posters to literally cover every inch of wall space. As Spur Week culminated with Monterey toting the silver spurs home again, seniors felt as though they had helped make the necessity a reality.

MHS eight earn finalist honors

Scholastic aptitude can be measured in many ways. One of these ways is the National Merit Scholarship tests. In the spring of '67 juniors took these tests which are designed to measure scholastic material. The tests are designed with high-performing students in mind. Because of this and the fact that they are given on a nationwide scale, competition is high. Monterey again led city high schools in educational superiority with eight National Merit Semi-finalists.

Being a National Merit scholar does require extra study, but George Davis, Linda Hill, Brooks Barr, Amy Hammer and Charles Brooks have fun too.

SAT exams swamp senior Saturdays

To be eligible for acceptance in most colleges, seniors must have taken the Scholastic Aptitude Tests administered by the Educational Testing Service. The basic tests cover the student's comprehensive knowledge of English and math. But achievement tests in specific fields are also given for advanced placement in college. Besides the usual December, January, March, May and July tests dates, a earlier November test was given this year to rush college applications. The tests were given this year on Saturday mornings with Monterey study halls as the test center. Senior counselors Miss Edith Caveness and Mr. George Bond helped administer the test to seniors.

While Betsy Bronwell beams her satisfaction to Miss Edith Caveness upon completion of her SAT test. Mr. George Bond sorts the exams for scoring.

Since the carnival finances the Senior gift, all seniors are determined to make it a success. This year, with the theme of "State Fair", plans and decorations were begun early with the emphasis on a realistic outdoor carnival, indoors. Organization was the key word in the success of the carnival, and many students worked for weeks after school, on weekends and nights to meet the deadline of November 14. By Saturday afternoon of the big day seniors stepped back to see Monterey transformed into 1967 State Fair.

Freakout, dunk offer thrills at State Fair

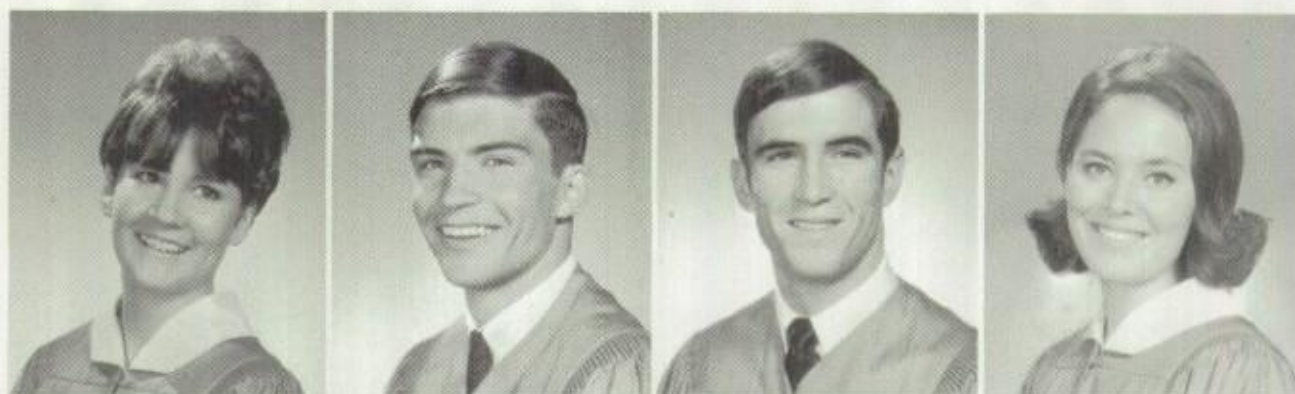

State Fair—the swirling world of bawdy sideshows, sticky confections and a blaring band. MHS students and community were entertained by all the “regulars,” plus many original attractions such as the spook house, the Mud-hill Vine, featuring copies and originals of modern art, the Parisian Style Show, and in the tradition of a fair, the Freak-out. Entering the midway, fair-goers were given chances to win prizes at the various booths or to satisfy their hunger with carameled apples, popcorn and cotton candy. Since a carnival would not be complete without a merry-go-round, dancers in the girls’ gym were surrounded by hobby-horses, topped by a canopy, and provided with music by the Derby Hatville Band. When the State Fair was over and the decorations were on their way down, the carnival had drawn record earnings toward the purchase of a senior gift.

Making up for lost space on fast dances, couples cling to each other on the slower beats of the Derby Hatville Band.

Medical career sparks senior interest

Senior Career Conferences, held the first week in March, gave seniors the opportunity to research possible occupations. A conference committee, composed of a representative from each senior homeroom, decided on careers to be covered and assigned speakers for each field. This year a wide range of careers from fashion design to veterinary medicine was covered in nearly sixty discussion groups. On the two Career Days each senior was given an hour to visit the discussion group on the career most interesting to him. A large part of the senior class was involved in either publicity or arrangements for the future important days.

Cast anticipates assembly climax

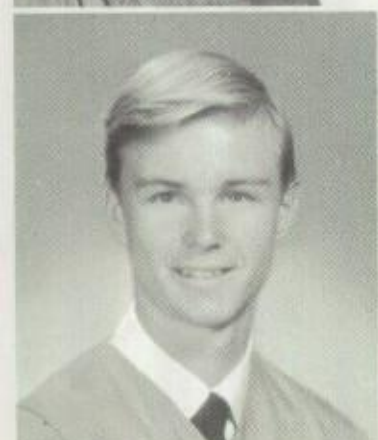

Perhaps the most significant way to judge a class is by assembly productions. Work began early in October by co-producers Dana Jones and Jan Tillery and their committee of Harriet Slate, Susan Preston, Lynn Wood and Debbie Dodson. These six under the guidance of Mr. Donnie Richards planned the assembly on an extremely unusual note. Electrifying was the key word in sets and props. Work sessions occupied many seniors who volunteered their help. Night rehearsals were climaxed by a final rehearsal set for the morning of the big day. Tenseness gripped the members as they anxiously awaited audience appraisal.

Happening accents impossible dreams

Final preparations were made and the curtains raised on "Senior Happening." The assembly theme centered around people being people, no masks, no cover-ups—free to love, to be happy and to possess freedom assembly reached a climax and an end signifying the dreams, the goals of every senior—to dream the impossible and to reach the unreachable.

April prom dates final formal fling

Mid-term brought a sudden reminder to juniors and seniors that prom season was nearing. This meant a mad rush to find the most flattering gown and to "reserve" a tuxedo or a dinner jacket. For seniors, realization of their last function to be shared with another class grasped them. On April 27, couples arrived at the KoKo Palace and became enchanted with each other.

Prom queen candidates were Pat Chapman, Dana Jones, Cheryl Klotzman, Dana Sandifer, Lynn Wood and Penny White.

Prom night was a special occasion for senior Kathy Rodden as she selected her gown and attended to her make-up with detailed steps. The highlight to a perfect evening came as senior Mark Wright escorted Kathy to a romantic spot for supper.

Past gifts inspire '68 class presentation

Senior gift committee chairman Donnie Anderson began his task of guiding seniors to a proper gift selection by studying former Plainsman gifts. After making a temporary list of suggestions, the committee asked senior homerooms to vote upon the best ideas. Votes revealed that the first definite selection would be a booth for football, basketball, party and assembly ticket sales in the cafeteria. Other suggestions ranged from a victory bell for athletic events to additional drinking fountains for the building.

Considering gift ideas, Jan Tillery and Donnie Anderson inspect the gift from the Class of '67.

Graduation reached its final stages as caps and gowns were fitted in early spring. After each senior had his robe, the excitement of waiting to wear them took hold. Opportunity came with the Commencement Services Sunday, May 26. Lubbock's five high schools appeared in robes of their school colors to make the services a vivid spectacle.

Girls ready for powder puff fray

With the enthusiasm of two professional teams, Caprock and Plainsmen Tri-Hi-Y football teams began workouts for their game. The two "Powderpuff" teams met on February 6 to determine which team would go on to play the other four high schools in the traditional YMCA-sponsored tournament. The girls looked with respect to members of the MHS varsity who coached each team. Cheerleaders, yelling for victory in their female attire, were elected by team members from the senior boys. A cherished power puff and football were awarded to the city girls' football champs.

Banquet honors 1968 graduates

Seniors formally gathered for the last time on March 22. Senior Banquet '68 allowed seniors to re-live the past three years with the Class Will and Prophecy. Here seniors remembered funny incidents and characteristics of fellow classmen. Then the closeness of graduation gripped seniors as Class President Tebby Thames offered the first of the many challenges to come, ending with the most important one of all, graduation.

New doors open for '68 seniors

As the door closes on twelve years of hard work, good times and priceless memories, it is not only a pang of reminiscence that grips the seniors of '68. More lasting, it is the anticipation of things to come, the beginning of a new era where responsibility and success stand-out over the pursuit of a good time. The senior class will look back often on their three years at Monterey, but high school will not dwell in their minds as the culmination of goals. It will but be a key to greater things in the ever-present future.

With the beam of "having made it" shining from his face, Craig Mitchell closes the door to his high school career, a graduated senior.

Tears roll as the secure feeling of success overwhelms Judy Schmidt, newly-elected treasurer.

Officers-elect strive for stronger council

As the junior year approaches, sophomores begin to realize that certain school responsibilities belong to their class. During the hectic first year, strong individuals emerge as leaders. In 1967, when election time arrived, Larry Wharton and Mark Bass sought the office of vice-president of the student body. Judy Schmidt and Candace Baker competed for the office of treasurer. The election, was close, but when school opened in Sept. 1967, Larry and Judy took their places as student body officers. As class president, Mark Hughes guided junior activities and Robyn Brownlee kept the minutes. Jean Jenkins and Cherri Weaver served as cheerleaders and 18 vice-presidents represented their class on the all-school council. Seven hundred ten strong, the junior class moved through 1967-68 toward senior status.

Mod sponsor ignites big junior 'go power'

It is true that young people are creative, enthusiastic and daring, but it's also true that youth is often unorganized and impetuous. For this reason, sponsors are a vital part of class organization. This year Mrs. Jo Anne Corbet acted as chief organizer of junior class activities. Under her direction the candy sale took shape and the prom became a reality. From the smallest detail of the class assembly to the biggest problem faced by junior class members, "Corbie" had the answers, because from the tip of her toes to the top of her "Twiggy" hairdo she was dedicated.

"It's a glass what?" asks Mrs. Jo Anne Corbet as she doubtfully examines a piece of glass candy from the junior candy sale.

Arranging the traditional MHS against the end zone kindles a common Plainsman pride shared by juniors Tim Carico and Delorce Purdy.

Intangible spirit becomes tangible in yards and yards of red and blue crepe paper, in bottles of paint, in miles of cardboard. When the call went out for help in decorating goal posts for the games, juniors responded. When something extra was needed to keep those silver spurs, the juniors had that "something extra" and designed a special project. Giant silver spurs were constructed of cardboard and aluminum foil and the boys organized a squad to lead a special yell at the pep rally. Before every game, the auditorium bulged with junior booster signs and the junior battlecry swelled above them all. Late afternoon of Game Day always found several juniors at the field, decorating goal posts. There were times when one could almost taste the spirit during a pep rally, and he most certainly could feel it . . . it was the lump in the throat.

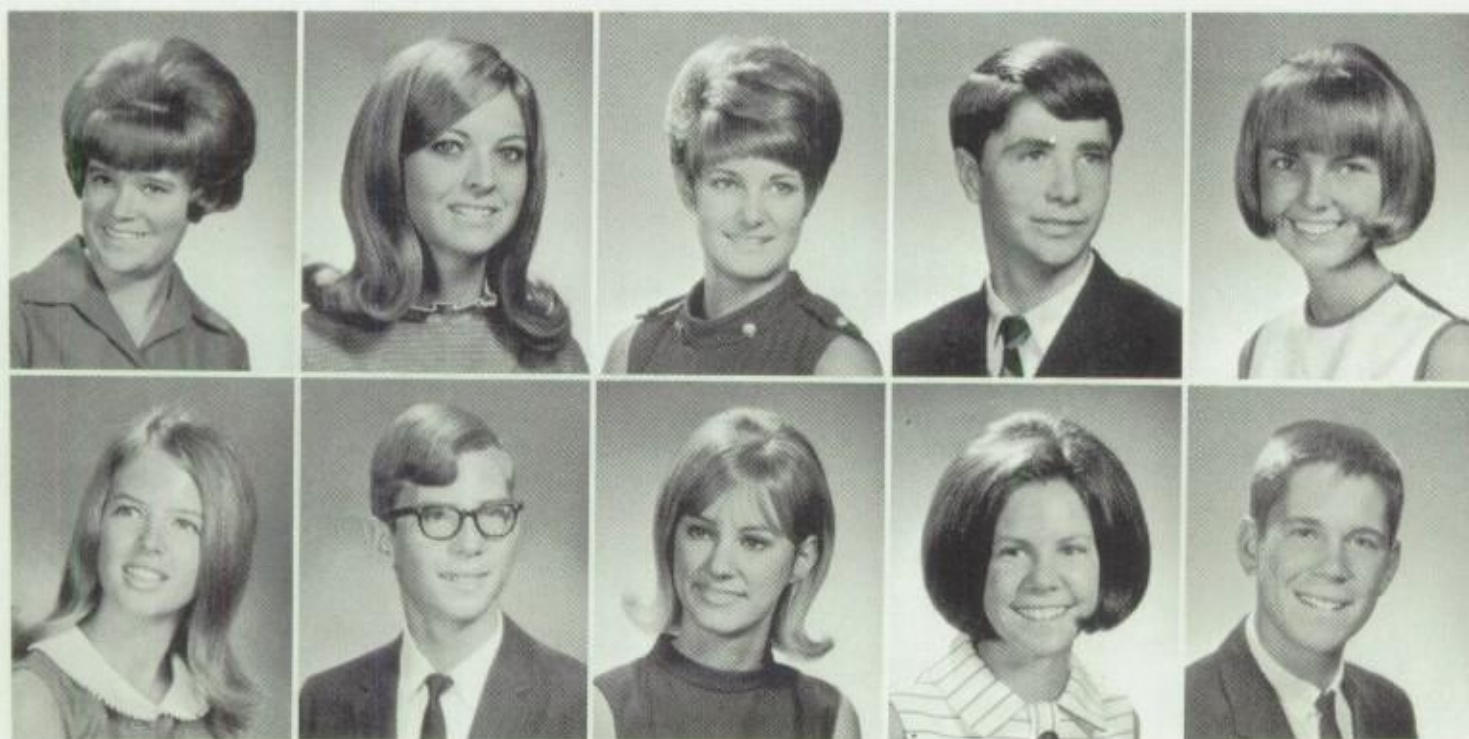

Making like a mummy, Patti Jones searches for the end of the crepe paper as Barbara Horseman attacks the many knots and tangles.

frost in the air, but most of all, it's two wonderful days out of school! The year really hadn't been spectacular. The football team had only a 5-5 record, and report cards had just been distributed, but on that Thursday in 1967 if Plainsmen had really stopped to think, they had many things to be thankful for—the privilege of unlimited learning, the thrill of spontaneous laughter, the comfort of belonging, and most of all, the security of being loved. Those two days provided opportunity for much-needed rest before the head-long rush into the chaos of Christmas.

Iowa tests superinduce brain strain for juniors. Not since 9th grade have they had tests which are designed to measure aptitude or achievement. This year they were administered to the entire junior class on November 28-29. Test scores were distributed to teachers and counselors for use in classroom planning and vocational counseling. National scoring also made it possible for students to compare scores with state and national averages.

Decorating winds up as Libby Fowler and Candace Baker pin up Carnival letters.

Juniors layout carnival blueprint

Hours of behind-the-scene work required all quantities and qualities of talent to produce the junior assembly. Committee chairmen were Candace Baker, head, Libby Fowler, decorations, and Patti Anderson, script. Almost overnight, the stage transformed into the multicolor gaiety of Carnival. On the backdrop a ferris wheel and tent were painted and glittered. Cardboard cages were made for gigantesque stuffed animals. After the script was written, night dress rehearsals began. On the morning of February 22, costuming and make-up were completed and Carnival was ready for curtain time.

Audience throbs with carnival beat

The curtains closed on Carnival and the imaginations of many were interrupted by loud applause. The junior assembly was over, scenery and costumes were put away, lines were forgotten and Joey the clown was just a memory. From beginning to end, the auditorium was caught under the spell of a different type of assembly. Although the emotion created by the plot was intangible, the talent wasn't. Folk singing and contemporary dancing pushed the psychedelic movement out of the way. This new trend in talent helped make Carnival a real sensation.

Juniors, sophs mix party ingredients

The success of the party didn't depend on one evening, January 27, from 7:30 until 11:00, but rather on the weeks of preparation put into it. As sponsors, juniors and sophomores united to make Casino Royale something for everyone. Giant dice made from cardboard boxes and colossal playing cards transformed the cafeteria into a Casino. Building a roulette wheel for big-time gamblers exercised the boys' carpenter skills. Paint and paper colored Main Street with glamour and sophistication. The gym was set in a mad mod world of reflections made by tin can tops strung from every beam and toned with red and blue lights. Chairmaned by junior Glenna Brown and sophomore Keith Taylor, Casino Royale became a happening with a license to entertain its guests to a night of gambling, dancing and talent.

"Don't just stand there!" exclaims Paul Bullock as Patti Anderson struggles with a piece of sticky masking tape.

After the bugaloo, shing-a-ling or funky broadway, the Shucks slow down Casino Royale with soft soul music.

Casino Royale hit the jackpot when it drew a full house Saturday night, January 27. Gamblers, lured by the click of the roulette wheel, jammed the Casino. Enhanced by a misty blue atmosphere, Main Street with its exquisite shops, welcomed everyone to the party. A groovy night club offered entertainment while the picture booth attracted the sentimental who wanted lasting memories. Eats and drinks were sold at a sidewalk cafe while candy cigarettes and cigar bubble gum could be bought from the cigarette girls. The vibrations of the "Shucks" set the beat for hours of dancing with psychedelic reflections in the gym. From 7:30 until 11:30 the miniature Las Vegas was a happening, but afterwards only a memory.

Gals pick up Twirp Week dates, checks

Some went for movies and pizzas afterwards while others swarmed dance floors and crowded the Char-King. 'Men got a short vacation from dating responsibilities during TWIRP Week, April 15, while girls were faced with car and money problems. Boys found it amusing to watch their dates cope with such problems as being introduced to parents, fixing flat tires, and making the first move for that good-night kiss. Girls were thankful it came just once a year.

Sales multiply funds, finance prom

Peanuts . . . popcorn . . . fudge . . . divinity . . . this was the cry of the Juniors as they hawked their wares every Tuesday during the annual Candy Sale. With an eye toward the prom, the sales were begun early in September and continued until Prom time in the spring. Candy was provided by members of the class and sold for 2½c a piece. Caramel apples sold for 20c apiece and popcorn balls were 10c each. Kay Ward served as chairman of candy sales and Mrs. Jo Anne Corbet collected the money. Juniors, realizing that the success of the prom depended on their cooking skill and energy, set a goal of $800 and reached it just before prom time.

Concerned with the pennies, not the product, Mark, chairman of the Jr.-Sr. Prom, demands payment for a caramel apple.

Girl + money + prom = poverty

To the male population of the junior and senior classes the prom was a complex financial problem. Early in the fall about $30 was tucked away in an envelope marked Prom. As the big date approached, the sum dwindled: one tux=$15—one corsage=$5—tickets=$10—dinner for two=$10—TOTAL=$10. Long before he held her in his arms for that first dance, the glitter was gone along with his money.

Figures double as junior Tom Arnett decides on a tuxedo and selects the perfect flower for that someone special.

Rings reflect anticipated seniority

Long lines didn't discourage juniors as they waited to order class rings. It was worth the first real "senior feeling" experienced when ring sizes were measured and the desired style was selected. Thoughts turned toward the beginning of the senior year when they would receive the rings with a red stone, blue stone or a gold cigar band faced with the big "M". It was not just a ring, it represented eleven past years and one to go, the beginning of the end, and something different, something senior.

Preparing for his final ski trip of the season, Steve Moss makes last checks on equipment.

Lubbock Public Schools experienced a first this year when students were given a spring vacation between Christmas holidays and summer. Plainsmen left books, grades, and worries locked tight behind Monterey doors the week of April 8. It was a great chance to enjoy a long Easter visit with relatives, head to the mountains for snow and skiing, test water-skiing and diving equipment, or just stay at home and relax. The next Monday students returned to the old grind with the last nine weeks a little easier and a lot shorter.

Displaying past Interscholastic League awards, number sense and slide rule contestants prepare for League competition.

Designed to organize and direct supervised and controlled contests and desirable school activities, the Interscholastic League helped prepare students for citizenship. Two MHS contestants and one alternate represented speech, literary, music, and athletic departments. These delegates were chosen by teachers and carefully tutored until 34A district meets at Canyon began in March. In May district winners were sent to the state meet in Austin. From there winners went to compete in the regional meet held in Odessa. This program offered top opportunities for awards and college scholarships.

Middlemen finish year, await senior status

Senior benches were eyed with new interest, a class ring was ordered, a junior gained senior status. A common anticipation of superiority surged through juniors as they ended the year. Next year would be the year there would be no upper classmen to look up to, only lower classmen to do the looking. Daydreams began filling with ideas to make next year's senior activities the biggest and best. Crowded conditions in the trophy case only encouraged juniors "to go all the way" in competition and cram it with more. With graduation requirements in mind, juniors gained seniority and destined the Senior Class of '69 as one to remember.

Time is the key factor in the life of Miss Mitzi Davis, sophomore class sponsor. Her typical day begins early with class council meetings, progresses through four English classes and one Spanish class, and ends late at night when the last committee has met and all the themes are graded. A week filled with five days of such demanding activity leaves little time for one's personal pursuits. Miss Davis's rewards are many, like the gratitude of the student who didn't make a D on the theme after all or the thunderous applause after the Sophomore Assembly. Somehow she knows, even at it's best, it could all be better if there were only more time.

Frantically rushing to beat the bell, Miss Mitzi Davis returns papers to sophomores Dana Taylor, Liz Barnes and Randy Garret.

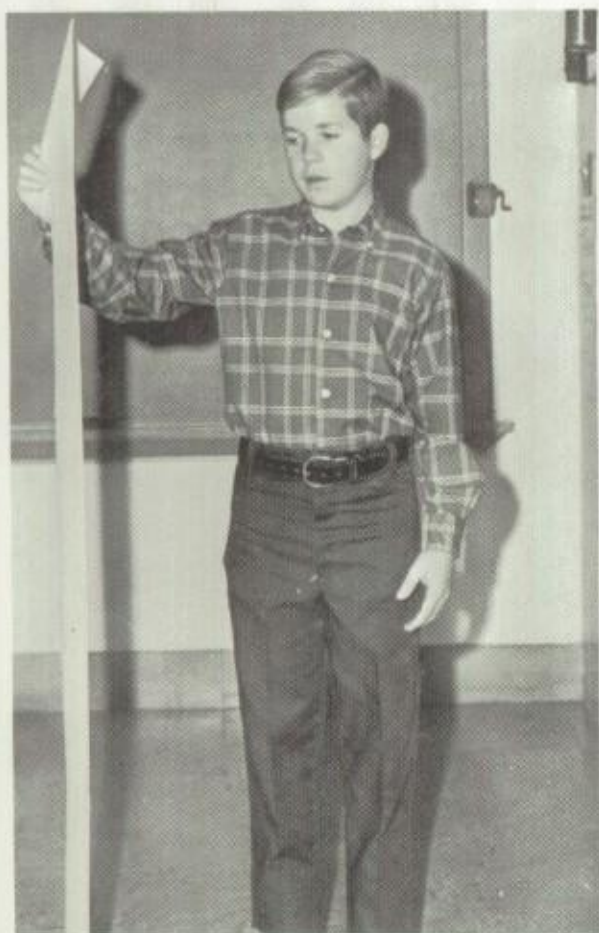

At the beginning of every school year, sophomores are many different people from many different schools. As the end of that first high school year, they are Plainsmen from one of the biggest high schools in the state. 1967 was no exception. Seven hundred thirty-one sophomores came from Atkins, Evans, Hutchinson and Slaton Junior Highs. They were organized into 22 homerooms and spent two weeks in much-needed orientation. Among their organized activities were a party, several spirit projects and the traditional assembly. Their first step toward unity was the election of officers. The class chose Randy Garrett, president; Kris Tidmore, secretary; Patsy

Coming into Monterey at the first of the year, sophomores still had a little of the green and gold, orange and white, red and gold, or red and white of their previous junior highs. At first it was very difficult for all these colors to blend into the Monterey red and blue. Confused with their new surroundings, the first singing of the school song fused sophomores into a united group and ignited the spirit that carried the class consistently for the remainder of the year. This spirit thrust the lower classmen into the heart of Monterey activities and boosted the class to the heights of enthusiasm. Without the sparkle of the littlemen of MRS, the student body would have had only one-third of its 101% spirit.

Radical changes were in store for sophomores when they entered Monterey for the first nine weeks of school. Taming undisciplined minds and active imaginations seemed impossible after three fun-filled months of summer, but the disillusioned tenderfoots soon hit the books for concentrated study. Teachers, as they discovered, treated them like adults and the tests they gave were much harder. A longer grading period created suspense even for the honor student. When tests were over, the prospect of the forthcoming grades brought mixed feelings in the sophomore class. Finally as report cards were distributed and cries of elation and misery echoed in the halls, students prepared to clear their minds of old knowledge and begin a new nine weeks.

Soph Santas enliven small tots' holidays

Closets were emptied of all the relics of childhood to make a merrier Christmas for underprivileged Lubbock boys and girls. Sometimes there was a slight sentimental pang as a favorite old teddy bear dropped into the barrel, but that was soon overshadowed by the thoughts of the excitement of some small tot on Christmas morning. The junior high homeroom parties and exchange of gifts was replaced by the deep satisfaction of sharing the spirit of Christmas.

Noise was the theme for sophomores on the two football bus trips of the year. Often the clamor was almost too much for unaccustomed ears, but that didn't suppress the loud vocalizing. An unusually cold winter brought sleet, snow and ice that both dampened and brightened the spirits of sophomores. Movement in traffic and walking was slowed by the slick conditions, and was sometimes stopped abruptly by a sliding fall. Many lowerclassmen were overjoyed with the first snowfall of the year, not only because of the spirited snowball fights, but because it was a sign of an abundance of snow on the ski slopes of Colorado and New Mexico. Sophomore ski enthusiasts flocked to the runs at every opportunity for a few days of schussing down the mountain. Those who stayed at home found ample snow for snowmen, sledding and just plain romping around.

Projects, discussion enhance novels

The whack of the guillotine, the headaches of raising twelve red-headed children, a family of Norwegian immigrants in North Dakota—all these experiences captivated sophomores in one short year. Although reading several novels was required for English 21-22, the range of stories and styles made the assignment an easy one for most students. Some of the more energetic sophomores created projects and bulletin boards which illustrated the action and pictured the settings of many books. Even a seven foot guillotine loomed in front of one classroom and caused a little apprehension about the teacher's mode of punishment.

HemisFair '68 lures sophomore delegates

A two-fold incentive lured sophomores to the 1968 Texas Association of Student Councils conference in San Antonio. The prospect of meeting high school students from all over the state for the first time and touring the new HemisFair made the first convention for the sophomores especially appealing. This was the first big school-sponsored trip that the two sophomore delegates were lucky enough to go on. They, along with two juniors, represented the entire Monterey student body. T.A.S.C. provided the first chance for the lower-classmen to exchange ideas for better student government with student council leaders from other high schools.

Delighted with the brochures on HemisFair '68, Barbara Yandel anticipates the experiences of a possible trip to T.A.S.C.

Troubled by inexperience, sophomore vice presidents muddled through the planning of their first class assembly. It was tempting to copy, perhaps, the pattern of the confident seniors who had edited and produced three such programs already. The sophomores, however, wanted their program to be different and special, one that nobody would forget. Armed with fresh new ideas and insurmountable determination, the unique, first class assembly was presented.

Sophs search for theme of first class assembly

Searching for ideas for the theme of a class assembly, Dana Taylor, Bridget Burkholder, Susan Smith and Brad Hall experiment with colorful costumes from a local shop.

Nothing stops smash soph assembly

After choosing a theme for the assembly, sophomores began to work hard on their first class production. Slowly but surely the program took shape. Song arrangements and scripts were edited and all the pieces fell into place. The spirit and excitement of curtain time melted away last minute stage fright and the sophomores indeed proved that "Nothing could stop them".

Harrassed sophomores plan schedules

Headaches, faint groans and obvious mass confusion were apparent in the halls of Monterey when the time came for planning schedules. Decisions had to be made and sophomores roamed the halls in bewilderment. When the cards had to be filled out, little 'Men developed spring fever and their heads were filled with thoughts of summer. They found it extremely hard to concentrate on the forthcoming year and were baffled by the seemingly endless list of course offerings. Understanding counselors and teachers helped to unravel some of the confusion of scheduling, but college and possible career demands exerted pressure on the sophomores. However, with determination, they accomplished their task and began to look forward to their junior year.

Wide-eyed and scared stiff, future sophomores invade Monterey for part of one day in the spring. Awed by the enormous building and even bigger seniors, the ninth graders were not so sure of their superiority back in the security of junior high. They reported to their homerooms first and were briefed on many aspects of Monterey life from subject choices to extra-curricular activities. Upperclassmen then guided tours through the school, and the building seemed to get larger and larger in the eyes and feet of the class of '71.

The class of 1970 made a big mark on Monterey this year. They elected competent officers to lead them in student council activities, suffered the inevitable chiding of upper-classmen and almost exhausted the unending patience of understanding teachers. No longer thinking of themselves as sophomores, the prospective juniors knew what they wanted and how to get it. New opportunities to serve as student body officers made this year's leaders wonder who would be next. Busy plans were formed for spring elections as the year was reviewed. New class officers were chosen with the promise of encouragement and support of fellow classmates. Cheerleader elections were held and the Monterey Student Council changed hands in preparation for a new and different year.

Officers review past, study future

Displaying typical female curiosity, Carol Taylor and Faynel Clark wonder whose names will find their places on next year's list of Student Council officers.

With an eye on the finals, Bridget Burkholder, Patsy Bush and Barbara Yandell work on cheerleading skills.

Leaving school behind, sophomores toss books and paper to the wind and leap into three months of summer fun.

Final bell heralds end of year

When the final bell rang to announce the end of school on May 29, jubilant sophomores poured out of the school building in droves. Not only did that bell mean no more tests or homework for three months, but it also meant long days with nothing to do but swim, water ski and lay in the sun. From the time they stepped out the front door, the sophomores scattered to all corners of the country, not to return until September when they would be the new junior class of Monterey.

Monterey,
Sweet, how am ya? It has been a good year and I will miss you when you go away to this year and I wish you a lot of luck in the future.
Go be sweet, and take care of yourself. Love
Ken

To Monterey best wishes for great happiness and success. Keep up your hard work and sweet spirit. L. Schreiner

Monterey,
Good luck in the Tech band next year and best wishes for the future.
Harry Warren

Monterey-
You're really a sweet girl and wish you a lot of luck in college and for the future. Keep practicing your flute and you'll be great.

Monterey,
You are real sweet and it's been fun these last 3 yrs. at M. S.
I wish you all the luck
in the future.
Donna
Blum

Monterey,
I'll never forget my senior year at Monterey, will you? It's been lots of fun and you have helped make it that way. You're always there and ready to help. Have fun this summer & good luck in life.

Kathy Biles

Monterey,
I'll never forget all the wonderful times we've had in Good News. You're such a sweet girl, and I hoped can always count you as one of my friends. Best wishes -
God bless you.

Love,

Sharon
Kennedy

Monterey
I have really enjoyed knowing you these past three years. Monterey you are a really sweet girl & you are always happy & kind to others. I know you'll be very happy.
God Bless May
Linda

Monterey,

Lots of luck in the years to come. Keep your chin up. Good luck.
Dick Rushing

Monterey,
Your testimony you gave at the Presb. Tail on church was beautiful. Always keep the love & faith you now have & you'll always be happy. Love Judy Shillingham

Monterey,

Thank you for being yourself when so many people like it. Keep up your beautiful voice and your ecstatic worship and you will always have friends.
Jimmy Thorne

monterey,
It's almost just over! I could just cry! Well, anyway, stay sweet and good luck through life!
Be good!
I love,
Sam Cuddy
"Jr. '68"

Monterey -
I've enjoyed knowing you this year and singing with you in Good News. Good Luck
Mike Williams

Dear Monterey,
I want you to know that I've really enjoyed knowing you in "Good News" and everywhere else. You are really dedicated to a wonderful cause and I hope you will always be happy and assured of happiness.
Good luck in the future!
Love
Dorothy

I'm entering a new thing which I had never seen before. I hope you will like
 it. I have good things for you all.
 Love
 Dad
